The sound of children's laughter is not something you often hear at a hospital. Yet in the hallways of Children's Health of Orange County (CHOC Hospital) in Orange, California, the joyous sound of kids having fun will soon be a common occurrence. That's because Honda teamed up with the hospital to create a first-of-its-kind electric car made just for kids!

Shogo, the child-sized electric ride-on car, was built by Honda through their charitable "Project Courage", an initiative aimed at making hospital stays a little bit more fun for children battling serious illnesses.

Shogo was made entirely by Honda's in house engineers, and they're incredibly proud of it. The car has superseded wheelchairs at CHOC. Now, patients can drive themselves to their treatments in various parts of the hospital, giving them a reason to look forward to these procedures instead of fearing them.

"As someone who spent time in the hospital as a young child, I really hope the number one objective of our Shogo is to ease the hardship of a hospital stay by providing kids with a lasting positive memory about that experience," said Randall Smock, a senior designer of vehicles at American Honda Motor Co., Inc. "Every element of Shogo was designed to accommodate different needs of young children."

With a simple stop/go mechanism they can easily use, Shogo is meant for child drivers aged 4 through 9. It has no doors so kids can easily get in and out, and it has a soft-to-the-touch interior (内部) that can be washed to stay clean in a hospital setting, and it comes equipped with an I. V. (静脉注射) pole holder. There's even a toy holder and a horn with different sound options, and kids can create their own custom license plate for the built-in holder.

24. What is Project Courage committed to doing?
- A. Bringing joy to hospitalized kids.
B. Investing in designing cars for kids.
C. Donating to the children's hospital.
D. Producing medicines for kids' diseases.

25. What does the underlined word “superseded” in paragraph 3 mean?
A. Renewed.      B. Withdrawn.      C. Controlled.      D. Replaced.
26. What made Randall Smock develop Shogo?
A. His love for vehicles.      B. His work as a doctor.
C. His dream of curing illness.      D. His experience as a child.
27. What does the last paragraph focus on concerning Shogo?
A. Its development.      B. Its safety.      C. Its practicality.      D. Its popularity.

C

Recently, California, Arizona, and Nevada reached an agreement to cut back on the amount of water they take from the Colorado River, which represents progress in tackling the river’s shortage of water.

The river begins in Wyoming and flows through Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, and California. Much of the water is used for farming. There’re also several dams (大坝) that create large reservoirs (水库) and use the river’s water to create electricity. The river also supplies drinking water to cities and towns across the US southwest. The amount of water each state gets is based on agreements that were made in 1922. At that time, people thought the river had more water than it actually did. This meant that the states were promised—and have been taking out—too much water. Besides, since the early 2000s, the area has also been experiencing an extremely serious and long-lasting drought called a “megadrought”.

The US government told the states that they needed to come up with a plan to seriously cut water use on the Colorado River. The states argued for months, but couldn’t agree on a plan. The US government threatened that if the states couldn’t reach an agreement by May 30, 2023, the government would step in with its own plan. Then, on May 22, the states agreed on a plan that they will cut the amount of water they use by about 13% by 2026. The US has offered $1.2 billion to help pay the groups that are willing to take the cuts.

The plan, which still has to be approved by the US government, is a big step forward. But the Colorado River is still running low. And the cuts agreed to under the new plan are smaller than the US government demanded last year. To keep water in this important river, the states and the US government will have to come up with much more serious cuts that will start in 2026.

28. What can be inferred about the Colorado River’s water?
A. It is shared by 6 states.      B. It serves many purposes.
C. It has ever stopped flowing.      D. It can’t feed its reservoirs.
29. What did the US government ask the states to do about the Colorado River?
A. Introduce some policies to protect its dams.
B. Collect money to prevent it being polluted.
C. Unite and take all measures to save its water.
D. Have a long debate on cutting its water use.
30. What does the author think of the plan?
A. It’s imperfect.      B. It’s useless.
C. It’s ever-lasting.      D. It’s risk-taking.
31. In which section of a newspaper may this text appear?
A. Health.      B. Environment.      C. Business.      D. Science.

D

Scientists have created a new tool that can know what you mean. It works by using an Artificial Intelligence (AI) program to translate brain activity into words. Scientists say the

If you're ready to start working hard, it's time to start today. The first step is to recognize what you need to start doing, and then start taking steps right away. 9 Maintaining a healthy balance between determination, self-discipline, and rest will help ensure that you stay on track with your hard-working attitude.

