Dusty Thune said. “It was just an amazing moment of victory for him. While winning the competition was important, the real prize was overcoming adversity(困境,逆境) to do so.”

Teams came from as far away as Germany, Finland, Ecuador, Argentina, and even Turkey, to compete in the competition. Of course there are many other ice sculpting contests in the US and abroad. The Illinois competition takes place in Rockford from February 8 to February 10, 2023. Now in its 37th year, the contest draws crowds of 50,000 people.

The largest US competition is the Ice Alaska World Ice Art Championship, according to Kompster, a site about competitions. Over 70 teams compete every year in the event that lasts 132 hours. There are several categories including single block, multi-block, and one just for youth.

These ice sculptures last just as long as the weather stays cold. “It’s worth it to come to Stillwater right now and check it out because this won’t be around forever,” Dusty Thune told FOX 9. Sadly, in just a few weeks, Journey will melt but the inspiration will last much, much longer.

28. What do Kelly Thune’s words in Paragraph 3 suggest?

- A. The award was a surprise. B. The award made him excited.
C. He took pride in their works. D. They carved many sculptures.

29. What does Dusty Thune attach most importance to?

- A. Winning a prize. B. Overcoming difficulty.
C. Cooperating with Aichinger. D. Participating in the competition.

30. What do we know about the Illinois competition?

- A. It dates back to 1885. B. It is very competitive.
C. It is mainly a national event. D. It is the largest US competition.

31. What can be a suitable title for the text?

- A. The Unique Life of Journey
B. Winter’s Snow Sculpting Competition
C. The Largest US Competition in Alaska
D. Inspiration’s Influence on Snow Sculptors

D

The largest living land animal in Asia, Asian elephants once wandered the grasslands and rainforests that stretched the continent. Prior to the 1700s, habitats for the now-endangered pachyderms(厚皮动物) were relatively stable. But now, a new study looking at land-use data from the years 850 to 2015 reveals a bleak situation in which the researchers estimate more than 64% of historic suitable elephant habitat across Asia has been lost.

“Land-use practices in Asia, including farming and agriculture, cut the average habitat area size more than 80%, from 99,000 to 16,000 square kilometers,” explains the University of California at San Diego (UCSD). “Habitats suitable for Asian elephants across Asia have decreased by over 64%—equal to 3.3 million square kilometers of land—since the year 1700.”

Shermin de Silva, a UCSD member who led the research team, and his colleagues looked at the change in the spread and fragmentation(分裂) of elephant ecosystems in 13 countries between 850 and 2015 and calculated the change in suitable habitat from 1700 to 2015. Their findings suggest that China, India, Bangladesh, Thailand, Vietnam, and Sumatra have each lost more than half of their suitable elephant habitat range.

With the remaining elephant populations not having sufficient habitat, there is increased potential for human-elephant conflict—a problem we see with wildlife across the globe.

“In the 1600s and 1700s there is evidence of a dramatic change inland use, not just in Asia, but globally,” said de Silva, who is also the founder of the non-profit Trunks & Leaves. “Around the world we see a really dramatic transformation that has consequences that persist(持续存在) even to this day. We used present-day locations where we know there are elephants, together with the corresponding(相应的) environmental features based on the LUH data sets, to infer where similar habitats existed in the past. In order for us to build a more just and sustainable society, we have to understand the history of how we got here. This study is one step toward that understanding.”

32. What does the underlined word “bleak” mean in Paragraph 1?

- A. Complex. B. Illegal. C. Depressing. D. Favorable.

33. Why are the figures given in Paragraph 2?

- A. To explain why elephant habitats has declined.
B. To urge people to take action to protect elephants.
C. To blame locals for neglecting to protect elephants.
D. To illustrate how terrible the habitat of elephants is.

第二节 (满分 25 分)

阅读下面材料,根据其内容和所给段落开头语续写两段,使之构成一篇完整的短文。

It was just three days from Thanksgiving, and my husband, Gerald, and I were very far from home. As a touring music duo(二人组), we'd got used to being away from our family for months on end. We'd missed countless birthdays, anniversaries, and family celebrations because of our different work schedule.

But this was the first time we were going to be away from our families for Thanksgiving. Strictly speaking, I knew we would be away for Thanksgiving, but the reality of it didn't really dawn on(使开始明白) me before we hit the road. Now, the date appeared on the calendar.

I could just see it: In three days, we would be alone in a hotel room, eating cheap take-out, watching reruns(重播的电视节目) on hotel cable, and feeling very sorry for ourselves.

The thought of it was more than I could bear. I decided to be proactive(主动出击的). I wrote a post on Facebook, "We're about to spend Thanksgiving alone in Winnipeg, Manitoba. Does anyone know of a church or community center hosting a public dinner?"

A friend immediately wrote back, “My friends live outside the city. I’ll connect you with them.” So, three days later, we drove to the small town of Dauphin, Manitoba, to spend Thanksgiving with strangers.

We pulled up in front of a small, lakeside house. A smiling couple waved at us from the front porch. Gerald and I stepped out of the car, a little tired and a little hungry.

As we stepped into Betty and Gary’s home, we were immediately met with warmth. The wood stove took every bit of fall chill out of the air. The sun on the lake was beautiful, and the smell of food enveloped(包住,裹住) us like a soft blanket.

And the warmth didn’t just come from the home or the food. It came from Betty, Gary, and their guests. We gathered around the table; introductions were made. We discovered that no one there was family by blood. Instead, we were all connected by something much greater.

Our worry melted away as we were drawn into this circle of friendship. We told stories, shared laughs, and gave thanks.

注意：

1. 续写词数应为 150 左右；
2. 请按如下格式在答题卡的相应位置作答。

Paragraph 1: After the dinner, I quietly pulled Betty aside, saying, “We would perform a mini-concert for your guests as our contribution to the evening.” _____ _____ _____ _____ _____ Paragraph 2: Since that time, Betty and Gary have become our true friends. _____ _____ _____ _____ _____
