Music and Me

Music has changed my life. Two years ago, I found myself going through a tough time. My grades dropped, my passion for studies faded and even my friends and teachers didn't understand me. There was nobody I could pour my heart out to, so I felt extremely depressed. But lucky for me, I found a wonderful cure--music. It suddenly entered my dark world like the sunlight in the sky, which brightened my day. From then on, I have been a big music fan for I am well aware that music has a magic power which helps us get rid of all unwanted thoughts, anxieties, and stress from our lives. Without any doubt, music is a great medicine for healing the wounds of our minds.

第二节（满分 25 分）

I knew what needed to be done. I trudged through the snow to the woods behind our house. And then I found the most beautiful, perfectly shaped pine tree! I had found our Christmas tree. Then I made a tree and set it up on our back porch. Digging through our Christmas decorations, I found strands of lights and began untangling them as my father had done so many Christmases past. I thought it was one of the most beautiful trees I had ever seen. Having that tree kept my dad with us throughout the holiday season—our first without him.

For me, the best gift that year was seeing the expression on my mother's face when she saw the tree twinkling in the dark. As tears streamed down her face, I said, "Merry Christmas, Momma." With that, she gathered me up in such a warm embrace that I can still feel it to this day. Now, almost five decades later, that holiday still holds a very special place in my heart for I was able to bring Christmas home that year for both my mother and me. And what a wonderful gift it was.
