Dear Josh,

I'm Li Hua, in charge of "English Classics Reading Poster Competition". I am writing to cordially invite you to grade the poster entries on May 25th in the lecture hall.

To encourage English classics reading, the competition requires students to create hand-drawn posters to illustrate their understanding of classic works through visual presentation. Till now we've received up to forty submissions, which will be evaluated against rating criteria, including content richness, layout creativity and artistic expressiveness. Accordingly, top ten works will be awarded. With your expertise in literature and art, we believe you will be a valuable addition to the judging panel.

Looking forward to your positive reply!

Yours sincerely, Li Hua

第二节:读后续写(满分25分)

Suddenly, leaves rustling, someone or something was making its way into the clearing. Rani froze. She knew about the dangerous animals—the foxes and snakes and even man-eater leopards—that lurked in the lush jungles. A shiver went down her spine. Hugging herself close, she crouched lower, not daring to move a muscle. Tiny night bugs bit into her soft flesh and hunger pangs wracked her belly. Rani was tortured by such a disastrous day! She held her breath as the rustling grew louder, her eyes scanning the bushes frantically. Suddenly, the thick leaves parted, and a dark form stepped into the clearing. Rani's heart leaping with fear, she opened her mouth to scream.

The next moment Papa was sitting beside her. Relief and joy flooded through Rani. She flung her arms around Papa and clung to him. "Rani! What's wrong?" a visibly relieved Papa asked. Rani hesitated at first, but then broke down in tears, "I hate my hair!" She poured out everything about teasing. "And that's not all," Rani sobbed. "Mama even let Amit and Sumit get away with it." Papa sighed, stroked her disheveled hair and planted a soft kiss on her forehead. "I know it's tough being teased by those kids, but you can't let it get to you. Look, you are beautiful just the way you are!" Papa said soothingly. Together, they sat in silence for a while, until Rani's tears dried up and she felt ready to face the world again.

Text 1

W: Now that we have the sofa and the TV in here, I just need you to help me with the bed. My car is parked just outside on the street.

M: No problem. (1)

Text 2

- W: I am sorry to keep you waiting. Will we be late for the movie?
- M: Oh, not at all. I've been here for only a few minutes. We have enough time for dinner. Here is the menu. (2)

Text 3

- W: Why are you so excited?
- M: I am going to buy a new television set. They normally cost 300 dollars, but today, they are on sale for two thirds of the regular price. (3)

Text 4

W: Wow, Brian. You look like you had a terrible sleep last night. Your eyes are all red.

M: I slept well, but I woke up with a sore throat and a cough. (4) Could you pass me a glass of water?

Text 5

W: Was that the mailman at the door?

M: Yes, here's a package for you. He said he tried to deliver it yesterday.

W: Oh! I wasn't expecting it until tomorrow. (5)

Text 6

- M: Hey, Jen, do you want to go out and get some ice cream tonight?
- W: My parents won't let me go out tonight. I have to do my chores instead.
- M: That's surprising. What happened? I can't imagine you making your parents angry.
- W: It's my fault. I was supposed to clean my bathroom and my bedroom last weekend. When my parents saw I still hadn't done it, they told me I couldn't go out tonight. (6) I totally deserved it. (7)
- M: So, what did you do when they gave you the bad news?
- W: I apologized and handled my responsibilities. There's no point arguing when you know you're wrong. (7)

Text 7

- M: Hey Sherry, come and take a look at this. Isn't that Greg Parsons?
- W: Is that the guy that used to substitute for Mrs. Hayworth's math class?
- M: No. Greg was the guy who used to own that Italian restaurant we used to go to. (8)
- W: You're right. (8) And now he's got his own show on the Cooking Network. That's amazing.

- M: That's the second person from our town that has become famous. Remember Brian Sheldon? (9) I used to play soccer with him, and now he plays professionally.
- W: I remember. I actually saw him the other day when I was waiting in line at Starbucks. (9) He still lives around here.
- M: Yeah, I know. He has that big house on the hill in the rich neighborhood.
- W: People like that always do, don't they? Anyway, seeing all this food is making me hungry. Should we go get something to eat? (10)
- M: Sure. How about that Italian place around the corner? (10)

W: That's exactly what I was thinking. (10)

Text 8

- M: Hi, come on in. Can I take your coat?
- W: Sure, thanks. I brought you a bottle of wine.
- M: Thanks! You're the first one of all our friends to arrive. (11) I'll just put your coat away.
- W: This is a very nice place. Congratulations! How long have you been living here now? (12)
- M: Just over three weeks. (12) Would you like a drink?
- W: Sure, what do you have?
- M: I've got white wine, red wine, lemonade, orange juice, and Sprite.
- W: I'll have a glass of red wine please.
- M: One glass of red wine coming up!
- W: So, how many people are coming for dinner tonight?
- M: There are just going to be six of us.
- W: Oh, I thought there were going to be eight.
- M: Marcia and Paul called to cancel at the last minute. (13) Paul has to work very late at his office. He has to finish a report his boss asked him to do. And Marcia has a bad headache. (13)
- W: That's too bad. They're such good company.
- M: Oh, I think there's someone at the door. Excuse me while I go and get it...

Text 9

- M: I finally got tickets to the match!
- W: That's great! We came all the way downtown, and we almost missed it. How did you manage to get them?
- M: Oh, I was standing in line all Monday morning. I got the last two tickets. (14) The people behind me were so sad. They're going to have to listen to the match on the radio.
- W: I feel sorry for them. Many people have traveled a long way just like us. They want to see the teams that made it to the next level. But I'm so excited we'll see it! Which day is it?
- M: It's on Friday afternoon.
- W: Who will we be playing? Russia?
- M: We'll be against the team that wins in Group D. I think it'll be Switzerland.
- W: Oh, I hope Spain wins! But I don't want it to be a close game, either.
- M: Why is that?

W: For fans like us, there is so much pressure when the games are close! (15)

M: Well, there is a lot more pressure on the players! Besides, there have been many close games so far. There were two like that on Sunday.

W: I know it's common, but I'd still feel better if Spain won by two or three goals! (16)

M: I suppose I agree with you. (16) Oh, this is going to be so exciting!

★ close game: 势均力敌的比赛

Jimmy Kimmel Live is an American late-night talk show. It can be seen five nights a week on the ABC channel. (17) There're some other nightly talk shows that are very popular at the moment, for example, NBC's The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon and Conan on the TBS network. The hosts of those shows are some of the most famous figures in show business. However, Kimmel has been known to start crying on the show when he talks about what he cares about, and he has become especially famous after Donald Trump became president. (18) All late-night talk shows tend to follow the same timing: there is an opening speech by the host, followed by a special comedy performance done with a partner. (19) Then there is a series of interviews with other famous people, and a musical performance comes at the end. Kimmel has been so successful at his show that he was asked to host the Oscars for the last two years. In his early career, Kimmel worked at a radio station in Los Angeles, (20) which helped him practice his comedy. Jimmy Kimmel Live! is one of the only shows in America that are loved by both young people and older generations.
