As parents, most of us are keen to encourage a love of reading in our children but sometimes it can be hard to know how to do this. All four of these books contain loads of useful tips about how to get your kids into reading and stand out as my favourite books. The books should be widely available in libraries and bookshops. You can also buy them online with free postage anywhere in the world through the Book Depository.

	Rocket Your Child into Reading Best known as an Australian children's author, Jackie French also struggled at school with reading and writing and knows first-hand all about the impact these struggles have on a child's self-esteem and attitude to school and learning. In this book, Jackie looks at the different ways children learn. She has some wonderful ideas about how parents can help struggling readers.
	Reading Magic The book is beautifully written with lots of information about the importance of reading aloud to children. As well as being an author of the most beautiful picture books for young children, Mem Fox is also a teacher and literacy advocate so her advice is backed up with lots of research. Reading Magic is quite a short book, full of humour and very easy to read.
	The Reading Bug Before Paul Jennings started writing full-time, he was a special-education teacher and then a speech pathologist. Like Mem, Paul believes parents are the best reading teachers in the world and that parental involvement is key to a child learning to read and use language. This is another easy-to-read book which presents simple strategies to show how parents can use books to enrich their children's lives.
	The Read-Aloud Handbook This book was originally published in 1979 and is still in print. It contains many ideas to encourage reading in children. Originally a journalist, Jim Trelease has some interesting things to say about the US education system, with its emphasis on testing almost to the exclusion of all else. Like Mem Fox, Jim is a passionate advocate for children's literacy and the importance of reading to children.

At most schools in the U.S., it's customary to have a cheer squad (啦啦队) to support athletics. Cheerleaders drum up excitement before games, put on jaw-dropping routines at games, and provide support on the sidelines of most events. But students who participate in performing and visual arts seldom receive the same displays of support as athletes do. A group of students at Mountain View High School in Orem, Utah, decided to change that fact by creating a cheer squad just for the arts.

Their school's athletics cheer squad is called the Bruin Crazyies, so they named their artistic cheer squad the Bruin Classics! This is a new brand with which they could create something for all of the arts, whether it is band, dance show, photography and art galleries — to give them some publicity.

and cheer them on.

Classics wear a “uniform” of bow ties to indicate the “sense of class” artistic efforts bring their school. They carry around signs to advertise the upcoming play, musical, or dance performance. Hoping to drum up ticket sales, they encourage their fellow students to come on to support the hard work of others. They also attend performances and displays at school to cheer their classmates on.

After years of discussion to make a cheer squad for the arts, this is the first time they've been able to pull it off. More than 90 students have already signed up to be a Bruin Classy! “The students have poured their time and energy into their arts, and it is ~~worthy~~ to be celebrated. Caleb Stay, the cheer squad leader, said, “If ~~you~~ worked really hard on something and no one showed up, it would be disappointing. We just want to make sure that no one feels that way.

This is such an amazing idea. ~~We can't believe~~ no one has come up with it before, but hopefully these thoughtful teens have started a new trend to support the arts in other schools, too.

24. Why did the students in Mountain View high school set up the Bruin Classics?

- A. To support the arts in their school. B. To compete with the Bruin Crazyes.
C. To participate in the art performing. D. To cheer the athletes on in the games.

25. How do Classics make the art performances appealing to students at school?

- A. By offering free tickets to students.
B. By popularizing the art performances.
C. By inviting students to attend performances.
D. By wearing a special uniform for art festivals.

26. What can be inferred from Caleb Stay's words?

- A. More students will sign up the Bruin Classy.
B. Few students like to attend the art performance.
C. The artistic cheer squad will become a new trend.
D. The students' artistic efforts deserve to be admired.

27. What is the best title of the text?

- A. Move over, “Crazies,” the “Classics” are here
B. “Crazies” keep up, never give in to “Classics”
C. The Bruin Classics, a “uniform” of bow ties
D. The Bruin Crazyes, a big hit in Orem, Utah

Electricity has started flowing from the Hornsea 2 wind farm, which will become the world's largest offshore wind farm when it is complete. Located in the ocean off the UK's east coast, it is unlikely to hold the title long, however. The expansion of onshore wind has flattened out, but offshore is in the rapid growth phase, and some huge projects are under development and consideration.

