书面表达:

第一节

Dear Jackson,

I'm more than delighted and excited that you show a strong interest in giant pandas because I am a big fan of the national treasure. As you know, giant pandas have gained huge popularity in the whole world. Since the founding of the People's Republic of China in 1949, China has sent about 23 giant pandas to nine countries as a token of friendship and goodwill. The Chinese government put an end to the giveaway policy in 1982 due to the scarcity of the species and the need for better protection of the animal.

Hopefully, you will have the chance to visit the cute animal in China and surely I will keep you company.

Yours,

Li Hua

W: Well, the light in our room was turned off at 11:30 as usual. Alice lit a candle to continue reading, but she fell asleep with the candle still burning beside her. Then her bed caught fire. Fortunately, the firemen saved us.

M: Sure. What's up?

W: Well, I have to get my little Jackson some medicine.

M: Oh, is everything all right?

W: Yes, of course. It's not like he's sick or anything. I give him medicine every month as part of his regular care, so he doesn't get any diseases from insects or other dogs.

M: Oh, right. I do that for Fargo, too.

W: Yeah. That was what I was going to ask you about. Where do you buy your dog's medicine? I was shocked by the prices.

M: Yeah. Unfortunately, most special pet stores sell them at fixed prices. You can usually find discounts of ten or fifteen percent for a lot of those stores, though.

W: Well, that's not a huge help for something that's two hundred dollars per year! Isn't there any other way?

M: Well, you can order some medicines from websites that are based in other countries where the prices are lower. You do have to pay for shipping, though, which can be expensive. But I think it's a good way to save money, if you're willing to take the risk of buying medicine from overseas. (停 20 秒)

Text 10

Well, we finally found a home. It's been two years and five months since my family and I moved out of our old house, and we've been staying in many different places since then. We've actually moved six times, to six different cities! I must admit I really hate all the moving around. The thing I like least is that I have to change schools all the time. I'll be at a school for a few months and start to make friends during that time. Then my dad's job suddenly sends him to another location, and I find myself having to start all over again—say good-bye to the old friends, cry a little, and hope I'll fit in at the new school. Sometimes, I wish my parents would just let me study on my own at home. But that's not allowed in Germany—it's illegal for children to only be taught at home by their parents. If we were in the U.S. or England, I could do it. But I guess there were some benefits to moving around so much. After school, my parents would take me to different cultural events. Each state in Germany has its own unique traditions, so I learned a lot about the places I called "home" for such a short time. (停 20 秒)

现在你有两分钟的时间将试卷上的答案转涂到答题卡上。(停 2 分钟)