Additionally, don't give up no matter how hard it is or how defeated you feel. Remember that every journey consists of many quests and even the biggest heroes don't always win their battles instantly. 40 That belief is the key to unlocking your true potential and pushing yourself beyond what you may have initially thought possible. Imagining what life could be like if you don't give up can help motivate you to stay on course and unlock the amazing things within you.

- A. True hard work does not guarantee success.
- B. Working hard brings many positive outcomes.
- C. Believe in yourself and your ability to improve.
- D. That recognition will get you into a hard-working mode.
- E. You should remember to stay motivated when times are tough.
- F. All things considered, investing energy into hard work pays off.
- G. Surrounding yourself with supportive people will be a good help.

第二节 (共 10 小题;每小题 1.5 分,满分 15 分)

阅读下面短文,在空白处填入 1 个适当的单词或括号内单词的正确形式。

Over the past decades, young people 56 (develop) an appreciation for role models from a variety of different backgrounds.

Last year, the research 57 (lead) by the Beijing Academy of Educational Sciences showed that scientists, actors and doctors were ranked 58 the top three categories of idols by primary and middle school students. In 2019, a survey by Xinhuanet showed that 81.12 percent of the university students polled (受访) identified 59 (they) role models as heroes, successful businessmen, scientists and ordinary people who did great things.

“People 60 (represent) different but good values are seen as role models at different periods,” Ji Shaoting, head of Future Affairs Administration, a company that deals with the sci-fi business, told Xinhua.

“Young people today were born at a time of fast economic and 61 (society) development, and have witnessed great progress in science and technology,” she said.

However, she noted, the changes do not mean that the “Lei Feng spirit” is losing its luster (光彩). On the contrary, even in science fiction, the helpfulness and 62 (kind) of people are still essential. For instance, 63 character that actor Wu Jing played in “The Wandering Earth” series 64 (final) lost his life to save the earth. His selfless action is the typical feature of 65 Chinese people refer to as the “Lei Feng spirit”.

第四部分 写作(共两节,满分 40 分)

第一节 (满分 15 分)

假定你是李华,你校英语俱乐部将举办“用英语讲好中国故事”的演讲比赛,现需要一名主持人。请你写一封自荐信,内容包括:

1. 你的优势;
2. 你的打算。

注意:

1. 写作词数应为 80 左右;
2. 请在答题卡的相应位置作答。

第二节 (满分 25 分)

阅读下面材料,根据其内容和所给段落开头语续写两段,使之构成一篇完整的短文。

Ms. Freebody liked her job as a teacher. She paid attention to every pupil of hers and special attention to kids who needed extra care, like Tammy Harper.

Tammy belonged to a poor family, and he was hard-working but failed in all subjects. To her shock, one day, Freebody saw Tammy doing something strange. He was picking up several dollar bills fallen off the floor and stuffing them back into his locker (锁柜). The teacher's heart sank. "Where did he get all that money?" was the first question that crossed her worried mind.

The whole school knew Tammy came from a humble background, so the money certainly wasn't something he got from home. Besides, the boy was so poor that he couldn't even afford new clothes and shoes. "Oh dear, this child..." Freebody's heart shuddered (发抖) to think where Tammy could've gotten all that money. She couldn't just turn a blind eye to it as she cared about him. He was a little boy, after all.

Forcing a smile on her face, she decided to approach him. He was busy picking up the bills, so she gave him a helping hand, and he seemed terrified. "Ms. Freebody ... You ... This is my money!" he said, and Freebody didn't say anything. She picked up the last of the fallen bills, folded her arms across her chest, and then spoke, "And would you mind telling me where you got them, child?"

Freebody noticed the tears welling up in Tammy's eyes. "Can ... Can you please give me that money back, Ms. Freebody? I ... I need it. Please?"

"There you go," she said, extending the bills to him, and he quickly stuffed them in his locker. Then he said a small "thank you"

But Freebody wanted to get to the bottom of the matter. "Where did you get that money, Tammy? Are you in any trouble? Did someone force you to get into the wrong kind of things ... like stealing?"

注意:

1. 续写词数应为 150 左右;
2. 请按如下格式在答题卡的相应位置作答。

"My dad ... My younger sister Miley wants to go to school," Tammy whispered.

Hearing that, Freebody said, "Take me to your home. I'll talk to your dad."
