第二部分 阅读(共两节，满分 50 分)

第一节(共 15 小题;每小题 2.5 分，满分 37.5 分)

阅读下列短文，从每题所给的 A、B、C、D 四个选项中选出最佳选项。

A

What's on in Melbourne?

Melbourne Magic Show

The lights are not bright and you take your seat in an elegant back room of a five—star Melbourne hotel. The stage is set, the mood is relaxed and the guests are ready to witness the impossible made by Luke Hoeking. You've seen magic shows before but probably never this close.

Cooks' Cottage

Originally located in Yorkshire, England, and built in 1755 by the parents of Captain James Cook, Cooks' Cottage was brought to Melbourne by Russell Grimwade in 1934. Navigator and explorer Captain James Cook never lived in the cottage—he'd been away from home for almost ten years when his father built it—but this connection to the Cook family was enough to prompt(促使)Grimwade to transport the cottage to the other side of the world.

ArtPlay

ArtPlay brings together children (from babies to 13 years of age) and artists to explore and create innovative art experiences that encourage self-expression and playful exchanges. ArtPlay offers creative encounters that are by, for and with children and can be experienced at ArtPlay or in your own home. Bookings or registration at the door is required for all onsite events.

Flight Experience Australia

Prepare for take-off as you sit in the pilot's seat of a Boeing 737 jet airliner and take charge of the controls at Flight Experience Australia. As exciting as the real thing, and used by trainee pilots, the flight simulators(模拟器)include scenic flights, city circuits, team-building flights and even a course to overcome fear of flying.

1. What is Luke Hocking?

- A. A magician.                      B. An architect.                      C. A painter.                      D. A waiter.

2. What did Russell Grimwade do to Cooks' Cottage in 1934?

- A. He sold it to James Cook.                      B. He rebuilt it with his family.
C. He moved it to Australia.                      D. He brought it back to England.

3. Which of the following suits those who want to try driving planes?

- A. ArtPlay.                      B. Cooks' Cottage.
C. Melbourne Magic Show.                      D. Flight Experience Australia.

B

Today, the original Beetle has largely disappeared from the world's roads since Volkswagen stopped producing it in Germany in 1978. But the instantly recognizable car was once everywhere. From the 1970s to the 1990s, more than 21 million Beetles were produced worldwide. Many adults in their 40s or above have a story about the Beetle, or at least a memory.

Part of its universal appeal is its unique look. There's something about the car that just makes people smile: its happy shape, its cheerful colors, and perhaps its small size. However, the smiles that beetles evoked, in people are not simply due to their design. It has a character almost. It has a sort of soul in a way. It's beyond a machine. For the better part of a century this car has been a part in people's lives. Seeing these cars on the road is like a time capsule. It opens people to memories and stories that might otherwise go untold. By allowing us to travel back in time, they remind us of what's important. In today's world, this car represents something very basic and earthy and genuine. Exactly the kind of travel we need right now.

"My parents had three, a white one, then a red one, and then an orange one. It was the car I grew up with," said actor Ewan McGregor. "They would put us in the back of the Beetle in Scotland and drive to France for camping holidays in summer. My first car was a 1978 Beetle and now I own two, parked at my home in Los Angeles.”

McGregor thinks the car’s future is electric. He has recently turned his 1978 model into a fully electric car. “Moving forward, maybe we’ll just have to think: smaller cars, low emissions (排放), and something that makes us feel happy,” he says.

4. When was the production of Beetles stopped in Germany?

- A. In the 1990s.                      B. In the 1980s.                      C. In the late 1970s.                      D. In the early 1960s.

5. Which of the following best explains “evoke” underlined in paragraph 2?

- A. To keep an unpleasant feeling in one’s mind.
B. To find out information about one’s character.
C. To bring a feeling or a memory into one’s mind.
D. To ask somebody to do something in a rude way.

6. Why does Ewan McGregor own two Beetles?

- A. He wants to be reminded of his childhood.
B. They are used to decorate his new home.
C. He has too many children for just one car.
D. His parents have left one of their cars to him.

7. In which section of a newspaper does this text most probably appear?

- A. Advertisement.                      B. Lifestyle.                      C. Environment.                      D. Economy.

C

Last summer, Steven Eaton received more than 200 young people on his organic farm. None of them said that they wanted to make money from farming. Some of them described it as a kind of protest against the idea that success means a big paycheck and many took it as a means to protect the environment.

Steven Eaton understands such idealists(理想主义者)and he was one of them about a decade ago. In 2010, he was in a law school in Washington, DC, but not enjoying it much. Then he applied to work on a farm in West Virginia in summer.

“I felt lost when I was in the city. It’s in the field that I found peace and harmony in my life,” recalls Eaton, who now runs an organic farm close to New York City. “So I went back to West Virginia after graduation.”

Farming—the independence and the connection to something as real as soil and food—was the one thing that he wanted to throw himself into. And he’s been doing it ever since.

But it wasn’t always a big happy folk dance.

“I had a lot of failures in the first couple of years and I didn’t really know what I was doing,” he laughs.

