Dear Chris,

Our school is scheduled to hold a robot exhibition next Sunday. I am writing to invite you to attend it.

I know you are always interested in robot and machine. At the robot exhibition, you will see some intelligent robots created by students from our school. In addition, it is extremely important that you should use this platform to make more friends who have a lot in common with you.

I am looking forward to seeing you at the exhibition.

Yours sincerely,

Li Hua

第二节(满分 25 分)

Then I looked at the words on the piece of paper taped to my laptop, lost in thought. I realized a funny fact. I planted and harvested virtual crops for hours every day while leaving the real land outside the window untouched. This was neither a meaningful life nor an activity that mirrored my brightest intentions. How could I base my happiness on unreal goals? Inspired, I decided to stop playing farm games and focus on real life. To begin with, I farmed the land in our backyard actively.

Farming the real land was only the beginning, and I started to do more to enrich my real life. I walked my dog in the park, spent more time with my family, climbed mountains with my friends, and attended various classes. These were activities that allowed me to make better use of my spare time and truly represented my values. The sentence I had copied from that Facebook post became a mirror I used to examine how I should spend my time and energy, enabling me to live a healthier and richer life.
