It took about a whole minute for her to stammer her name and class. By that time, murmurs were heard in the audience. “Why is she taking so long?” people around me asked. I shifted nervously in my seat, wishing I were somewhere else. Finally, my sister started to sing. I braced myself for the worst. She opened her mouth, and I was transfixed—she sang effortlessly and melodiously. Her voice rang unselfconsciously through the hall, beautiful in its power. I exhaled and watched in wonder.

Paragraph 2 (version 1):

How did I not know that my sister could sing so sweetly? How could I have doubted my sister’s abilities? I listened ever so carefully to the lyrics she had composed all by herself and my heart gave way. I had been so wrong. Guilt and shame filled my heart as I listened to my sibling. Although she knew that I was embarrassed by her and was reluctant to attend her concert, she had forgiven me; she had never taken anything that I had done to her to heart. It was then that I resolved to love her unconditionally. It was as if a veil had been lifted from my eyes, and my heart was full.

Paragraph 2 (version 2):

How did I not know that my sister could sing so sweetly? Watching her on stage that day, I realized my mistake in judging her solely based on her social awkwardness. Her talent and determination surpassed any momentary embarrassment I’d felt. After her performance, I approached her backstage, and we shared a warm hug. Tears welled up in my eyes as I expressed my pride. From that day, I no longer cared about others’ opinions of my sister’s differences. I’d learned a valuable lesson about acceptance and the importance of celebrating uniqueness. My sister didn’t just perform; she offered me a new perspective on life—more compassionate and understanding.

Text 1

W: It is said that the famous writer's new play will be on the screen in January or February.

M: Well, according to what some officials said, we won't be able to watch the TV play until March.

Text 2

W: Max, can you do me a favor? I can't reach that book on the top of the shelf.

M: Sure, Jane. But that's too high. I guess we need to ask Dad for help.

Text 3

W: Be careful! I've been told this part is very steep with hard rocks.

M: I think I need a break. We drove two hours to get here. I'm too exhausted to keep climbing.

W: But if we don't hurry, we can not see the sunset.

M: All right, then.

Text 4

W: This line doesn't seem to be moving. Have you been waiting long?

M: Yes. The automatic machine isn't working, so people have to be here.

W: Too bad. I need to get back to the office, but I also have to withdraw some money.

Text 5

W: Mike, I didn't sleep a bit last night.

M: Why? What's bothering you?

M: Er...no. I must have dropped it somewhere. I just bought the camera a few days ago.

W: Did you purchase a protection plan?

M: No, I didn't.

M: I know I should, but Boston's so far away. My brother has always been my rock and it's my first year in high school.
W: ⑨ Don't take it too badly. You can video chat with him. You won't feel he's far away.
M: That's true, I suppose. But still, it would be better if he found a job here.
W: ⑨ Come on. Boston is a really cool city. You can go there for vacations.

W: Hello, South City Cycling Club.
M: Oh, hi. Er... I want to find out how to join the club.
W: OK. I can help you with that. Well, there are basically two types of adult membership. If you're pretty serious about cycling, there is the Full Membership. That costs $260. If you just want to do some cycling in your free time, you'd better be with the Recreational Membership.
M: ⑪ I'll go with the Recreational Membership, I think.
W: ⑪ That's $110 if you're over 19, and $95 if you're under.
M: ⑪ I'm 25.
W: ⑫ And once you're a member, you're also permitted to wear our kit when you're out cycling.
M: Yes, I've seen cyclists wearing it. ⑫ So, can I buy that at the club or at a shopping mall?
W: ⑫ No, it's made to order by a company in Brisbane. You can find them online. They're called Jerriz. You can use your membership number to put in an order on their website.

W: ⑭ Good evening, everyone! Our guest is Kevin Olsen. Kevin works on a coast. His job is to rescue whales, fish and sea birds when they get into trouble with pollution. Welcome to the program, Kevin.
M: Glad to be here, thank you.
W: What do you do in your job?
M: I spend a lot of time with sea animals, trying to learn what things they need in the environment. If we know that, we can help them survive in the future.
W: ⑮ Can you tell us something about the disaster a short time ago?
M: ⑮ OK. What happened recently is the oil disaster, the birds had oil on their wings, so they couldn't fly. And they couldn't eat the fish because the fish were covered with oil.
W: ⑯ Why did you choose this job? It's tough since you have to work outdoors.
M: Well, ⑰ I was always interested in the world of the ocean and how the plants and animals fit together in their system.
W: Thank you for coming and sharing your story with our audience, Kevin.
M: My pleasure.

Text 10

W: White T-shirts are very common in our daily life. But do you know the history of the white T-shirts? Well, white cotton T-shirts were first worn by the US Navy and by 1948, every American soldier was wearing one too. ⑱ But it was Hollywood films that made the T-shirt really popular: actors Marlon Brando and James Dean wore classic white T-shirts in On the Waterfront and Rebel Without a Cause. After these films, every young man wanted to wear one. ⑲ Women didn't begin to wear T-shirts until the end of the 1950s. In the 1959 French film Breathless, American actress Jean Seberg wore a T-shirt advertising an English language newspaper. This started a new fashion for T-shirts for women. Later, the T-shirt became a way of saying something important. ⑳ For example, soon after the black American leader Angela Davis went to prison in 1970, people all around the world were wearing T-shirts with the message "Free Angela". In the 1970s, French fashion designer Yves Saint Laurent designed a famous blue T-shirt with his name in white letters.
