Mary O'Connor and her husband Bobby Hughes had been in Letterkenny for a couple of days, when they decided they would spend the afternoon at Rathmullan beach.

Bobby is a diabetic (糖尿病患者) and needs to take insulin (胰岛素) regularly. On that morning, he had checked his blood sugar levels, which were fine. He ate breakfast without any difficulty. However, an unlucky incident happened. Mary said, "Ten minutes after we were there he just completely went down. It was just scary and it was so sudden. I think the really severe heat was a key factor, but it reflected how quickly things could change."

A few moments later, two women from Derry noticed that and rapidly came over. One called Sara who also was a similar patient recognized straight away what was going on. She said, "I had a bottle of glucose gel (葡萄糖凝胶) that I kept for emergencies and I was rubbing it onto Bobby's gums."

Mary said, "Some young lifeguards were able to call an ambulance and another lady called Emma, who was a nurse, stopped by to help us as well. Eventually we got him into the ambulance and I started to shake from the shock of it all. A nice man, Liam McAteer, whose mum owns the pub in Rathmullan, offered to drive me to the hospital and even took me back again to get my car." Mary said that the staff at the Letterkenny hospital were so brilliant in treating Bobby that he was able to be discharged later that day at 6:30 pm.

Drinking your daily cup of coffee may help to lower your risk of stroke (中风) and heart disease, according to a latest research. Researchers at the Heart and Vascular Centre,

Budapest, Hungary have found that drinking up to three cups of coffee a day may help protect your cardiovascular (心血管的) system.

The team studied data from nearly 500,000 people registered in the UK Biobank with an average age of 56 and no signs of heart disease at the time of recruitment. They divided them into three categories according to their coffee drinking habits: non-drinkers, up to three-cup-a-day drinkers, and more than three-cup-a-day drinkers.

Considering influencing factors such as age, sex, weight, height, physical activity, blood pressure, diabetes, socioeconomic status, and usual intake of alcohol, meat, tea, fruit and vegetables, they found that three-cup-a-day drinkers had a 12 per cent lower risk of death from all causes, a 17 per cent lower risk of death from cardiovascular disease, and a 21 per cent lower risk of stroke.

“To our knowledge, this is the largest study to systematically assess the cardiovascular effects of regular coffee consumption in a population without diagnosed heart disease,” said study author Dr Judit Simon.

To further investigate the effect, the researchers used data from more than 30,000 participants in the UK Biobank who had undergone MRI (核磁共振成像) scans to determine the structure and functioning capacity of their hearts.

Dr Judit Simon said, “The imaging analysis indicated that compared with participants who did not drink coffee regularly, daily coffee consumers had healthier sized and better functioning hearts. Our findings suggest that coffee consumption of up to three cups per day is associated with favourable cardiovascular outcomes. While further studies are needed to explain the underlying mechanisms, the observed benefits might be partly explained by positive changes in cardiac structure and function.”

28. What is the latest research mainly about?

- A. The risk of heart disease.
- B. The ways to avoid stroke.
- C. The cups of drinking coffee.
- D. The benefits of drinking coffee.

29. Why does the author mention the influencing factors in paragraph 3?

- A. To show the difficulty of the research.
- B. To show the reliability of the findings.
- C. To introduce the process of the research.
- D. To introduce the limitation of the findings.

30. What do the two data analyses have in common?

- A. They find coffee's positive effects on people.
- B. They focus on negative changes in people's hearts.
- C. They oppose coffee consumption.
- D. They have been accepted widely.

【高三英语 第 5 页(共 10 页)】

31. What attitude does Dr Judit Simon have to drinking coffee?
A. Carefree. B. Skeptical. C. Favourable. D. Tolerant.

A project in Kenya is using biogas (沼气) technology to attack two major pollution problems with one device: a machine that changes waste such as invasive water hyacinth (入侵性水葫芦) into cleaner cooking fuel.

The project from Biogas International, a Kenyan energy technology company, has so far provided 50 of the Flexi Biogas devices to homes in the city of Kisumu in western Kenya. The main device is called a digester (浸煮器) because it breaks down plant waste to produce gas. The digesters will permit families to stop using wood or coal, both of which produce dangerous smoke. People will also be able to cook foods faster using the gas. Tony Otieno used the gas from a digester to cook tea for his 70-year-old grandmother Margaret. He said, "The gas has no smoke, does not smell, and it is much faster than the jiko (a stove that uses wood-coal)."

Some of the families received a gas stove as part of the project, to replace their jiko. The machines process plant waste such as water hyacinth. That plant has covered large parts of Lake Victoria. The weed-like plant harms living things in the lake including fish. The plant also helps bacteria and mosquitoes increase, causing health risks to local communities.

Dominic Wanjihia Kahumbu is head of Biogas International. He said that at a cost of $ 650, most families in the city do not have enough money to buy the device. Although the technology can be on a small or large scale, he said, each system costs a lot to make. As a result, it is unlikely that the company will make a profit for at least another five years. He said the company needs new investment.

