写作（共两节，满分 40 分）

第一节（满分 15 分）

Dear Ms Zhao,

How is it going? Because of the COVID-19 pandemic, the school has carried out online classes in recent days. In order to improve the efficiency of the online English class, I'd like to offer some practical suggestions.

First of all, it is highly recommended that some peaceful music or educational English videos can be shown for the first five minutes, making it easier to create a wonderful learning atmosphere. Additionally, the students are required to raise their own questions related to the previous class so that they are likely to focus their attention on the subject learning. Last but not least, what is of equal importance is that the assignment and check of homework should be conducted at a reasonable pace. Only in this way will the quality of online classes be guaranteed.

I sincerely hope that the suggestions mentioned above will meet with your approval and be taken into consideration. Your early reply is highly appreciated.

Yours,

Li Hua

第二节（满分 25 分）

One possible version:

Paragraph 1: "It is mine, all mine," she said happily to herself. "I will buy Mother a new coat." At that moment she knew she had no right to keep the extra banknote, but a voice whispered, "Keep it; no one will ever know." While the conflict was going on in her mind between good and evil, she was hurrying home as fast as possible. However, before she got home, the Golden Rule sounded in her ears.

Paragraph 2: Suddenly she turned around and rushed along the road with breathless speed. A few minutes later, she found herself at farmer Thompson's inn. The farmer was very surprised to see her. "Sir, you gave me two banknotes by mistake," said she.

Moved by the little girl's honesty, the farmer pulled out a shilling and offered it to her. Jane refused the money for she didn't want to be paid for doing right — she only wished he wouldn't think her dishonest. Then she returned home with a lightened heart, and through the course of a long life she never forgot her first temptation.

M: My present job pays better than the last one, but on the other hand I'm under a lot of pressure.

Text 3

M: It's a nice apartment, and it's in a really great location.

W: Yes. But I need to talk to my husband.

M: OK. My office will be on until seven o'clock. Give me a call when you're ready.

Text 4

M: I'm just going out for a newspaper. Can I get you anything?

W: It's Sarah's birthday today. I've got her a card, but can you buy her some chocolate?

M: She'd prefer a nice plant. I'll get that.

Text 5

M: Would you like to go to that new restaurant tonight?

W: I'd love to! But only if we can take a taxi. It's all the way at the end of the bus line.

M: OK. We can take one directly from work.

Text 6

M: Ah, Anita. Is the design for the conference centre ready?

W: Er, no. I was...

M: But you know I need it tomorrow morning and I asked you to stop working on everything else until you finished it.

W: I know, I've been working on it all day, but I haven't finished it yet, I'm sorry.

W: Could I?

M: Yes, of course. You can see how you get along together, and if things work out, you can keep her. If it doesn't work out, bring her back, no problem.

W: Oh that's a really good idea. Thank you, that's really kind of you.

Well, I think we'll take this one here.

Text 8

W: I know. It sounds good. I'd like to go.

M: I'm taking my little brother. Would you like to come too?

W: That would be great. I love the noise, the music and all the excitement.

Last time I went was in 1999 when I was ten.

M: Oh, really? Well, I like the clowns best. Are you free to- day or tomorrow?

The afternoon show is the best for my brother.

W: Sorry, I'm busy then. I'm going to the cinema this after- noon. I've got the ticket so

I can't change it and I'm working tomorrow afternoon.

M: Oh, well... Can you go on Saturday afternoon? It finishes on 28 August.

That's Saturday.

W: Good. I'm free then.

Text 9

W: Hi, Bert! Sorry I didn't call before but I just got back from shopping. I wanted to get a new pair of shoes. I saw several pairs I liked but they were all too expensive.

M: Oh.

W: Then I looked for some material to make a dress. I found just the colour I wanted but there was only a little material left on the roll, not enough for a dress. So I didn't buy any material after all.

M: Yeah...

W: Next I headed for the food department. I wanted to buy a few cookies but they looked not fresh so I didn't buy any. I just bought a loaf of bread. What a waste of time! Still, at least I didn't spend much money.

M: Maria...

W: So where are we going this evening? I know a new Italian restaurant that has some great dishes, why don't you pick me up at eight o'clock?

M: Well....

Text 10

M: Hello, everyone. I'm going to tell you about the specific skills required to improve your listening comprehension.

At a beginner level, it is of course impossible to understand every word that is being spoken, so a beginner should try to listen for the main idea. The easiest way to improve is to practise listening for the stressed words in a sentence because these are the words that carry the weight of meaning. At an advanced level, students should be able to understand almost every word. They should not only understand the main ideas but also the specific details. You will of course come across words that you don't understand, but you should try to understand the words from the context.

At an intermediate level, that is between beginners and the advanced, you should be doing a mixture of the two, but you will be even more dependent on context. If you want to practise on your own, you can listen to language cassettes, radio and TV broadcasts in English, or better still find a language exchange partner.
