Notice

Fellow international students,

We are going to visit the exhibition “The Tea Road” at Hunan Museum this weekend, which is intended to enrich students’ knowledge of Chinese tea culture. We will gather at No.5 Middle School at 8:00 am on Sunday to take the bus, or you can choose to join us at the museum before 8:30 in your own way. All the international students are welcome to join in this activity, and participants will get a souvenir afterwards. If you are interested, please email us at CSEXCHANGE@126.com. We’ll need your information to book all the tickets in advance.

Thank you for your attention and we are looking forward to your participation.

第二节

Out of nowhere, Cheemi appeared. Let me help. “I can easily crawl in and get Carl out,” she offered without a second thought. There was no time to waste. The policemen assisted Cheemi to the window: “Jump!” they told her in a determined tone. “We will drop you a rope ladder through the window.” Without a moment’s hesitation, Cheemi jumped through the window. Carl was sleeping soundly. Picking him up, Cheemi put him on her back and tied him tightly to herself with a bed sheet. Slowly she scaled the ladder and peeped through the window. Carefully she undid the bed sheet and handed it, with the child, to a policeman. Then she exerted the last ounce of strength to crawl out of the window.

Loud cheers greeted Cheemi, a daring and selfless girl. Seeing everyone clapping for her, Cheemi was stunned to a halt and did not know what the fuss was all about. It was at this point that Kelly dragged Cheemi to her and hugged her tightly. Feeling immensely grateful to Cheemi, Kelly learned what mattered a lot was a person’s courage and humanity. Then she asked Cheemi what reward she would like to have for her bravery. To her surprise, Cheemi said in a low voice, “I want to have an opportunity to play with Carl.” Kelly told her that she could stay with her family as long as she wanted. On hearing this, Cheemi gave a jump in the air, twirling round and round. At last she had a place to stay in and play with little Carl.
