第一节 应用文

Dear Jack,

I'm more than delighted to know that a trip, whose theme is "the World meets China" will be held in your school, and you're coming to China. Both the trips, Dunhuang and Beijing are highly recommended.

Personally, I prefer the tour of Dunhuang (Beijing), a world-class tourist destination and a centre of cultural and commercial exchange. Besides, the scenery here is amazing, with many well-known spots. Most importantly, given that you want to have a better understanding of China's past and present, I think Dunhuang (Beijing) is the ideal choice.

Hopefully, my advice will be of great help for you and wish you a wonderful time in China.

Paragraph 1: I said, "Hello, Mr. Kim. I'm Sophia Brown." "I was your daughter's third-grade teacher when your family was living in Detroit. Do you remember me?" I added. All of a sudden, his eyes were filled with surprise, looking at me. Then he said excitedly, "Yes. Mrs. Brown. Mary Kay has been looking for you for thirty years!" Then he sent my phone number to Mary. Not long afterward, my phone rang. It was Mary Kay who had become a grown woman and also a teacher. I was so glad that we contacted each other again

Paragraph 2: She told me how much my class had influenced her life. It increased her confidence in herself, and most importantly, it led to her later determination to influence her students as I did on her. Not long after that talk, Mary went to further study at Harvard University and became a professor. She continued to influence lives for decades to follow. I had never thought one action mattered so much. Meanwhile, I was so glad that she kept encouraging and supporting her students who might face what she had faced. I was proud of her.

(Text 1)

M: Please write your information here and pay for it. I'll get you a medical record.

W: OK. How much do I need to pay for the registration?

(Text 2)

M: Is this your first time participating in the sports meeting in senior high school?

W: Yes. It is great. Look, our neighbor, Bruce, will take part in a relay race. Let's go and have a look.

M: OK.

(Text 3)

M: I feel confused about the grammar. I'm so frustrated.

W: You'll feel better if you try your best. Be confident, nothing is impossible to a willing heart.

(Text 4)

M: I couldn't enter the Windows system and I lost all my files on the computer.

W: Oh, it's a disaster.

M: Yeah, and I just stored the video of my grandpa on it. What a pity!

(Text 5)

M: Well, I'd like to have beef, rice and carrots. What about you?

W: I'll try the fish. It's said that they cook fish in an unusual way here.

(Text 6)

M: First of all, where are you from?

W: I was born in Miami, but we moved to New York City when I was 3. I lived there until I was 17. Then I moved to Los Angeles to go to college.

M: So, did your parents help you with your tuition fees?

W: No, I worked at a movie theater in my spare time and many customers loved the way I made the juice.

(Text 7)

W: Steve. It's been a month since I saw you. What have you been up to?

M: I just started working out. I joined the Samsung Health Club last weekend.

W: What do you mostly do at the club?

M: I concentrate mostly on my legs, chest, arms and stomach. Exercising is hard work, but it is a great feeling when I get done.

W: I should start exercising more. I have a running machine at home. I used to use it, but I soon got sick of it.

M: Exercising at home is hard. The environment is very essential for exercising. Why not join a gym? I have a couple of guest passes. You can check out my health club if you want to.

W: That's a good idea. Let's go over there this weekend.

M: Great. I'll call you Saturday morning.

(Text 8)

M: Hi, Customer Service Desk. What can I do for you?

W: Hello. I bought a washing machine here a few months ago. It stopped washing yesterday. Can I return it or get it fixed?

M: Do you have your receipt?

W: Yes, I do.

M: When did you buy it from our store?

W: Four months ago.

M: Sorry, you can't return it because it has been a long time since you purchased it. You can return it to us within three months of purchase.

W: The instructions say it has a one-year guarantee.

M: Yes, after three months, you can call the company that manufactures it because it's still under their guarantee. Their phone number should be in the instructions.

W: Okay. I'll call them. Thank you.

(Text 9)

W: Professor John Shepherd is the inventor of Jeremy, a remarkable robot. Professor, how did Jeremy perform?

M: Well, he came through with flying colors. He can whistle while he works.

W: So, what's the point of inventing robots like this one?

M: There are two reasons. The main reason is to build useful devices. There's growing demand from the general public for robots in their homes.

W: And the other reason?

M: Well, researchers tried to make robots intelligent and ask them to do complicated tasks. But that didn't always work, because the real world is complex and changeable. Then we considered ants, which are very successful at what they do, even though they don't have large brains. We thought we should design something simpler - robots that do just a few tasks.

W: So how close are we to robots that can do the housework?

M: We still have a long way to go. There is one household robot that can help you clean your house when you are out, but the trouble is that it doesn't know what you want to throw away and what you don't.

(Text 10)

Hi, I'm here today to tell you about my gap' year, which I took about 20 years ago. Unlike many students who went traveling or got some work experience before going to university, I applied to work for a charity after finishing my degree. I was sent to Trinidad to teach students. I was there to be with the children and tell stories, sing songs and play games. Oh, we also went camping in the jungle once. Every time I arrived at the school, the kids would run towards me with big smiles on their faces. I taught English two days a week in a primary school for children aged 6 to 11. The kids all wore neat and clean uniforms. They were so respectful and enthusiastic. I've been teaching for many years and I still think those were the best students I've ever taught. Overall, what I took from the experience was a sense of being in another culture. As humans, we all share many characteristics, but we express ourselves in various ways.
