Four of the Best Exhibitions to Visit

Image of the West

Illustrations for different reading materials, such as books and magazines, help readers of many ages better understand the content. Meanwhile they also stand alone as quality works of art for fine techniques and colors. Image of the West, an illustration exhibition until July 28, gathers such works by famous artists in Europe and the United States. Reservation is required.

Open on July 12-17, 2021. 10 am-5 pm.

Closed on Mondays.

Tsinghua University Art Museum, Haidian district. 010-62781012.

Tibetan Art Exhibition

The Yan Huang Art Museum is showing its collection of folk art objects, including embroidered textile pieces (绣制的纺织品) made by housewives and paper-cuttings by well-known folk artists across the nation. The exhibition through August 1 shows the bold folk art and the profound cultural meanings being implied.

Open on July 15, 2021. 10 am-6 pm.

Closed on July 12.

9 Huizhonglu, Yayuncun, Chaoyang District. 010-64912902.

Lacquer Art Show

An exhibition now at the Zhejiang Provincial Museum until Oct 23, 2022, reviews the glory of lacquer art (漆艺) in ancient China, showing some 87 fine objects in the museum collection dated between the Song (960-1279) and Qing (1644-1911) dynasties. Come and book before availability.

Open on July 12, 2021. 1-5 pm.

Closed on Mondays.

Zhejiang Provincial Museum, 25 Gushan Lu, Hangzhou. 0571-86013085.

The Lasting Charm of Cultural Relics

This exhibition at Sichuan Muszum examines the long-standing influence of the exchanges between different civilizations which were promoted by the ancient Silk Road. The exhibition through August 20 uses nearly 300 artifacts to reflect the diversity and dynamics of these cultures.

Open on July 11, 2021. 9 am-1 pm.

B

When you feel thankful for things you've received or something that's happened, that's gratitude. Gratitude is how you relate to others, when you see yourself in connection with things larger than yourself.

Last year, I felt compelled (强迫的) to bake cookies for complete strangers to say "thank you". However, what occurred later changed my view about it. One day, I'd had to call 999 because I found my partner unconscious on the floor. Within minutes, a police car and an ambulance arrived, filled with first responders who took my partner away to the nearest hospital, where he received the critical care he needed.

A week later, still impressed by the kindness of strangers, I wrote thank-you notes to those helpful first responders and baked for them. It was a small gesture with a big impact...When I dropped off still-warm cookies at the police and fire stations, they thanked me for delivering gifts. Thanking me? All I'd done was bake; they'd saved a life.

I drove away feeling light and happy, partly because I'd done a good deed, but mostly because I was amazed that there are great people who do life-saving work and expect nothing in return.

Later, I realized that my natural high might have been more than it seemed. Sharing thoughts of gratitude and performing acts of kindness can boost your mood. Gratitude really does have an impact on happiness, which increases life satisfaction. I am the one who indeed benefits from expressing thanks. Then why not thank others?

4. What changed the author's view last year?
 - A. The stranger's gifts.
 - B. The doctors' critical care.
 - C. My partner's thank-you notes
 - D. The police's thanks for my cookies

5. Which word can describe the author's feeling in Paragraph 3?

- A. Proud. B. Doubtful. C. Unexpected D. Relieved.

6. What does the underlined sentence in Paragraph 5 suggest?

- A. The writer was extremely excited. B. The writer couldn't control herself.
C. The writer looked taller than before D. The writer thought highly of the nature.

7. Which of the following may the writer agree with?

- A. You reap what you sow. B. Roses given, fragrance in hand
C. God helps those who help themselves D. With a grateful heart, life will be better.

Like so many of our regular habits, the routine of our morning make-up may have changed since last year. A daily shave, applying a full face of make-up, soaking yourself in your favorite scent, or working on the decorations through your hair might feel a little over the top for those living under strict lockdown.

But beauty isn't just about looking good; it's also about feeling good. A recent report by consulting firm McKinsey & Company found that we're buying more products that support our need for simple pleasures.

Last year saw Jots of ups and downs of beauty sales worldwide. In China, February sales were down 80% from 2019, but by the next month sales were only down by 20%-a fairly remarkable bounce back given these unprecedented (空前的) circumstances. In the US, Amazon sales nail-care and hair dye products were up 218% and 172% respectively.

Despite these increases, the McKinsey report shows we're still currently spending less across the board on beauty due. Obviously, with very few hair or beauty salons open anywhere, more people had to DIY their own beauty treatments; and the impact that the coronavirus crisis has had on jobs and income has also made us less confident shoppers.

