附：听力原文

Text 1

W: Your story is fantastic, Joe, but the spelling is bad. Worst of all, your handwriting is nothing if not awful. Please rewrite it. This time concentrate on your expressions, please.

M: Sorry, Miss Green. I will improve my work. Did I make any grammar mistakes?

W: Only a few.

Text 2

M: Hi, Sophie, our class are going to the beach this Sunday. Would you like to come together?

W: The beach? But it's only April. It's far too cold to go swimming!

M: The plan is to clean up the beach for the summer. We hope people will feel pleasant when they sunbathe.

Text 3

W: Someone must have stolen flowers from my front garden. Nearly all my roses were gone. Have you seen anyone around my garden?

M: No, but I saw your son selling red roses outside the cinema this afternoon. Even your next-door neighbour Charles bought one. It's Valentine's Day today.

Text 4

W: Let's go to the seaside this summer. I bet the children will like it. They've got tired of taking a road trip to another country.

M: That sounds like a great idea. And it'll give me a chance to enjoy surfing and stay away from work.

W: Agreed then.

Text 5

M: Cynthia is really amazing. She took a history test on Monday. To prepare for it, she read and memorised four books during two weeks.

W: And did she make it?

M: Not only did she make it, but also she passed with a high score.

Text 6

W: Can you come up with a good movie we could watch tonight?

M: Well, you need to tell me what genre you like. Love stories? Adventure movies? Or documentaries? I know many good movies, and they're mostly to my taste. But I'm not sure about yours.

W: Well, I'll tell you what I don't like. I can't stand violence or crime. Other than that, I'm not very particular about what to watch. I just want a nice film to spend the evening. I'm not expecting the best movie of this year. I'm tired and want to relax.

M: Fine. Then I'll select a nice comedy for you. Laughter is the best medicine, after all.

W: Wow, I'm looking forward to it.

Text 7

W: How did you enjoy your weekend at the seaside?

M: It started very well on Saturday, but on the second day we got a very unpleasant surprise.

W: What happened?

M: That afternoon, while everyone was enjoying the sunshine on the beach or playing in the sea, the sky suddenly went dark. A strong wind started blowing. Before people could gather their stuff and run for cover, there was a heavy shower of hail. All the people got into a panic, and left their things behind and ran to the beach restaurant. The hailstones were so big that many people got hurt!

W: Really? Small balls of ice in the middle of summer?

M: Apparently, it's fairly common there. The locals said such storms sometimes blow from Iceland or Greenland.

W: It sounds like you did have a different and unforgettable weekend.

Text 8

M: Good afternoon, Miss Smith. Take a seat, please. Could you tell me about yourself including your education and your work experience?

W: Of course. I'm Angela Smith, 27, born here in London. I have a degree in Tourism Management. And I worked in a travel agency for four years. Unfortunately, it had to close due to the COVID-19.

M: I see. What are your greatest strengths?

W: Well, I'm good with people. I can speak German, French and Spanish. And I have experience of selling holiday packages.

M: What about your computer skills?

W: Most of my previous work was done on computers. I can use the computer very well.

M: OK. It seems you're the right person we're looking for. If you take the job, you'll be selling insurance online from 8:30 a.m. till 4:30 p.m. Your base salary will be 1200 euros a month, and you'll get performance-related pay. We'll offer you a laptop and a telephone. Do you have any questions?

W: When will I report for duty?

M: You are expected to start after the weekend.

Text 9

M: Claire, I heard that you were admitted into Harvard University, right?

W: Yes, I received the letter on Friday, the day before yesterday.

M: Congratulations! You must have worked hard during your high school.

W: Well, I always got A's on my tests. I took three separate courses for four months for the SAT.

M: What do you think is the most important during learning?

W: In my opinion, it's the learning habit that helped me earn the letter from Harvard. Believe it or not, I never burned the midnight oil.

M: Why didn't you choose Princeton? I remember your aunt graduated from Princeton years ago.

W: My best friend Madelyn joined Harvard last year, I really wanted to go there because of her, although Princeton offered me a scholarship.

M: Oh, I got it. When will you go to Harvard?

W: In September. Before that, I'll fly to China and other Asian countries. I've been longing to taste food and meet people there. I've decided to work part-time to cover my expenses at college.

Text 10

Good evening, everyone. I've been asked to explain to you in simple terms what the world is facing in the current climate emergency. I'll explain the crises under five headings, each with a brief explanation. Firstly, drought. As temperature rises, the land dries up. Farmers have to face increasing problems of growing crops. This may cause shortages of food and drinking water. Then, flooding. Coastal flooding happens when winds from a storm push water from the ocean onto land. A flash flood is caused by dam breaks or heavy rain. Urban flooding specifically occurs when rainfall damages the local drainage system. Thirdly, the rising sea level. Melted water from the poles is expected to cause a rise in sea level, which will endanger the world's coastal cities. In addition, coral reefs will die, and many ocean life forms will disappear. Fourthly, animal extinction. Over the past thirty years, the Antarctic penguin population has shrunk by two thirds. Up north, polar bears are dying because their habitat, sea ice, is becoming thinner and thinner. Biologist Dr. Ian Stirling fears that polar bears are facing certain extinction. And lastly, hurricanes. Hurricanes are getting stronger and more frequent because warm air rises rapidly. According to the weather expert James Elsner of Florida State University, storms have been fierce since 1981.
