第一节 应用文写作

Dear Susan,

I'm writing to thank you for those wonderful days in London. I will never forget my visit.

I was a little anxious before I arrived in London because I didn't know what to expect. But when I arrived, I knew there's no need to worry. You gave me a very warm welcome and made me feel at home very quickly. I will always remember your kindness and hospitality. And thank you also for arranging so many interesting activities, which I know took a great deal of your precious time.

It was very kind of you to do so much for me and I appreciate it more than I can say.

Sincerely yours,

Li Hua

第二节 读后续写

The next day, the deliveryman returned the picture book, saying the girl could not be reached. The boy felt that what they had done was wrong and that the picture book should fly to the little girl by itself. So he wrote a note as well, reading "I'm sorry to have kept you waiting. It took me some days to practise flying so that I could fly to your house." The boy put it in the book and took them to the little girl's house. But there was no one at home. Her neighbor told him that the girl's mother was in hospital and that she had to stay with her. To make sure the book could fly onto the girl's hands, he resolved to pay a visit to her house after school every day.

Until one day, the big boy heard a woman and a girl talking in the house. He knocked at the door and heard someone answer it. He gently laid the picture book at the door, and quickly hid himself behind the house. The girl came out and looked around, only to find the book. She picked it up, read the note, and screamed excitedly, “Mom, my favorite picture book does fly over to me.” Her mother was amazed, and then said to her with a smile, “Your dream is to have your favorite book fly home. You see, it has come true. Remember, always have a dream, never despair!”
