应用文写作（满分 15 分）

参考范文 1: (115 词)

Recently, we have had a class meeting on sea exploration. Students have divided opinions about it.

Some of us think it important to explore the sea because we can have a better understanding of the marine ecosystem. Secondly, they believe sea exploration makes it possible to find new resources. However, others think it differently. They view it as a threat to the ocean, saying it has caused serious pollution to it. What's worse, they believe the over-exploration of the sea will lead to continuously bad results.

As far as I'm concerned, it's necessary to carry on sea exploration to learn more about the ocean, but we must keep a balance between sea exploration and sea conservation.

参考范文 2: (126 词)

Recently, our class had a meeting on "Exploring the Ocean." We had a productive discussion, and I'd like to share the outcomes and express my viewpoint.

Many students agreed with ocean exploration for two reasons. Firstly, it deepens our understanding of the marine ecosystem. By studying the ocean, we can uncover its diverse species, contributing to valuable scientific discoveries. Additionally, exploring the ocean may reveal new resources that benefit industries and human development. However, some students raised concerns about the negative impacts of ocean exploration. They highlighted the pollution caused by human activities and the potential serious consequences of excessive exploration.

In my view, we must strike a balance between the protection and exploration of marine ecosystem, ensuring a sustainable future for both human society and the oceans.

读后续写（满分 25 分）

It was then that Jenny and I realized we had lost little Robert. We were supposed to be watching him, and now he had disappeared into the snow. With no footprints or any other signs to follow, coupled with the thought that our mother would kill us for losing him, we began to shout his name. We looked around and waited for a response. However, there was no response at all. With nobody to turn to for help, we were at a loss what to do next.

Then suddenly we noticed a little hand rising up out of the snow. It must be Robert. We looked at one another and realized that we must have buried him as we threw the snow over our shoulders. We fought our way through the snow and quickly uncovered him. Luckily, Robert was safe and sound. We make him promise not to tell mom we had “lost” him. Robert happily agreed, because he thought it was fun to be buried alive and wanted to do it again. But for us, it was not fun at all.

It was then that Jenny and I realized we had lost little Robert. Our hearts raced with worry. Grabbing our shovels, we began digging through the deep snow, hoping to uncover him before it was too late. We called out his name, but there was no response. The snow was so thick that it covered our footprints, making it harder to recognize our steps. The freezing cold nipped at our noses, but we kept digging, driven by our love for Robert and the fear of losing him.

Then suddenly we noticed a little hand rising up out of the snow. We cleared away more snow and found Robert smiling at us. He was playing in a snow fort that he had made and didn't realize we were looking for him. We hugged him tightly, feeling a mix of joy and relief flooding our hearts. From that moment on, we realized the importance of sticking together and being more careful in the snow. It was a valuable lesson, which reminded us of the strength of family bonds and the need to stay safe in challenging weather conditions.
