

许昌市 2022-2023 学年下学期期末质量检测试卷参考答案
高二英语

第一部分 听力 (共 20 小题; 每小题 1.5 分, 满分 30 分)

1-5 BCBAC 6-10 BCCAB 11-15 CBBA 16-20 CBABA

第二部分 阅读理解 (共 20 小题; 每小题 2 分, 满分 40 分)

21-25 BCDDBA 26-30 BCADA 31-35 BBAAC 36-40 GFDDBE

第三部分 语言知识运用

第一节 完形填空 (共 20 小题; 每小题 1.5 分, 满分 30 分)

41-45 DBBCA 46-50 BDABC 51-55 ADCAB 56-60 CABAB

第二节 语法填空 (共 10 小题; 每小题 1.5 分, 满分 15 分)

61. Different 62. are found 63. animals 64. a 65. in
66. what 67. deepest 68. usually 69. themselves 70. living

第四部分 写作

第一节 短文改错 (满分 10 分)

Yesterday, my father and I were walking on the road when we noticed the man driving by very slowly. Suddenly, his car ran off the road into a tree. We immediate reached through the broken window and turned ^ the engine. We tried talking to him but getting no response. Fearing he might be choking, we struggle to get him out of the car. As soon as we got him out, we laid him on his sides and he started shaking. Then, I called 120 while my father continued trying to talk to me. After the ambulance arrived, and the staff took him to hospital. My father said what proud he was of me for not be afraid to help.
being

第二节 书面表达 (满分 25 分)

One possible version

Good morning, everyone,

The amount of food waste is shocking and disturbing nowadays, especially when we dine out. Therefore, immediate action should be taken to stop food waste.

Firstly, when we eat out, we should order no more food than we can eat. If we cannot eat all the food up, we should pack up leftovers to take home. Secondly, restaurants should do something to remind consumers not to waste food. For example, they can put some slogans on the walls or on the tables.

Let's be faithful followers of the national "Clean Your Plate" campaign and do our part to help put an end to food waste.

Thanks for your listening!

附录 1: 录音原文

Text1

M: Excuse me, ma'am. Can you tell me where the orange juice is, please?

W: I don't work here. But I think I saw an employee at the vegetable counter.

Text 2

W: Hi, can you tell me who Pat Rich is?

M: Sure. Pat is sitting near the window.

W: That guy wearing a white hat?

M: No, that's not Pat. Pat is wearing a brown shirt.

Text 3

W: I hate when you borrow my things without asking.

M: I'm sorry. I just took your iPod to the gym for an hour. I didn't think you'd be using it.

W: Well, I need it now.

M: OK. It's in my gym bag.

Text 4

M: May I borrow your phone? My battery is dead.

W: Sure.

M: I need to make a call to my wife to let her know my boss had me work late.

W: OK, but please hurry. My taxi will be coming soon.

Text 5

W: Parking at school is impossible. I drove around for half an hour.

M: Did you find a spot?

W: I found a spot, but someone cut in and took it from me.

Text 6

M: Mom, I want a puppy.

W: Let me think about it.

M: Why do you have to think about it?

W: Because puppies cost money.

M: No, they don't. Puppies are free.

W: Yes, but puppies need their shots.

M: Shots for what?

W: So they won't get sick, just like why you get your shots.

M: I hate shots.

W: And puppies have to eat. Food costs money.

M: No problem. I'll give him some food off my plate.

W: Oh, no, you won't. Puppies don't eat vegetables.

Text 7

M: Excuse me, Miss Ames. Can I ask you something?

W: Sure, John. Ask me anything.

M: Okay... Would you please oil your door?

W: What?

M: You always come home so late, and whenever you open the front door, it makes a lot of noise...

W: What do you mean, late? I come back around eleven! That's not late at all.

M: Well, you spend hours after that going in and out, in and out, until my head feels ready to burst.

W: Oh, I'm so sorry to hear that. I'll see what I can do with the door this weekend.

M: Thank you so much, Miss Ames! You're the kindest lady in the world.

Text 8

W: We're finally in our last year of high school. How exciting! I can't wait to graduate.

M: Neither can I, but I don't think this year is going to be that easy.

W: What do you mean?

M: Well, in order to get into a good college, we have to take challenging classes this year.

W: Of course. But we'll still have some time for fun.

M: I don't know... I'm taking advanced math, English, two different science classes...

W: Oh, don't worry. You've taken difficult classes before.

M: Yes, but I'm also volunteering at the hospital three times a week. I think it will help me get into medical school.

W: I'm volunteering, too. I expect to be busy this year, but I still plan to enjoy myself.

M: Where are you volunteering?

W: At the zoo. You should come visit. I'll be there every Saturday and Sunday.

Text 9

M: How was your doctor's appointment?

W: It was fine. He says that I'm pretty healthy overall. But I told him that I have trouble sleeping sometimes, and he offered me sleeping pills.

M: Did you take them?

W: No. I'm afraid they're harmful to my health.

M: So what are you going to do?

W: I think I will schedule an appointment with a psychologist. Maybe I can't sleep because I have too much anxiety. Talking to someone may help.

M: You know, I used to have trouble sleeping. And I found a few things that help. If I exercise outdoors in the morning, it relaxes me all day. Also, if I don't use my phone or computer after 8:00 p.m., then I can easily fall asleep at 10:00.

W: Those are good suggestions. Maybe I should try those things before I pay to see a psychologist.

M: Yeah, you might as well try.

Text 10

This is a statement from the National Weather Service. The biggest storm in twenty years hit Los Angeles this afternoon. Over the past three hours, the downtown area has gotten 2.5 inches of rain. Several roads are closed because of flooding. People who live in low areas have even been rescued by boat. Along the coast, the highway has been closed. Sections of the hills have fallen onto the road. Back in the city, high winds have already knocked down several trees. Hundreds of people are without power. Thousands more homes and businesses are expected to lose power tonight. The Weather Service strongly suggests that people stay at home. If you must drive somewhere, never drive through water that is covering the road. You won't know how deep it is, and your car might get stuck.