第四部分 写作:

第一节

Dear Caroline,

Sincere congratulations to you on your distinguished calligraphy works ,which got awarded in your School Cultural Festival . I felt extremely lighthearted the moment informed of your brilliant performance and your consistent efforts eventually paid off.

I've been determined to follow your example to polish my present handwriting . Now , I've made a project on the further study of my calligraphy.

Initially, fixed time to practice writing will be set aside on a daily basis. Additionally, professional guidance from experts like you is a necessity.

Most of all, I'm anxiously dying for your recommendations for my plan.

Yours sincerely,

Li Hua

第二节

"Before that, I need to tell you something really important," I said. "What is it, my dear?" her mom asked. She closed the door and walked closer to me. Our hands almost touched. I could feel her eyes study me, and she watched me quietly. Feeling awful about the matter, my heart pounded wildly. "I'm sorry, I-I spun around and didn't look beforehand. The glass vase behind the couch fell. It broke. We saved the pieces, in case it can be fixed. But it all looks like small pieces of glass now. Could you please forgive me?"

Her mom looked at me, saying nothing for what felt like forever. This terrified me even more. Then suddenly she erupted into a loud scream of joy that filled the entire apartment. She embraced me, kissing me on both cheeks. "Oh, thank you! I always hated that ugly vase, but I had to keep it because it was passed down in my family. Now it's gone! You've done me a huge favor!" She kissed me again. I couldn't stop the tears running down my face. I was so relieved to have apologized, but I was also in shock. This was not at all the reaction I had expected.

Text 1

W: Yes?

M: I'd like one ticket, please.

W: Where to?

M: To Causeway Bay Station.

W: [1] That's 8 dollars.

M: Any discount?

W: [1] You can get a 10% discount if you have an Octopus Card.

M: Thanks.

Text 2

M: Have you found any pairs of shoes that fit?

W: Well, I liked the black pair, but my heels kept slipping out of them. [2] The second pair was comfortable, but the color didn't look good at all. And this pair is a little tight in the front.

Text 3

W: I'm sorry, but I can't let you keep these books past their due date. I have other students waiting for them.

M: But what am I going to do? [3] I need these books to finish my term paper that's due next week.

Text 4

M: Have you been here before?

W: No, this is my first time. [4] I hope they do something nice with my hair.

M: Oh, I'm sure they will. I always have mine done here. Ask for Randy. He is very good.

Text 5

W: What time does the play start?

M: [5] At half past seven. But the lights go down five minutes before that.

Text 6

W: Hello, can I get a taxi? [6] We are just outside the city limits.

M: No problem, ma'am. Where exactly are you going? There is an extra charge for anything over 20 kilometers.

W: The Roxie Club, downtown. There are six of us, though. Do you have any bigger cars, so we don't need to take two taxis?

M: Yes, on the weekends, we do. However, [7] it's three dollars more to have the bigger car sent your way.

W: That will be fine, and we should be well under the 20 kilometers to our destination.

M: Yes, I can see that. Would you like us to send that for you now?

W: Yes, please.

Text 7

M: Hi, Tracy, [8] I am going out of town this weekend, and I was wondering if you could take care of my dog while I am gone. You know my dog, Jaws, don't you?

W: Yeah.

M: Just feed him a kind of dog food today and make sure he has plenty of water in his dish. Oh, and he needs someone to take him for a walk around the block every afternoon.

W: Well, how about if I just throw a bone over the fence to give him some exercise?

M: No, he really needs a walk. Uhh, [9] and he likes to watch the three o'clock Superbone on Channel 4, and then you need to brush his teeth and give him doggy treats at four.

W: You must be out of your mind if you think I am going to watch your dog.[10] I wouldn't watch that doggy even if you pay me.

Text 8

M: Have you booked a table, madam?

W: Yes, we've booked one for two. The name is Morrison.

M: Oh, yes, we have the table for you near the group. This way, please.

W: Group? What group? Oh, the music group, I suppose. [12] I can't stand the noisy places.
[11] Now where's the menu?

M: It's on the wall, madam, on the blackboard.

W: On the blackboard, indeed. I suppose you can't afford proper menus.

M: I'm sorry, madam, but that's the way we always do.

W: [12] I have such a busy afternoon in my office.[12] [13] If I were not so hungry, I would leave immediately.

Text 9

M: Hello, [14] welcome to our program "Today City". I'm Larry. We're going to Louisville Kentucky where our guest Michelle Ray comes from. She is proud of her middle-sized city with a small town feel and big city dreams. [17] Now, Michelle, tell us about your city.

W: Thank you, Larry. [17] Here is my city. Louisville is my city. The first place I take visitors from out of town is to Highland for shopping and night life. [15] When I have delicious Asian food, I always go to the Zen Garden which provides wonderful all vegetable dishes.

M: Wow, that's interesting. Many people go for healthy food now.

W: You can say that again. If I want to go camping and fishing, I go to the Red River area. [16] For completely quiet I can hide away in my house with a good book from one of our public libraries.

M: That all sounds very exciting. I'm sure some of our listeners will include Louisville in their travel plan for their next holiday. Thank you, Michelle.
