Four schools from Beijing were in Hull to put on a show.

The schools, all from the Fengtai District in Beijing, have close ties to the city. Groups of students from Beijing and Hull regularly visit each other as part of a cultural and educational exchange programme.

Today's special performance at Hull City Hall included various forms of traditional Chinese music, dance and acrobatics(杂技).

Lewis Anderson, 26, started learning Chinese at the age of 13 and acts as a translator and organiser when the Chinese students visit the UK. He also currently studies at a university in China.

He said, "Cultural exchanges are really important because children start to appreciate everything in life. They start to learn that there isn't only their view on things and they start to look at other cultures and appreciate their history and beauty. For example, when Hull students visit China, they might visit the Great Wall and enjoy traditional dancing and opera, and then they come home and think 'What do we have that is the equivalent(相等的东西) of that?' and they look at all the different things that we have and it starts to open their minds."

The Chinese students are on a 12-day visit to the UK, visiting eight different cities, including four days in Hull. As part of their visit to Hull, they were invited to visit various museums, galleries and tourist sites in the city.

Lewis said, "The children love exploring Hull because it's rich in history and everywhere you look it's old, beautiful and attractive."

At Hull City Hall the Chinese students performed a traditional Peking Opera, which combines music, vocal performance, dance and acrobatics. The performance is famous for featuring fantastic costumes and dazzling make-up.

榆林市高一年级英语试题-4-(共10页)

24. What did Lewis think of cultural exchanges?
- A. They benefit students in their development.
 - B. They should get more public attention.
 - C. They inspire more children to study in China.
 - D. They bring tradition to life.
25. Which of the following best describes the students' visit to Hull?
- A. It put them on the road to explore the nature.
 - B. It was a month-long tour.
 - C. It changed their attitudes to the costumes.
 - D. It was a journey into history.
26. What did the students do at Hull City Hall?
- A. They only told Chinese stories to the locals.
 - B. They performed Peking Opera.
 - C. They taught the locals Peking Opera.
 - D. They introduced their schools to the locals.
27. What is the text?
- A. A diary.
 - B. A play review.
 - C. A news report.
 - D. A school notice.

On March 22, 2021, the journal Nature Ecology & Evolution published a new map of undiscovered species. This new effort is of great importance for Walter Jetz, a study co-author and professor at Yale University, US. "At the current pace of global environmental change, there is no doubt that many species will die out before we have ever learned about their existence and had the chance to consider their fate," Jetz said.

Less than a decade ago, Yale researchers mapped out the world's life. Now Yale researchers have launched a more ambitious project—creating a map where life has yet to be discovered, whose goal is to help support biodiversity (生物多样性) discovery and preservation across the globe. According to the researchers, "Conservative estimates suggest only 13 to 18 percent of all living species have been identified, although this number could be as low as 1.5 percent." In the rapidly changing global environment, researchers are racing against time to discover the remaining species.

"Finding the missing pieces of the Earth's biodiversity puzzle is therefore crucial to improve biodiversity conservation worldwide," explained the lead author Mario Moura, a biologist at the Federal University of Paraiba in Brazil. The map of undiscovered life is based on a model estimating where unknown species likely exist today, based on environmental, biological and sociological factors. The most undiscovered vertebrates (脊椎动物)—potentially 25 percent of all future discoveries—are expected to live in Brazil, Colombia, Madagascar and Indonesia. Tropical forests in these countries need protection and we must stop deforestation (滥砍滥伐) rates to discover our biodiversity.

榆林市高一年级英语试题-5-(共10页)

“It is a fascinating project that allows us to better know biodiversity patterns on the planet,” Moura said. “We hope to motivate citizen scientists and biodiversity enthusiasts about the importance of species discovery and ignite(点燃) discussions and agreements from those responsible for decision-making and conservation planning.”

28. Why is the new map so important?

- A. It is helpful for us to protect the air.
- B. It will prevent most species dying out.
- C. It helps improve biodiversity conservation only in some countries.
- D. It helps support biodiversity discovery and preservation across the globe.

29. What may Yale researchers agree with?

- A. Only 23 percent of all living species have been identified.
- B. It is a race against time to discover the remaining species.
- C. Many species will go extinct after we have ever learned about them.
- D. The new map is based on a model estimating where the world's plants exist now.

30. What does the underlined word “crucial” mean in Paragraph 3?

- A. Significant.
- B. Useless.
- C. Scary.
- D. Closing.

