Dear fellow schoolmates,

Do you have books piling up in corners, stacked in piles on desks, or overflowing from your bookshelves? An activity entitled "Devote Your Love by Donating a Book" held by our school this month can help you find a perfect destination for these used books.

As its name suggests, to participate in this activity, all you need is books. A stand has been set up at the entrance to the teaching building, where volunteers will be collecting books. These donated books will finally be packed and delivered to children with a burning passion for reading.

Dedicated to helping children in poverty-stricken areas to enjoy the fun of reading, this activity is worth your attention. Due to poverty, these children are unlikely to access the outside world. Books, however, can better link them with the world, igniting their passion for knowledge and inspiring them with hope.

One book may seem trivial, but one book per student in our school can make a big difference. Do you want to share the joy of reading with them? Do you want to give them a chance to broaden their horizons? Please join us in this empowerment activity

I bravely walked to where the others in my group sat. I sat down and we started. Different newspaper columns were assigned according to interests. We did research. Halfway through the week, I felt myself enjoying the company of these three misfits. There was no need for pretending--I grew sincerely interested in learning something about them. Mauro, was struggling with the English language. Juliette was only allowed to wear long skirts or dresses because of her religion. Rachel, who had a whole barrel of unique ideas, wanted to be a fashion designer. What a walk in another person's shoes did for me! And at the end of the semester, Mrs.B gave us an A on that assignment!

I don't recall what the newspaper's headline was, but I did learn something that week. I was given a chance to see other people in a new light. I was given the opportunity to see in myself a potential that inspired my actions in later years. I learned that who we are is more important than what we are or seem to be. They weren't misfits, just people that no one cared enough about to try to understand- except Mrs. B. Her insight, vision and thoughtfulness brought out the potential in four of her students.
