An English host wanted

Our school radio started five years ago. Now we need an English programme host to make our English programmes cater to our exchange students.

If you are interested in programme hosting and have fluency in English, you should have greater chance of getting the job. Of course, you'll be hardworking and be enthusiastic about work. Above all, you need to have team spirit.

You can come to the office of the Students' Union to sign up for it before this Friday afternoon. Hope you are accepted as an English host.

Para1: In a lighthearted tone, I asked, "Just how friendly is Friendly Ford?" The salesmen chuckled heartily at my playful inquiry and assured me that Friendly Ford was indeed committed to its name and reputation. Within a blink of an eye, they began to work efficiently, trying hard to revive my dead battery, even though I was clearly not a potential customer. Sweating heavily, they did not show any discontentment or impatience. Soon enough, my car resumed its power as if given a brand new life thanks to their efforts. I could hardly express how lucky and blessed I was to receive immediate aids from completely strangers.

Para2: This heartwarming sequence of events serves as a reminder of the profound impact two simple words—"Thank you"—can have. Once my car roared to life again, I offered to pay them for their invaluable help, but both politely declined. They shook my hand, genuinely saying "It's all part of being Friendly Ford, where our commitment to customers goes beyond just selling cars." Grateful beyond words for their kindness, I returned home that evening with a heart full of appreciation. Later that week, I decided to send them a thank-you note, just as I had done years ago with the older couple who had rescued us during our Christmas journey.

Para1: In a lighthearted tone, I asked, "Just how friendly is Friendly Ford?"The salesman responded with hearty laughter, assuring me that the dealership lived up to its name. They jumped right into action, working diligently to jump-start my car's dead battery. Their faces glistened with sweat, but not a trace of impatience showed. Soon, my car roared back to life, as if it had received a new lease on automotive existence, thanks to these unexpected heroes. It was hard to put into words how fortunate I felt to receive such swift assistance from total strangers.

Para2: This heartwarming sequence of events serves as a reminder of the profound impact two simple words—"Thank you"—can have. Once my car was back in action, I insisted on compensating them for their invaluable help. However, both of them graciously declined, shaking my hand warmly. They explained that this act of kindness was just a part of Friendly Ford's commitment to its customers, extending far beyond the realm of car sales. Overflowing with gratitude, I headed home that evening, my heart brimming with appreciation. Later that week, I made the decision to send them a thank-you note, much like I had done years ago for the kind couple who had come to our rescue during that unforgettable Christmas journey.

1. 【原文】 M: When does the lecture begin?

W: I think it starts at three in the afternoon.

M: It finishes at four, right? I have a meeting then.

W: No, this one lasts for two hours. You'll have to reschedule your four o'clock appointment.

2. 【原文】 W: Now, let's get some clothes together for your trip.

M: OK, Mum. Well, I'll need my walking boots for a start. Oh, and my red T-shirt.

W: Forget the T-shirt. You need a thick coat. The forecast says it's going to snow.

3. 【原文】 M: I saw Larry last night. He was looking very wet.

W: But it wasn't raining last night.

M: Well, he hadn't seen the hotel swimming pool and had fallen in with his clothes on.

4. 【原文】 M: Hi, Beth. My family and I are having a few people over for dinner tomorrow night. We might watch a movie. Can you come?

W: Sure. I'd love to come. That'd be more fun than eating restaurant alone.

5. 【原文】 W: How about this one? It has two bedrooms with a big garden.

M: Well, it doesn't matter. I just care about where it is.

W: It's not far from your office. And there are many restaurants, and a big shopping center nearby.

【原文】 M: Good morning! Is there anything I can do for you?

W: I made my keyboard wet when I had some juice today, and now the keys are stuck. I can't type up my report.

M: I see.

W: So how soon would you be able to fix it?

M: Well, we're not too busy right now. Why don't you just wait and we can probably repair it for you within 30 minutes.

W: Actually, I have to do some shopping with my friend. I'll just come back and pick up the keyboard when I'm done.

M: That's OK.

【原文】W: Dad, do you know which bus we should take?

M: Er, let me check the bus guide first.

W: Be quick, please.

M: Why can't I find the bus your mother told me yesterday evening?

W: Mum told you the directions three times.

M: But I was watching an NBA match on TV at that time. And it was a really exciting one.

W: We need to ask someone. Here come Bus No.29 and Bus No.37.

M: Oh, I got it on the guide. We need to take Bus No. 52 to go to the Book Building. Here it is coming. Linda, come on. Let's go.

【原文】M: Hi, you have reached the front desk of Cozy Hotel. How may I help you?

W: I'm interested in booking a room for next Friday. Are there any with an ocean view available?

M: I will check for you. Yes, it looks like there's one available on the ninth floor. How many nights do you plan to stay? You know, it is off season now, and we are offering a promotion right now. If you stay at least three nights you'll receive a free breakfast or lunch. And there is a special menu at our restaurant. You just need to order it online.

W: That sounds like a great deal, but my meeting will last only two days. So I'll only need two nights.

M: Do you need any wake-up call?

W: No. Thanks, anyway.

【原文】W: Today in the studio we have Matthew who recently won the prize for running a youth club. So Matthew, how did it all start?

M: I used to be a member of the youth club when I was a student at the school there.

W: When did you first join the club?

M: In 2015. But the club has been running for more than 10 years. It was started in 2008.

W: You've become a leader at the club. But you are also studying at college.

M: Yes. I am studying engineering. After graduation, I want to build bridges actually. I now teach the guitar at the club on Saturday afternoons.

W: Great. You won the prize because you helped a local hospital, right?

M: Yes. We did lots of different things to raise money, like we baked cakes to sell at the school. The greatest thing we did was a car wash at the park. We washed over 500 cars.

听下面一段独白，回答 17 至 20 小题。

【原文】W: There is nowhere else on Earth like Kakadu National Park in the northern area of Australia. The moment you drive through its gate you are entering an ancient area full of wildlife — a place for the 500 species of birds and animals to live. Here, in this vast area of land, the size of Belgium, or half of the size of Austria, you will see sights that will take your breath away.

There's loads to do and it's not easy to choose. Kakadu Culture Camp was a good choice, but we finally decided on the Yellow water Cruise, which is more popular. It was a wonderful experience and probably the best attraction in Kakadu National Park. We were highly impressed we had just returned from Kruger National Park in South Africa and were worried the experience wouldn't be so good. Happily, the Yellow water Cruise was surely the highlight of Kakadu. We bought the Sunrise & Sunset ticket from the website, as they were offering a low price. During the tour of the Yellow Water Cruise, there were only 6 people on the boat, so we could easily walk around and take pictures of various fish and active bird life which exists in the wet season. We saw loads of fresh and saltwater fish and an endless list of bird life. And the prettiest is the Azure Kingfisher, a brightly-colored bird hunting fish, which is the most impressive part of the tour.