When complete, Hornsea 2 will consist of 165 wind turbines (涡轮机), each with a peak capacity of 8 MW. At 1,320 MW, Hornsea 2 will take the title of world's largest from the neighboring Hornsea 1, which has smaller but more numerous turbines, for a total capacity of 1,218 MW.

The project came in the fortuitous timing. The possibility that limitations in gas supply and a cold winter could seriously disturb electricity networks in the UK, causing anxiety for months. Even a small part of Hornsea's eventual production will help reduce that danger. On its first morning, it contributed to almost 50 percent of Britain's electricity.

Meanwhile, the development coincides (类似) with China's largest offshore wind farm, Jiangsu Qidong, which reached full operation a day later. At a total of 802 MW, Jiangsu Qidong is behind either Hornsea stage, but it is twice the size of the existing offshore wind farm outside Europe. North American wind farms usually standardize with a single size of turbine, but Jiangsu Qidong uses seven models.

Qualities of good leaders

Leaders are needed to manage a country or any organization. They are very important people. Under good leaders, the country will be stable and peaceful. In this way, it can make great progress.

They too need good leaders to lead them. They cannot grow or do well without good management or leaders. Schools too need leaders. They are the headmaster, class monitors, prefects, and game captains. All of them have an important role to play to ensure the smooth running of the school. At home, parents are the leaders guiding the family.

_____ A leader should take his work or position seriously and carry out his duties to the best of his ability! He should always think of what is best for his people, whether they are staff members, family, or any group of people.

A leader is also someone who helps others become more than they ever thought was possible. Leadership is about unlocking potential, whether individual potential or that of a group, company, or organization. _____ Instead, it is inspiring them to see what they are capable of and then helping them get there.

Leaders of a country should always put the interests of their people first. They have to be approachable, caring, and concerned about the welfare of those under them. A good leader should be willing to listen to his people's problems or suggestions. _____

It is not easy to be a good and true leader. _____ True and good leadership requires one to make sacrifices, including putting others before oneself. He is often the mentor who prompts others to be their best, someone who cares and listens, and is willing to always be there for them.

- A. Neither is it impossible.
B. The same goes for organizations.
C. It is not about telling people what to do.
D. To do this, a leader is to be honest, and truthful.
E. That is why a good leader is likely to train good followers.
F. This is then followed up by doing his best to solve these problems.

第二节 读后续写(满分25分)

阅读下面材料,根据其内容和所给段落开头语续写两段,使之构成一篇完整的短文

in the even
An expedition with friends
Joseph was my best friend. He was the only son of Adam Tan, a well-known former athlete and a member of the first Malaysia team to reach the South Pole in an expedition. Hence, many expected Joseph to be as sporting as his father. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Since he was young, he has been physically weak. He suffered from asthma(哮喘) and preferred to stay indoors. He preferred to read books and was nicknamed "Professor" unkindly in class. He did not seem to mind these remarks until one day. That particular day marked the first death anniversary of his father who died tragically on the last mile of his expedition in the Mautu wilderness in Africa.

So on this anniversary of his father's death, he was stung by Bala and Azhar, his classmates. They had called him "weakling", remarking that he was a disgrace to his father. He lost his cool and fought with the bullies! Of course, he lost. From that day onwards, Joseph devoted himself to building up his body and turned his efforts enthusiastically to sports. No one, he vowed, would bully or compare him unfavorably to his father.

Joseph joined the scout's troop(童子军) in my school and became its leader. We were all excited when we learned that the school had planned an expedition in Kalimantan, Indonesia. It was also meant to be in memory of Joseph's father, who was its former adviser.

The expedition really tested the spirit and skills of my fellow scouts. Determined, we crossed a mountain, a river and a forest. The last stage was the jungle and we were within sight of our target. We had only four more kilometers to cover before we would successfully complete our expedition in the required time.

注意:

1. 续写词数应为150左右;
2. 请按如下格式在答题卡的相应位置作答。

However, just before the last kilometer, Joseph's asthma recurred(复发).

The welcome team stopped their cheering when they saw us carrying Joseph.
