Sock-eater ants are made-up animals with the best intention ever.

"Ow! Ow!" I shouted as I broke my jump rope rhythm and trapped my feet in the loose rope. "Something in my shoe is biting me," I screamed. My teacher, Miss Bell, heard me and hurried over. "Which foot is it?" she asked. I stuck up my right foot as she bent over to inspect it. Just then, feeling a new sting, I yelped in pain. "Here. Let's take off your shoe." Instructed Miss Bell, squatting down to get the shoe.

Then, I remembered the holes in my socks. Welfare socks didn't last long. Holes in socks were common for our family in the years following the Great Depression. Socks with holes in the heels often got pulled down so the hole wouldn't show. Where there was a hole, there would soon be a blister. Every week as she washed our clothes, Mama would say, "Even if we're poor and our clothes are worn out, we can still be clean."

I refused to let Miss Bell take off my shoe. I could not bear for her and the others on the playground to see the hole in my faded red sock. "Come on, then. Let's go inside to the office." I did my best to hold back my tears. Yet, each time the thing in my shoe stung me, I would let out aloud, "Oh, oh, oh!" Tears raced down my twisted face.

Miss Bell lifted me onto the desk and tried again. "Let me take a look." She just about had the shoe off when I saw the hole. I grabbed the shoe and pulled on and held it. The stinging worsened the tighter I grabbed the shoe. Miss Womble, the fifth-grade teacher, came into the office. "Can I help? I know her. She lives next door to me." "I guess ants are stinging her right foot, but she won't let me take off her shoe," said Miss Bell.

注意:

1. 续写词数应为 150 左右;
2. 请按如下格式在答题卡的相应位置作答。

Miss Womble put both hands on my shaking shoulders and looked into my upset, red eyes.

Dealing with the angry bites gently, Miss Womble lifted her head and smiled at me.
