Dear Nick,

Learning from your post that you are curious to know how to calculate the area of the triangle space, I'm more than glad to offer you some help.

Firstly, what you need to do is find three sides of the triangle space, among which you measure the longest one. Apart from it, you can find a common point of the other two sides. Then, it is a vital step to draw a line vertically to the longest side and measure it. At last, multiply the numbers and you will get a result, half of which is the area of the triangle space.

For your better understanding, I have attached a picture of the procedures. Feel free to contact me.

Yours

Li Hua

参考范文:

To our surprise, they nodded without thinking. They quickly found some ropes and tools. And they all, including a sixty-year-old man, two tall sons, their wives and several cheerful children, followed us. When reaching the beach, some of us pushed the car while others pulled it out with all strength. We tried hard, but the car didn't move. Just then, my father saw that many faces of this family were covered with sweat, but they didn't leave. Finally, after we tried many times, the car was pulled out of the sand.

My dad was so grateful that he handed some money to the family to thank them. However, they refused. Instead, they invited us to have a meal and offered to dry our coats. At their insistence, we returned to their home again, where the women went to prepare the meal while the men lit a big fire using firewood. The family offered us clean coats and hung our wet ones near the fire. We sat around the fire, and soon felt warm. Later, we enjoyed their delicious meal. That experience made me know that there are many helpful people who don't expect anything in return.