Two larger versions of the equipment are still in the testing stage. They would produce clean fuel on a larger scale for restaurants, chicken farms and fish drying facilities in the area.

32. What do the two major pollution problems refer to?

- A. Bacteria and mosquitoes. B. Plant waste and fuel pollution.
C. Biogas and water hyacinth. D. Jiko and dangerous smoke.

33. Which of the following can best describe the device?

- A. Large. B. Cheap.
C. Environment-friendly. D. Nice-looking.

34. What can we know about the water hyacinth from the text?

- A. It helps fish increase. B. It has covered Kenya.
C. It's a threat to the local people. D. It leads to the invention of digester.

35. What does paragraph 4 mainly tell us about the device?

- A. Its kinds. B. Its disadvantages. C. Its future. D. Its function.

第二节 (共5小题;每小题2.5分,满分12.5分)

阅读下面短文,从短文后的选项中选出可以填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

An escape room, also known as an escape game, is a game in which a team of players discover clues, solve puzzles and accomplish a specific goal in one or more rooms in a limited amount of time. 36 Most escape games are cooperative but competitive styles also exist. The following are some tips.

Keep it simple. For most escape games, even the very challenging ones with very high difficulty ratings, the puzzles and clues are surprisingly simple. 37 Don't over-complicate things by looking for complex solutions.

38 In general, every puzzle counts and each clue has the potential for guiding the key. Carefully observe every puzzle you come across. Avoid dismissing any, as it may be central to achieving your goal of breaking out. If a puzzle appears too difficult to solve, ask your team members and explore all possibilities.

Experiment with functionality (实用). Is the honey bucket (桶) just a metal thing filled with human waste or is there a clue under it? Or maybe, it can be turned upside down to use as a simple ladder. We get so stuck on how things are normally used that our minds refuse to think of alternative ways of using them. And just to ease your fears, no escape game will put you in a room with a bucket full of human waste. 39

Keep high spirits. It's important to keep the excitement levels high. 40 Whether you beat the clock or not, what you'll remember most is the positive attitude everyone had.

A. Think like a fourth grader.

B. Don't ignore any puzzles in the game.

C. They are just cleverly hidden and worded.

D. The goal is often to escape from the site of the game.

E. Sometimes, the game creators add a puzzle to confuse players.

F. As I mentioned earlier, use your imagination and think outside the box.

G. This encourages the team to get more involved and makes the experience fun.

第二节 (满分25分)

阅读下面材料,根据其内容和所给段落开头语续写两段,使之构成一篇完整的短文。

Thoa Bui was a local animal lover. She had rescued many animals over the years. When a sweet little cat was found alone next to her co-worker's house, her heart broke. So Thoa wasted no time taking her into her home. Thoa recalled that this baby cat was "skinny, dirty and dying".

Thoa named the cute cat, Rosie. Thoa was ready and willing to do whatever to save this small animal. The poor kitty was abandoned from her mother at such a young age, and Thoa was getting nervous that Rosie wouldn't make it another night without eating properly. So, if Thoa herself couldn't help Rosie feel safe enough, perhaps another animal could help. As soon as Thoa brought in her cherished pet, Lilo the husky (哈士奇), into the room, everything changed for Rosie.

Together, the two instantly shared a special bond. Lilo lay down with Rosie, and as the minutes went by, it was clear that Rosie felt even more secure and out of harm's way. Lilo was never a mother. But it seems like her maternal instincts (母性) are incredibly strong! Lilo never left Rosie's side for hours. Once Rosie finally felt safe from Lilo's welcoming warmth and comfort, she started crying for food, and the little kitty tried sucking on Lilo to get some milk, as if she was Rosie's mother.

"She knew that Rosie needed her. She accompanied her until she was better," Thoa said, "It looks like both filled up a missing spot in each other's heart." Rosie felt secure with Lilo, and it was clear that Lilo felt the same with Rosie. Lilo laid by Rosie's side for hours, and didn't even get up to eat that night! Thoa had to actually bring Lilo's food to her. But Thoa would have never expected what was going to happen next between the two lovely creatures.

注意:

1. 续写词数应为 150 左右;
2. 请按如下格式在答题卡的相应位置作答。

One day, Thoa took Lilo out, leaving Rosie at home.

She decided to take out along with the two, Lilo and Rosie!

听力部分录音材料

(Text 1)

W: Mary's birthday is coming. Shall we buy her a birthday present or let her choose one for herself?

M: Neither is OK. I think a surprise party may be better, but I forget when her birthday is.

(Text 2)

W: I thought the librarian said we could check out as many books as we need with our library cards.

M: That's right, but not those reference books.

(Text 3)

W: How do you like this jacket? It's nice and cheap. It's only thirty-four dollars.

M: Have you got anything cheaper?

(Text 4)

W: When on earth did you get home last night? 11:30 or 12 o'clock?

M: Not really, my watch told me it was only 11:20 when I opened the door.