Eventually, he learned to be realistic about farming. “It’s good to be an idealist. But if you’re going to stick with it, and expect to make a living at it, you’ve got to be realistic about the business aspects: Money, managing money, borrowing money, and all the things that a business person has to do. You have to learn to like that and be willing to be good at that. That may even mean burning a little more fossil fuel, so you can get your produce to cities, where people pay higher prices.”

That sense of farming as a practical form of idealism is probably the biggest thing the young people have to learn. When you’re farming, you have to put survival first.

8. Why did many of the young people want to become farmers?

- A. To make a lot of money.
B. To apply their learning to practice.
C. To protect the environment.
D. To study the pollution in agriculture.

9. Which of the following best describes Steven Eaton as a law student?

- A. Idealistic.
B. Realistic.
C. Selfless.
D. Successful.

10. What message does Steven Eaton want to convey to the young people?

- A. Put environment before profit.
B. Be realistic about the business aspects.
C. Stick to your idealism forever.
D. Find a much easier job than farming.

11. What does the author think of Steven Eaton’s advice?

- A. Outdated.
B. Useless.
C. Funny.
D. Valuable.

D

Researchers found that our bodies aren’t just programmed to be nice. They reward us for being kind.

One of them, psychology professor Sonja Lyubomirsky from University of California, has put that concept to the test in many experiments over 20 years and has repeatedly found that people feel better when they are kind to others, even more than when they are kind to themselves. In one experiment, she asked subjects to do an extra three acts of kindness for other people a week and asked a different group to do three acts of self—kindness. They could be small, like opening a door for someone, or big. The same even occurred with spending money on themselves or others. She found that the people who were kind to others became happier and felt more connected to the world than those who just did acts of self—kindness.

Lyubomirsky thinks it is because people spend too much time thinking and worrying about themselves and when they think of others while doing acts of kindness, it redirects them away from their own problems.

The other researchers have found that we prize kindness over any other value. When psychologists put values into ten categories and asked people what was more important, kindness comes out on top, beating physical pleasure, creativity, ambition, security, seeking social justice and power, said University of London psychologist Anat Bardi, who studies value systems.

“Kindness, like religion, does seem to be universal,” said Oliver Curry, a researcher from University of Oxford. “I think reasoning is the secret. We’re kind because under the right circumstances we all benefit from kindness. That is why we donate blood when there are disasters.”

12. Why can being kind to others make people feel happy according to Lyubomirsky?

- A. It takes their attention away from their own problems.
- B. The world becomes much better due to their kindness.
- C. Their problem seems less serious compared to others’.
- D. Their action gives them a sense of power and achievement.

13. Which of the following do people value most according to paragraph 4?

- A. Making a lot of money.
- B. Volunteering and donating.
- C. Inventing a new machine.
- D. Finding a rare and delicious food.

14. What does Oliver Curry stress in his explanation?

- A. Social values.
- B. Personal virtues.
- C. Religious beliefs.
- D. Potential rewards.

15. What is the best title for the text?

- A. We Can Be Programmed to Be Kind
- B. Researchers Find That Being Kind Pays Off
- C. Happier People Tend to Do Kind Acts
- D. Research Shows Random Kindness Helps the Needy

第二节(共 5 小题;每小题 2.5 分, 满分 12.5 分)

阅读下面短文, 从短文后的选项中选出可以填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

Going to college can be exciting, but it’s also nerve wracking. College will require you to excel in a new environment. 16 Fortunately, you can prepare for this stage of your life by following these tips.

Get some reading out of the way. 17 You’ll have to devote time and effort to earning good grades so that you can eventually graduate and land a satisfactory job. If you want to make this process faster and easier when you start college, start by reading different materials weeks or even months before the start of your college life.

18 If you want to prepare for college, it’s important to look back at your performance during high school and work on your academic weak points. Taking this step before your college begins will increase your chances of being an excellent college student. Depending on the subject you struggle with, you can pay for tutorial services or make use of free learning materials online.

Get organized. With the number of things on your plate when you start your journey in college, organization is key. 19 If being organized is still new to you, start by using a centralized calendar (日历). This calendar should contain the schedule of your classes or quizzes. Your social responsibilities — attending family gatherings and meeting with friends — should also be included to avoid any time conflicts in the future.

Start saving. Money, although often provided by your parents or guardians, can affect your experiences in college. It'll be very tough for you to focus on studying if you're too worried about how you can buy your meals or afford your tuition (学费). 20

- A. Improve your academic weak points.
- B. Create a reading-friendly environment.
- C. Set goals for your future academic performance.
- D. And this kind of environment usually causes stress and anxiety.
- E. One of the biggest reasons why you need to go to college is to learn.
- F. Therefore, to avoid any financial stress in college, learn how to save money.
- G. It can help you balance your time and energy between different responsibilities.

But Bryan Morin was 24 these days. He stayed awake in bed night after night when the health crisis spread rapidly in the country. Eventually, it brought life to a full stop and led to massive 25 as businesses closed down.

Bryan Morin was 26 not to let this happen at his pizza restaurant.

"If our workers don't have a salary, they won't be able to 27 their rent, their credit card bills and their gas," he said. "I decide to do the right thing and take the 28. I'll make it up later in the future."

