应用文

One possible version:

Dear editor,

Knowing that our school newspaper is collecting English slogans for the Science&Technology Festival to be held in December, I'm writing to recommend mine, which I believe can fully reveal the theme.

"Science and technology brightens our life" is the one I choose since technological advances have brought us tremendous benefits. For instance, we're now living comfortably and conveniently in houses equipped with various intelligent home appliances. Besides, our working efficiency has been dramatically increased with the help of the Internet.

I would appreciate it if you could take my slogan into account. Wish this festival a huge success!

Yours,

Li Hua

One possible version:

After dinner, as agreed, the three kids met back up. When Mike and Tony arrived, Jay was already there, holding the money clip. "What do you think now?" he asked them. "You're right. We can't keep what doesn't belong to us," said Mike. "What about handing the money to the police and they'll find the owner?" suggested Tony. "Great minds think alike," Jay said happily. "Let's go now!" The three kids jumped on their bicycles right away and rode to the police station, where an officer took a careful record about how they found the money clip. He also said that if no one claimed the lost item, it would rightfully be theirs.

The next morning, Jay received a phone call asking him to go to the police station. He was a bit nervous, but when he got there, he learned that the money clip had been claimed, and the owner was very thankful to them. Moreover, he wanted to reward the three kids with a gift card from the local bicycle shop for one hundred dollars. Jay couldn't wait to share the news with Mike and Tony, who were overjoyed that they were helpful for someone and there were even bonus for that. They blushed for their initial reactions to the find and realized that it is far better to be a finder than to be a keeper.

M: Jessica, you needn't come to work tomorrow.

W: This news comes as a shock. Would you tell me the reason?

M: I know you have been working very hard, but your work does not reach the standard required.

2.

M: Could you tell me the starting time for both films?

W: The first begins at 6:45 and will last one and a half hours. After a 5-minute break, the second follows.

3.

W: I'll pass on your praise to our manager right away, sir. Don't forget to take your book and the bag on the table with you.

M: Thanks for your reminding. This Friday evening, we'll come here for the fish, which is our favorite.

4.

M: Look at this one. I got this from a dog that bit me when I was three.

W: Check this out. I got this when I stepped on some glass last month. I lost so much blood and had to go to the emergency room.

5.

W: Did you say you're going to take a vacation next week?

M: I'm going to San Francisco for a couple of days.

W: I wish I could get away for a while too.

6-7

W: Daddy, how are you going to spend your weekend?

M: I need to finish my research paper.

W: Could you go climbing with me?

M: Honey, I am sorry. I have no time.

W: Oh, Daddy, you should do more exercise. You are getting a little heavy.

M: I am afraid you are right. Recently, even going upstairs makes me out of breath.

W: Then go climbing with me, Daddy. Mountain climbing can build your muscles like Popeye's.

M: Terrific! It is also good exercise to keep me fit.

W: I give you my word: you must feel refreshed after mountain climbing.

M: OK, I'll go.

W: It's a deal.

M: Sure.

8-9

M: The restaurant is opening on Thursday at 8:00 p.m. Do you want to join me?

W: It'll be too packed with people that night, won't it?

M: Tons of people will be there. But it's my friend's restaurant, and I want to go celebrate the opening of his new business.

W: Well, do we have to show up at 8:00 p.m.? Or, would it be OK to come a couple of hours later?

M: It's no stress. Arriving late works for me. I'm just glad you can come.

W: I don't have anything formal enough. What should I wear?

M: It's not that type of restaurant. Everyone will be wearing informal clothes.

W: OK, let's do it.

10-12

W: Mom and Dad's 35th wedding anniversary is coming up.

M: Is it? When?

W: It's on the 15th of December. I think we should do something special for them.

M: Like what?

W: We could have a surprise party for them and have a little wedding celebration, or we could send them to a bed and breakfast for a weekend.

M: What do you mean by "little wedding celebration"?

W: It's when you invite all the people who were at their first wedding celebration to watch them say everything again. I went to one like this once, and everyone had a good time.

M: Sounds great! We can do this. Do you think we could organize it by December?

W: It can't be that hard. Mom organized my wedding for me in a month!

M: You're right. Who should we invite?

W: I can copy Mom's address book and send out some emails. I'm sure some of Mom and Dad's friends would be willing to help us.

M: OK, let's talk to the others tonight at dinner about it.

13-16

M: At the age of six, she wrote a story about a rabbit—called Rabbit. At eleven, she wrote her first novel—about seven diamonds and the people who owned them. But she is best known for another of her characters—Harry Potter. Welcome to the show, J. K. Rowling.

W: Thank you. You can call me Jo.

M: Jo, did you study to become a writer?

W: No, not formally. In fact, my degree is in French. But I guess you can say I did study literature in a way, because all my life I have been crazy about books.

M: Where did the idea for Harry Potter come to you?

W: It was in 1989 and I was on a train from Manchester to London. It had been greatly delayed. I later took my notes with me when I went to teach in Portugal. Then in 1993 I moved to Scotland, where I finally completed Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone.

M: Now, you are known as J.K. Rowling. Your first name is Joanne. "K" stands for Kathleen, your grandmother's name. They are nice names. Why don't you use them for your writing?

W: It was to confuse others about my sex. The target audience for Harry Potter was young boys and the publisher didn't think an obviously female author would appeal to them.

17-20

Good morning and welcome to our conference on the toy industry. I'd like to start by saying a few words about what you can expect from the conference, since some of the details on the original plan have changed. After the introduction by Sally Connor, Kenji Nakamura will give a talk. That's from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. He will tell you about the most recent developments in the toy industry in Japan and will show a short film. This will be followed by the question part. Then at 12:00, we'll have a break for lunch. This will be a buffet meal, served in Victoria Hall, which is on the opposite side of the building, next to the library. After lunch, we'll return here for Toys in Britain: Success and Failure. This talk will be given by Robert Price who, as you know, is the owner of a chain of over 200 toy shops in the UK. The next talk 'What's Next for Toys?' will take place immediately after this, at 3:30. This will be given by Sarah Smith, who is, of course, our Sales Manager. Sarah's talk will finish at 5 p.m. After that, tea and juice will be served in the Green Room, which is on the first floor. Please join us there and ...