31. What may be talked about in the following paragraph?

- A. The importance of species discovery.
- B. The impact of deforestation on undiscovered species.
- C. The more specific things we can do to help species discovery.
- D. The development of Nature Ecology & Evolution.

The artificial intelligence tool ChatGPT can offer everything from answers to basic general knowledge questions, to writing essays and poems. Ask ChatGPT to write about the history of the French Revolution or Battles of Hastings, and it will provide a perfect essay in less than a second. It's such a powerful tool openly accessible to any student for free. However, AI-based plagiarism(抄袭) or so called “AIgicism” is fast taking off across student populations internationally, ringing alarm bells in schools and universities around the world.

The developers OpenAI have since decided to prevent the misuse of its technology. The company is developing a system, water marks, for identifying those who cheat by submitting essays written by ChatGPT. By using the system which changes certain works into a recognizable pattern, the machine written text could be identified by anyone looking for the signs. These changes would not be noticeable to the reader. The researchers say that by setting up this kind of security system, it could prevent the technology from being misused for whatever reason. Such measures will also prevent an overdependence on the tool, which still has a long way to go before improving its accuracy, due to the fact that it collects the information from all over the internet. The CEO of OpenAI, Sam Altman, said in a statement that it would be a mistake to depend on it for anything important at this stage.

Schools also in turn have tried to take matters into their own hands, with many across Europe and the US updating their policies to warn of punishments for those who are caught using the program improperly.

榆林市高一年级英语试题-6-(共10页)

Other schools have limited internet network access to ChatGPT on campus. Examiners have the sense to identify essays written by ChatGPT by a lack of emotion or personal experiences in them. This ability is a human advantage—AI will struggle to copy.

32. Why does the author mention French Revolution and Battles of Hastings?
- A. To explain what they are. B. To introduce the history of France.
C. To show the power of ChatGPT. D. To make a comparison between them.
33. What can we learn about the system mentioned in Paragraph 2?
- A. It will make ChatGPT helpless for people.
B. It will probably prevent an overdependence on ChatGPT.
C. The readers are worried about the system's future.
D. It has successfully recognized essays written by ChatGPT.
34. What can we know about AI according to the last paragraph?
- A. AI is able to match humans.
B. AI has no ability.
C. AI has an advantage over humans.
D. There is something that AI can't copy from humans.
35. What can be the best title for the passage?
- A. Actions Against the Misuse of ChatGPT B. ChatGPT Is Forbidden
C. All the Systems of OpenAI D. ChatGPT—A Powerful Tool

榆林市高一年级英语试题-9-(共10页)

第二节 (满分 25 分)

阅读下面材料,根据其内容和所给段落开头语续写两段,使之构成一篇完整的短文。

Phil was a successful businessman. One day, he went for a lunch at a new restaurant. While waiting for his meal, Phil looked at the people in the park. Suddenly, a young boy's face caught his attention.

"Wait, do I know him?" he wondered. He walked out of the restaurant. When he approached the little boy, he saw the boy begging for money. When Phil saw the boy turn towards him, "Yes, I know him!" Phil thought. Phil knew the boy and his mother very well.

Phil was in his senior year when Melissa, the boy's mother, joined the university as a teaching assistant. She met Phil when his teachers wanted to make him leave the university because of his poor performance. Melissa stood up for him and asked his teachers to give him one last chance.

Phil agreed to study under Melissa's guidance and was amazed to see how she taught him the knowledge he couldn't follow earlier. He considered her as his mentor(导师) and respected her a lot.

After graduating, Phil set up his company and applied the knowledge that Melissa had taught him. He quickly made huge profits and was always grateful to Melissa.

"Hey! What happened to your mom?" Phil asked the boy.

"She hasn't been feeling well for the past year," the boy replied while he tried to recognize Phil. "The doctors say she needs immediate surgery(外科手术), but we can't afford it."

"I'm so sorry to hear that," Phil said.

"We sold everything we owned," the boy said. "We paid for her first operation, but now we have nothing. She needs another surgery as soon as possible."

"I can't believe this," Phil said while holding back his tears. "Can you take me to the hospital? I want to meet your mother."

注意:1. 续写词数应为 120 左右;

2. 请按如下格式在答题卡的相应位置作答。

The boy agreed and jumped into Phil's car. _____

Phil sat in the waiting room beside the boy while the doctors performed Melissa's surgery. _____