(Text 5)

M: What have you got there?

W: It's my sun lamp. I'm taking it to the electrical repair shop to be fixed. There's something wrong with the wiring.

(Text 6)

M: You look rather pale. Aren't you feeling well?

W: Not at all. I was sick most of the night, I didn't sleep very well. Could I ask for sick leave, sir?

M: What seems to be the matter? Is it the flu?

W: No, I think it's something I ate. We ate at that new restaurant last night, and I must have eaten something that didn't agree with me.

M: Was it that new restaurant on Fourth Street?

W: Yes, it was. Why do you ask?

M: Because your classmate John ate there last week and had the same kind of problem. He was sick the next day, too.

(Text 7)

W: Did you hear about what happened to Howard?

M: No, what?

W: Someone stole his car!

M: Really? When did it happen?

W: Last night. He left it parked in front of his girlfriend's house and when he came out to go home, it was gone.

M: Wow! That's really terrible. He just bought it last month, didn't he?

W: Quite right. Fortunately, he's bought insurance for it.

(Text 8)

W: Good evening, sir. Do you have a reservation with us tonight?

M: Yes, it's under the name Willis.

W: One moment. . . Willis, a party of four, is that right?

M: Yes, that's us!

W: Wonderful. I see half of your group have not yet arrived. I can seat you now, or you can have a drink at the bar while you wait.

M: Oh. I think my wife and I would prefer to sit down now.

W: Would you like a table by the window?

M: Oh, that would be great! And please bring us some ice water and some menus.

W: OK, here you are. Would you like to take any other drink orders besides water?

M: Yeah. We'll order a bottle of red wine, and we may also order a bottle of white wine depending on what food we decide to have.

W: Very good, sir. I'll bring you our wine list right away, and I'll let our wine expert Ralph know that you may have some questions for him.

M: Great, thanks.

(Text 9)

M: This is so much fun! I've never been to a horse race before.

W: I'm glad you could come. My dad used to take me here all the time when I was a kid. He knew some of the trainers, so we would actually go down onto the track and touch the horses before races!

M: Wow! Do you know how to ride a horse?

W: Yeah, I've done it a few times. But I don't think riding a horse and racing a horse are similar at all!

M: You've got a point there. So, when does the race start?

W: In less than five minutes. But there will be a dozen races today, so if the next one isn't very competitive, we'll still have a chance to see a good race later on.

M: Awesome. Hey, what are all those people doing over there?

W: They're putting money on which horse will win the race.

M: How do they know which will win?

W: They don't know for sure. It's just a way to have fun. All the horses have cool names, and it's a way to get people excited about cheering for them. Look, that one is named Grandpa!

M: Ha-ha!

W: I'd never put my money on a horse, though. It seems like such a waste.

M: You can say that again! Oh, it looks like the race is about to start!

(Text 10)

W: A school bus transporting Maxwell High School students overturned on the corner of Seally Street and Wilten Avenue. The driver of the bus was trying to avoid hitting a car that passed a red light, and the bus overturned with 37 students inside. The driver suffered minor injuries to the face, and two students broke their arms.

Roger Peterson, headmaster of Maxwell High School, said that the driver was not at fault. His reaction helped prevent serious injuries. As soon as the bus overturned, the driver opened the door using the emergency handle and helped the students get off one by one. He informed the police of the students that were injured.

According to John Pineda, who witnessed the accident, the school bus almost hit the car. "The bus wasn't going that fast, but the other car was. If the bus had hit the car, those people inside would surely have been seriously injured, or worse," Pineda said. Pineda also said that the driver of the school bus turned left. If he were to have made a right, rather than a left, he would have surely hit people that were crossing the street.

Dear Bill,

In order to encourage the senior three students to work much harder, an inspirational speech was held in the hall last Thursday. All the senior three students actively participated and experienced the exciting atmosphere on the spot. The speakers, consisting of representatives from each class, introduced their ambitious dreams and ways of self-motivation.

Personally speaking, it provides us with a platform to communicate. Not only does it enrich my campus life, but also it enables me to make full use of the precious learning opportunities in a better way.

Hope you make progress in study!

One day, Thoa took Lilo out, leaving Rosie at home. Just like any other house cat, Rosie must prefer staying at home. Thoa thought. However, several weeks after coming back home, Thoa noticed that the ever abandoned little kitty, which had just gained warmth and love in her eyes, seemed obviously sad once again. It is said that separating a baby animal from its owner or mother is even crueler than you leave it alone on the street. So is the case with Rosie. Then Thoa thought of a creative but crazy idea.

She decided to take out along with the two, Lilo and Rosie! In spite of the fact that people definitely considered them crazy and ridiculous, Thoa still made up her mind to do that. She said "basically whatever I do with Lilo, I bring Rosie along." They weren't just best friends. Actually, Rosie looked up to Lilo and started learning how to live her best with Lilo. With time going by, the ever poor fragile kitten gradually came to life, becoming fearless and strong.