So about two weeks ago, he borrowed $50,000 from the bank. He 29 to his workers that they'd have a job for at least the next two months and that he'd do everything possible to keep the checks flowing after that.

As word of the promise got around, customers began 30. They usually put an extra $10 on top of the usual 20% 31.

But then, something 32 happened. In order to show their 33 for the health workers, people called and asked Bryan Morin to charge their credit cards for food to be sent to those frontline heroes. In just two days last week, Bryan Morin 34 took in more than $4,000.

"This is such a 35 time," said Kirsten Phillips, a nurse at one of the hospitals. "But we care about each other. This is also the best pizza I've ever had."

第二节(共 10 小题;每小题 1.5 分, 满分 15 分)

阅读下面短文, 在空白处填入 1 个适当的单词或括号内单词的正确形式。

The Taj Mahal is 36 (wide) considered one of the most beautiful buildings ever 37 (create). It is not only a permanent monument to Shah Jahan's love for his wife but also one of the long-lasting artistic 38 (achievement) of the ancient India.

The Taj Mahal's familiar round tops are surrounded with four towers, from 39 Indians are called to pray. Each tower 40 (build) with a slight outward lean (倾斜) to protect those round tops in case one of them should fall down. Two red sandstone buildings are also set up on either side of the main building. One, to the west, is a church, 41 other is a guesthouse. All these buildings are set within a beautiful garden, complete with a huge pool to reflect the beauty of the Taj Mahal in the water.

The inside of the main building is a striking (if smallish) space that 42 (invite) some leisurely exploration. 43 the best part of any visit to the Taj Mahal should be spent looking at the building from the outside. The white stonewalls change in color to match the mood of the world outside—a phenomenon so 44 (amaze) that it should be enjoyed in 45 (variety) conditions, such as in the rosy sunrise or in the magical light of a full moon.

第二节(满分 25 分)

47. 阅读下面材料, 根据其内容和所给段落开头语续写两段, 使之构成一篇完整的短文。

Kate double-checked the words on her spelling test. Ms. Cormack said that whoever won in her class's Spelling Challenge today, they'd win a brand new dictionary. Plus, the teacher had promised to do a handstand if anyone got a perfect score.

Three more words to go. N-i-c-e-l-y. Q-u-i-c-k-ly. H-o-n-e-s-t-y. Wait! She'd spelled "honesty", not "honestly". She hurriedly erased the t-y and wrote l-y before handing in her paper.

Ms. Cormack graded the test papers at break. Meanwhile, Kate sat restlessly in her seat with her fingers crossed. Then, Ms. Cormack walked to the front of the class and cleared her throat. As if she were an Olympic gymnast, Ms. Cormack did a perfect handstand.

"Congratulations, Kate! You did it!" she announced while standing on her hands.

The whole class broke into applause! Ms. Cormack righted herself and presented Kate with her prize. Kate smiled as she read the label on the box:

To Kate Carter, for her perfect score in the Spelling Challenge.

"Is everything OK?" Mom asked as Kate rushed through the front door after school. Kate didn't answer. As if by magic, she took out her spelling test paper and prize and showed them to her mother. Mom hugged her, asking her to put the test paper on the fridge so that Dad could see it when he got home.

Kate took another look at the test paper before putting it on the fridge. Suddenly, her hands stopped in mid-air. She just couldn't believe her eyes. "Honesly"?

YES! H—O—N—E—S—L—Y!

Mom sensed something unusual and asked why. Kate put the test paper into her backpack and explained that she was just too excited. Mom brought her some tea. Yes, a “t” was exactly what she needed.

After drinking a little, Kate kept walking in her bedroom, lost in thought. How could she tell the class she hadn’t earned the prize and that Ms. Cormack did the handstand for nothing?

- 注意：1. 续写词数应为 150 左右；
2. 请按如下格式在答题卡的相应位置作答。

Two hours later Dad came home.

Dear Lynn,

I'm writing to invite you to attend an outdoor concert held in the park near our school at 9:00 am this Saturday.

The concert will last three hours. Many popular songs will be performed by famous singers from our city, which will definitely make a deep impression on us. What's more, your favourite star will give his brilliant performance. I believe he will entrance the audience with his classical singing.

All in all, it will be a great music event. I do hope you could join me to enjoy the feast.

Yours,

Li Hua

第二节(满分 25 分)

【47 题答案】

【答案】 One possible version:

Two hours later Dad came home. Kate greeted him at the door with her Mom who urged her to show her test paper to him. Reluctantly, she went to her room and pulled out the test paper. Dad fixed his eyes on the paper and his faced brightened. Kate pretended to be smiling all the time. But she was afraid to look at him in the eye. That night she felt so guilty that she had a sleepless night for the first time in her life.

Eventually, she knew what she should do. The next morning, she went to Ms. Cormack's office and handed her the spelling paper and the dictionary. She told her teacher what had happened. For a moment, Ms. Cormack stood there, quietly reading the label on the dictionary. Then she picked up her pen and replaced the word "perfect" with "honest" before returning the dictionary to Kate.
