One possible version:

Dear teachers and my fellow students,

How time flies! Before long, we will graduate from this school and we'll go to separate universities. It is my great honor to be here to make a speech on behalf of all at this commencement.

Looking back on the old days, I can still remember we were quite curious about everything when we first met. And I like the spring outing best, as we were so delighted to be exposed to nature. Additionally, what impresses me most is the time when we are completely absorbed in preparing for the college entrance examination. Tired but determined, we are fighting for our dream without any hesitation.

Words fail me when I want to express my gratitude for the care and love from you. I sincerely hope that after graduation our friendship will last forever.

That's all. Thank you!