Early reports from Asia suggest the beauty market could be very resilient. For example, in 2001, the term "Lipstick Index" was coined in response to the rise in lipstick sales one month after 9/11. Even during the most difficult and uncertain times, little beauty products, though not cheap indeed, find their way into our shopping baskets. This is because beauty is a consumer market full of choices, and therefore more affordable: instead of an expensive handbag or dress, you can own just a small nail polish or lipstick. Without going out often, treating yourself to a face cream or some bath salts can lighten up our lives at home.

Now, wearing a face mask in public is far more common in cities around the world. Chinese online retail giant Alibaba reported that eye cosmetics sales were up 150%. Is it time for the "Mascara (睫毛膏) Index"?

8. What is the purpose of writing paragraph 11?

- A. To describe a scene. B. To introduce a topic.
C. To give instructions on make-up. D. To provide background information.

9. Which of the following contributes to the increases in beauty sales of 2020?

- A. Government's lockdown policy
C. People's obsession with beauty products.
- B. The increase in people's salaries.
D. The sales promotion from the beauty industry.

10. What does the underlined word “resilient” mean in paragraph 5?

- A. Able to grow.
C. Staying tough in hard time.
- B. Ready to fight back.
D. Returning to the same track.

11. What might be best title for the text?

- A. The Beauty Industry Comes Back
C. Lost-crisis Economy in Beauty Industry
- B. The Pursuit of Beauty Never Stops
D. Self-comfort Measures During Lockdown

Shetara Sims had weathered some tough years. In 2012, her eldest daughter died from a car accident in Kansas City, Missouri. Last year, the single mother lost her job because of the economic depression. She had only $7 in her pocket as she headed into the grocery store one day last July with her 12-year-old daughter, Rakiya Edmondson.

And then Lady Luck cut them some slack. Sims and her daughter found a dollar bill in the parking lot. Maybe this was their day, they told each other. So, they bought a lottery ticket—and won $100.

But before they could spend their bonus, Rakiya had an idea. The news in Kansas City that week had been filled with stories about a police officer, Tyler Moss, who had been seriously injured in the line of duty. He was in critical condition Rakiya and her mother had never forgotten how kind the police had been after their own family member died. “The police were really there for us,” Sims says. “They came to see my kids. They were fathers, friends, and therapists.” Rakiya wanted to give their lottery winnings to Officer Moss's family. Her mom readily agreed.

On July 10, Sims called the police and made an unidentified donation. Moved by her generous expression of thanks the officers did what they could do best – they tracked Sims down. When she explained the family's motivation, the officers could hardly believe it. “With her current financial hardship, we encouraged her to keep the money,” the department later explained. “She refused, saying the officer's family needed it and police needed to know they were supported.”

By then, that feeling of support was shared. The police set up a GoFundMe page for Sims, whom they described as “The Woman with the Heart of Gold.” Their goal was $10,000. As of January 11, 2021, they had received $165,405. Ever better: Officer Moss, who had a 1 percent chance of survival, is out of the hospital and recovering.

12. What does the underlined phrase in paragraph 2 mean?

- A. Giving them up
C. Ridding them of debt.
- B. Doing them a favor.
D. Inspiring them with an idea.

13. Why did Sims and her daughter make the donation?

- A. To extend thanks to the police
C. To get additional financial support.
- B. To make a name on the Internet.
D. To set up a fund for the officer Moss.

14. How did the police help Sims finally?
- A. They raised money for her. B. They bought lottery for her.
C. They provided medical care D. They saved her eldest daughter.

15. What can we learn from Sims' story?
- A. Hardship makes a man wise. B. Don't judge a book by its cover.
C. One good turn deserves another. D. A friend in need is a friend indeed.

第二节（共5小题；每小题2.5分，满分12.5分）

阅读短文，从短文后的选项中选出可以填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

It's been a common problem that most of popular kids' apps contain some form of marketing. App developers and platforms make more money when more ads are viewed or clicked. Children, with their weaker self-control, are a prime target. Some developers use manipulative (操纵性的) approaches like showing a fancy present, which takes the children to an ad when clicked. 16 Don't worry. Here's how you can intervene:

Examine before downloading apps. Your children can't download apps without you entering your password, so you can review apps before they are downloaded. 17 People usually post complaints when apps are packed with ads.

Teach your kids to look for help. When ads pop up inside apps, make sure your kids don't play or download the advertised game immediately. 18 In this way, they learn to identify strange ads and have the apps removed.

