WHAT IS SCIENCE GAMES? With a focus on collaboration, connection, discovery, and fun, students in British Columbia will have an opportunity to participate in a 3-week science journey in July 2023! At Science Games, students from Grades 1–6 across BC explore science first-hand in an online group led by engineers and geoscientists.

This interactive event hosted online gives students the chance to investigate the ways science affects their everyday lives. Diving deep into the world of innovation, participants will connect with other like-minded students and work together online to create their own solutions during each Saturday activity session.

2023 VIRTUAL PROGRAM SCHEDULE

Date	Division 1 (Grades 1–3)	Division 2 (Grades 4–6)
July 15, 2023	9:00 AM–11:00 AM	2:00 PM–5:00 PM
July 22, 2023	9:00 AM–11:00 AM	2:00 PM–5:00 PM
July 29, 2023	9:00 AM–11:00 AM	2:00 PM–5:00 PM

2023 SCIENCE GAMES REGISTRATION

To participate in these sessions, your child must be signed up as a 2023 Science Games participant and pay a $25 registration fee. If there is a financial barrier to your participation in the 2023 Science Games, you can apply for a scholarship for a reduced rate. The online Science Games Bursary application form will be available when registration launches.

Parents/Guardians can register their child/children as:

Individual Participants

Group Participants

Please note:

You can group registrations with a group code, but you can only share your code with 2 other Science Games participants. Science Games participants will also receive a package from Engineers and Geoscientists BC at the end of June. This package includes items that are necessary for participation in a particular Science Games activity.

For those who are deaf or have hearing loss, making and enjoying music can be a challenge. However, that hasn't stopped Dame Evelyn Glennie from achieving success.

Scottish-born Dame Evelyn Glennie is one of the world's most recognized percussionists (打击乐器乐手). However, she started going deaf at the age of eight due to a nerve disease. At 12, she totally lost her hearing.

At first, Glennie was desperate. But her percussion teacher at school taught her to feel particular notes. For example, she had to place her hands on a wall, and he would play two notes on two timpani. He would then ask her which was the higher note and where she felt the vibration(振动). Through trials and errors, she managed to distinguish the pitch(音高)of notes by associating where on her body she feels the sound. Thanks to her perfect pitch and the fact that she performs barefoot, Evelyn "hears" the sound. Together with her lip-reading skills, and amazing musicianship, she has conquered any troubles and inconvenience caused by her impairment.

Till now, Glennie has performed with almost all the major orchestras (管弦乐队) globally. Besides classical music, she is famous for partnerships with pop and rock artists like Sting and Bjork. Glennie's works has earned her over 100 music awards, including two Grammys. She even led 1,000 drummers in the opening ceremony of the London 2012 Olympic Games.

At the age of 58 this year, Glennie's mission now is to "teach the world to listen," to improve communication by encouraging everyone to discover a new way of listening. "It's important to grab on to any opportunity that comes your way, but you also need to create your own opportunities," says Evelyn. "It's a personal time to reflect on the impact you might have on other people as well. I don't know if age plays a part in it, because I feel as though I haven't really achieved very much and there's still so much to do! "

24. How could Glennie identify different notes as a deaf person?

- A. By reading her teacher's lips.
- B. By putting her hands on a wall.

- C. By applying her amazing musicianship.
D. By feeling the vibration through her body.
25. What does the underlined word “impairment” in paragraph 3 mean?
- A. Sorrow.
B. Mismatch.
C. Abnormality.
D. Fear.
26. Which of the following best describes Glennie’s character?
- A. faithful and tolerant
B. cheerful and practical
C. determined and kind
D. considerate and dutiful
27. What can be a suitable title for the text?
- A. A Dream Pursued by Evelyn Glennie
B. A Deaf Musician Heard by the World
C. Evelyn Glennie: Teach the World to Listen
D. Talented Percussionist: Say “No” to Age

Working out for 30 minutes every day “might not be enough” to counter the health issues created by long time sitting, according to a sweeping new study.

The new study, unlike the past ones that examined sitting and formal exercise separately, ignoring light activities, involved 3702 people to find out how those all affected people’s health indices(指数).

With the data collected, researchers characterized people by how they moved. The first group dutifully exercised for a half-hour and then sat, almost nonstop, for more than 10hours a day. Another group similarly worked out for 30 minutes and sat for long hours. But, in between, they rose often and took walks around, spending time in light activities like fetching another cup of coffee. The third group sat, uninterrupted, for up to 10 hours, but also collected an hour of exercise most days. The final group, which the researchers named “the movers,” exercised about an hour most days, while also moving lightly for about two hours more.

When the researchers cross-checked these groups against people’s current health data, the first group had the worst indices. On the contrary, the other groups were all better off and to about the same extent, with relatively improved blood sugar control and cholesterol(胆固醇) levels and about 8 percent less body fat than the first group.

“A single 30-minute, daily workout ‘might not be enough’ to reduce the downsides of long time sitting,” said Vahid

Farrahi, the lead author of the new study. "In addition to a brisk(轻快的) workout, we need to move lightly and often, cleaning, taking the stairs, taking a walk in the halls or just not remaining still."

28. How is the new study different from the previous ones?

- A. It examined sitting and exercise separately.
- B. It proved that light activities were ignored.
- C. It took light activities into consideration.
- D. It suggested working out for a half-hour.

29. What do we know from the data in the new study?

- A. The first group spent a half-hour on light activities after long sitting.
- B. The second group got similar improved health indices as the movers.
- C. The third group collected an hour's exercise during 10 hours' sitting.
- D. The movers got up every 30 minutes for formal exercise for an hour.

30. What light activity is suggested to go with formal exercise?

- A. Reading while sitting.
- B. Swimming in the pool.
- C. Working out in the gym.
- D. Walking in the gym hall.

31. What can we infer from Vahid's words?

- A. It's better to exercise more often than half an hour every day.
- B. Moving lightly and often is more useful than we have thought.
- C. Working out harder and longer is better than just moving lightly.
- D. A 30-minute workout has little help for long time sitting problems.

第二节 (共 5 小题; 每小题 2.5 分, 满分 12.5 分)

阅读下面短文, 从短文后的选项中选出可以填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

For most people, hearing the words "dinner's on the table" brings back memories of home - cooked meals shared with family. __32__ However, "Dinnertime" was once different and has experienced a series of evolutions.

Families didn't eat together in the evening before the 1700s. Family members would eat in shifts, setting up a small table outside, or by the fireplace. In colonial (殖民的) times, the midday meal—"dinner"—was the largest one, while "supper" was a smaller evening meal. That changed during the Industrial Revolution. __33__ Laborers began to eat a quick, lighter meal at midday, moving dinner to the end of the day as the main family meal. For families of all socioeconomic levels evening automatically became the time when everyone would be back at home together. __34__

At present, flexible lifestyles, changing patterns of work - life balance have led to the appearance of a new kind of family dinner. __35__ A few clicks on the phone can bring people whatever their heart or stomach desires - Caribbean, Japanese, Italian and every other country's cuisine. This makes sense given the various dining preferences of the newest age group.

36 Regardless of who cooks the food, where it's eaten, and who you're eating with, the nightly tradition of sharing a meal while connecting with loved ones always stands strong.

- A. People began to work outside of the home.
- B. Family dinners are not always this flexible.
- C. There's never been so much variety for dinner.
- D. Despite the changes, the central concept remains.
- E. It's a magical phrase representing a warm time at sunset.
- F. Dinnertime started to be an important occasion.
- G. Dinnertime served as a symbol of safety.
