第四部分 写作 (共两节, 满分 40 分)

第一节 (满分 15 分)

One possible version:

Good morning, dear classmates. Today, I'd like to share a story about a man of perseverance.

This man is Stephen Hawking, a world-famous physicist who was diagnosed with motor neuron disease at the age of 21. Despite being confined to a wheelchair and losing the ability to speak, he continued to pursue his passion for science and became one of the most influential scientists of our time.

Facing adversities and challenges in our lives, we should not give up but strive for excellence and push ourselves beyond our comfort zones. We can make a difference in the world with our perseverance, just like Stephen Hawking did.

Thanks for your listening.

第二节 (满分 25 分)

One possible version:

Soon, I realized we were lost and couldn't find the fairy tree. We couldn't find the path back to our house. Nothing was familiar. But, using my phone's GPS, I pointed us in the direction of our address. Roger was unwilling to accept our fate of being lost, she led the way through the thick, unmaintained forest. After a particularly hairy climb through some bushes, we finally made our way back to our property line. My parents, my grandfather and Ben are standing in the yard, waiting for us. Roger couldn't hide her excitement. "There are so many secret play areas!" she told her brother. Ben began to weep with jealousy.

We promised to take Ben to adventure the next day. The next morning, Ben was in

We found the secret play areas again and we three had much fun. When we were tired, we easily found our way home following our ribbon trail. We are in our new home, with our new woods to explore. We run. We climb. We imagine magic. No monsters. No deer. Just us three on our own new adventure in our woods.

附听力原文:

W: My husband is going to climb Windy Peak. Which boots do you think I should get him?

M: Oh, that's a big mountain. He'll really need to try on the boots himself. They need to fit well.

W: Hmm, I thought you might say that. I'll let him know.

Text 2

W: We just drove past here a few minutes ago. Why are we back? Are you lost?

M: Don't you want to have another look at the view? I do. It takes my breath away.

W: Yes, I'd forgotten just how amazing this area is.

Text 3

M: I can't believe you ran into Sarah at the train station. Did you know that she was there?

W: I had no idea. I was on my way to work then I looked up and saw her.

M: She must have been shocked to see you.

W: Definitely. It's been years!

Text 4

M: Open wide. Now, what's the problem?

W: I was in a restaurant with family members. I spoke to a waiter and at that moment I must have bitten into a bone.

M: Yes, I can see it. You have lost a filling, so I'll have to replace it.

Text 5

W: Will I see you at the party after work tomorrow? I love a good party.

M: Me too, but I can't seem to get away from this flu, so I'll have to pass.

W: Oh, that's such a shame!

Text 6

M: Can I help you with that? You look to be struggling.

W: Why are the tops so tight? You need to be a strong man to deal with the bottle.

M: The worst things to open, I find, are tins of fish. If the little metal piece breaks off, you are stuck.

W: I have trouble with meat wrapped in plastic. I just can't tear it.

M: Well, there you go. Your bottle's open now.

W: Thank you. You're a gentleman. I'm desperate for a drink.

M: Yes, it's a hot day, isn't it? It seems to be making people bad-tempered.

W: I don't know why. I love hot weather.

Text 7

W: Hi there, Tony. Long time no see.

M: Hello, Isobel. Yes, it has been a long time, hasn't it? I remember it's the last day at Wallcaster High, in fact.

高三英语试题参考答案第4页(共6页)

W: Yes. Do you still see any of the old gang?
M: The only one I see a lot of is Paul. Do you remember him in our class?
W: Yes. How is he?
M: Fine. He works in the office at his dad's factory. Most of the others, I think, are at university.
W: Hey, is that the same bike you used to ride to school on?
M: You bet. It serves me well and never needs repairing, nice color.
W: Don't you need a full-size bike now? You're not a little kid anymore.
M: This one is just fine.

Text 8

M: Imagine living in a place like this.
W: It would have been cold, with stone floors and stone walls. These walls must be two meters thick.
M: They needed to be thick to defend from attackers.
W: The windows are so tiny.
M: In that case, they could fire arrows through them without getting arrows coming back from the enemy.
W: There is a model in the museum showing what this place would have looked like when it was built.
M: Yes, and there's a famous painting of it in the National Art Gallery. There are also pictures of the princesses who lived here.
W: I wouldn't have liked to be a princess. Some of them had to get married when they were twelve.
M: Wow!
W: I felt like a kid when I was married, and I was twice that age.
M: They were in different times, compared with us.
W: I'm freezing. I think it was a mistake to have an ice cream before I came in.
M: Well, I had a hot dog but I'm cold as well. Fancy a coffee?
W: Yes, let's get one to warm ourselves up.

Text 9

M: Hello, ma'am. We've heard that there's a concern about your room.
W: I'm afraid so. It's been a very difficult week and I just need a comfortable room to get some rest, so I can't accept this room.
M: For a small cost, we could upgrade you to our master room. It's very popular with our business clients like you.
W: I'm not here for work. I've been spending my days visiting my aunt in the hospital. When I get home, I need the room to be clean and quiet.
M: Oh, I'm sorry to hear that. A lot of our guests are on holiday, so they can be a bit noisy in the evenings.

W: I understand. The main issue is fixing the broken windows to stop the rain leaking inside the room. The standing water has created a horrible smell.

M: I can call our repairman to fix that and remove the water, but I'm afraid that he can only come tomorrow.

W: What am I supposed to do tonight, then?

M: I'm sorry, for today we'll help you move your things to a similar room without any of these issues.

W: OK, thank you. I'm sorry for being so upset. I've just had such a difficult week.

M: I understand completely. In your situation, I would also want a comfortable place to relax.

Text 10

Everybody wants to be happy, but not everybody manages it. I'm usually happy, so I thought I'd share my advice for staying that way. First, be aware of things you should be thankful for. When you wake up each morning, spend some time recalling all the things for which you feel grateful. Make sure you're giving something back. There's something about giving that not only helps others but also allows you to receive more in return. Second, try to laugh every day. It's better than money. The secret of happiness is to have good relationships with family and friends. Happy people don't spend large amounts of time alone. By spending time with people you like, you create relationships that help you when facing stress. But do also have just a little time on your own now and then. Sometimes, a little peace and quietness can do wonders for your mood and outlook. Third, do what you love. When work feels like play, you're more likely to enjoy other aspects of your life better too. Fourth, keep good living habits. Get enough exercise, eat healthy and get plenty of rest. At last, don't compare yourself to others.