19 You may start with these questions: Do you ever get tricked by the app, like you think something is a present, and they just show you an ad? Do they ever force you to watch ads to get more fun things in the app?

Make complaint if necessary. Even some school-issued apps pressure families to purchase accounts. If this happens to you, complain to your school district.

Raising kids in the Internet age means teaching them to recognize when someone is trying to sell them new things or new ideas, from toys to misinformation. 20

- A. Ask your children often.
B. Ask about your kid' preferences
C. They have to understand the tricks of in-app advertising.
D. With proper guidance, kids can grow up to be critical digital thinkers.
E. Instead, they should be taught to be alert, and turn to adults for advice
F. Then you can read reviews on websites or check-the reviews in the app store
G. Unfortunately, there are no laws restricting how many ads can pop up in children's apps

阅读下面短文, 从每题所给的 A、B、C、D 四个选项中选出可以填入空白处的最佳选项。

When living in Los Angeles, I walked my dog every Sunday morning around a lake near my house. Week after week, I saw the same elderly woman sitting at the edge of the 21 with a small metal cage next to her.

My 22 finally got the best of me and I 23 the woman one day. I noticed that it was 24 a small trap and she had three small turtles in it. In her lap, there was a fourth turtle that she was carefully 25 down with asponge. I greeted her and asked what she did with these turtles every week. Smiling, she explained that she was cleaning their shells because any seaweed that 26 on a turtle's shell reduces its 27 to absorb heat and slows down their swimming.

I was 28 as the woman continued, "I do this every Sunday morning, or life-threatening 29 might appear." "But don't most turtles live their 30 lives with seaweed on their shells?" I asked. The woman agreed that was the 31. I replied, "Well then, you are 32 to do this, but most turtles don't have people around to help them with this." The woman laughed as she looked 33 down at the small turtle. "Young man, to the world I may be one person, but to this little turtle I am the world."

Indeed, though you may not be able to change the world or 34 everyone, you can still make a big 35 in one person's life. Never choose to not do anything just because you can't do everything.

March 13, Saturday

Fine

参考词汇：树苗 seedling

阅读下面材料，根据其内容和所给段落开头语续写两段，使之构成一篇完整的短文。

Emily was waiting at the door for her children, Lisa and Emma. It was the last day of their exams and she had prepared tasty snacks for them

“Mom, you know Ted from my class? He always disturbed others during the exam and copied from them.”

“Hey, let me speak now,” Emma said and kept giggling all the time. “Mom, one of the girls in my class had prepared a matchbox instead of a soapbox.”

The kids continued speaking, giggling, and enjoyed pizzas till late evening. Emily was pleased to know that her kids shared everything with her. If the kids faced any problem or had an interesting piece of news, they always shared it with their mother. They were not scared of or nervous about their mother.

In the vacation, Emily's elder sister, Susan, visited their place along with her two kids, Peggy and Cora. Susan observed Emily's friendly behavior with her kids and opposed it.

“What is this, Emily? You never scold your kids. They are not scared of you,” She said to her younger sister.

“Susan, kids should never be scared of their parents. They should feel free when they communicate with parents.”

“Weren't we afraid of our parents? Don't you remember you used to be nervous while talking to Dad? Yet we had better communication,” Susan argued.

“Well, we are not living in the same age. We need to be more open-minded with children now.”

But Susan was not satisfied with her explanation. She continued complaining about how Emily's kids were dependent on her mother for everything.

“Why do you have to prepare different dishes each time when they are hungry? Peggy directly calls the nearby hotel and places an order. You don't have to spend time on it.”

Until Susan left, she had almost brain washed Emily by constantly reminding her that she was not bringing up her kids properly. When Susan left, Emily let out a sigh of relief.

注意：

1.续写词数应为150左右；

2.请按如下格式在答题卡的相应位置作答。

When the school started again, Emily's attitude towards her kids changed a little bit.

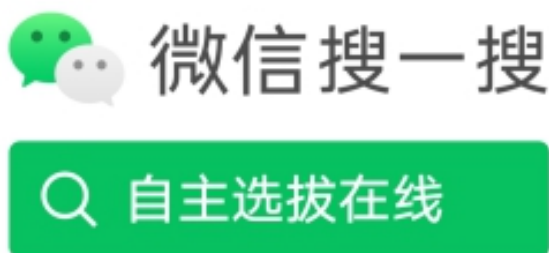

Emily noticed the change in the kids' behavior soon and found it unbearable.
