Exhibition of Excellent Dubbing Works—Never To Be Missed

To enrich our school life, our school will stage an exhibition of excellent works from the English Dubbing Competition in the lecture hall on April 6.

During the exhibition, dozens of short videos created by students will be shown, most of which are based on classical movies and plays. They're really interesting and impressive. Besides, several skillful local dubbers and short video creators will be invited to deliver lectures on techniques for dubbing movies and creating short videos. They'll also remark on some of the exhibits, giving useful advice.

If you're interested, don't hesitate to come. You will definitely enjoy yourself.

As daylight began to fade, I picked Holly up from Susan's home. Upon arriving home, Holly sank slowly into the sofa with sorrow and regret written all over her tear-stained face. Half confused, half concerned, I softly asked her what was up. Hesitating for a moment, she murmured, "After visiting her home, I realized she'd given me the most precious present. However, I didn't cherish it, and even threw it away." Meanwhile, large bright drops of tears rolled heavily down her cheeks. I stroked her shoulders and took out the carpet from the kitchen.

I placed the carpet on the table in front of her. In a split second, she curved her lips into a broadsmile through tears. She jumped up, screaming in an excited voice, and wrapped her arms around me like a vice. Then she gave the carpet a light brush. Watching it hang in the yard, Holly smiled with satisfaction. She called Susan, apologized for her behaviour and expressed her sincere gratitude. She said the carpet was the most precious birthday gift she had ever received in the whole world.

Text 1

M: Excuse me, madam, didn't you see the red light?

W: Oh, I thought I could make a right turn on red here.

M: I'm sorry, but I have to give you a fine. May I see your driver's license, please?

W: Here you are.

Text 2

W: Look at you! You're totally wet. Didn't you check the weather forecast before you went out?

M: I thought it would be fine or foggy, but it turned out to pour the whole day.

Text 3

W: Hello, David, this is Kate. I've heard that your family moved to a new apartment. I'm so happy for you.

M: Thanks.

W: Well, I think it's really worth celebrating. What about seeing a movie tonight?

M: Why not?

Text 4

M: I'm afraid I have to be absent from Mr. Green's speech tomorrow.

W: Why?

M: My computer doesn't work. I'll go to have it repaired.

W: Don't worry. I'll take down the notes carefully for you.

Text 5

W: I need to exchange some money at the bank since I will travel abroad this weekend. But my car is being repaired.

M: I can offer you a lift.

W: Thank you. It's very kind of you.

Text 6

M: Dental clinic. This is Mr. Adams.

W: Hi. My name's Betty Butterworth. I'd like to make an appointment.

M: All right, Betty. Is this for a checkup or a cleaning?

W: A checkup. I think I have a bad tooth. Half the side of my head hurts.

M: Let me see... We can see you this afternoon if you can come in at 4:30.

W: I have something urgent to do at that time. Can I get there at a quarter to five?

M: No problem. We'll stay here until 6:00.

Text 7

M: How do I know if I qualify for unemployment benefits?

W: Are you working fewer hours than you used to work?

M: I got laid off.

W: You usually qualify if you got laid off or are working a lot fewer hours.

M: Do all jobs provide unemployment benefits?

W: Most jobs do, but some don't.

M: How about my job?

W: You can call your unemployment office, and they can check for you.

M: Will I be able to receive a lot of money on unemployment?

W: Unemployment benefits vary from person to person and the amount is based on how much you earned. They will let you know when you submit your application.

W: You are buying a bunch of things!

M: Yes. Bill, please.

W: Those items come out to 235 dollars.

M: There seems to be a mistake. Can you check it again?

W: Really? Oh, I'm sorry. It's 225 dollars. Will you pay for it by credit card?

M: Yes. Here you are.

W: Sorry. There must be something wrong with your card. Your credit card didn't go through.

M: How could it be?

W: You'd better ask your bank.

M: Yeah. I have to. Here is the money.

W: Your change, sir.

M: I'm afraid you've given me too much money back, an extra 20 dollars.

W: You are so nice. Thank you.

W: Dear listeners, for today's show I have with me John Denver. He is an expert on life patterns. John, welcome to our show.

M: Thanks for having me!

W: So John, you told me our feelings can be affected by what we eat. Really?

M: Yes. I was very surprised to learn that. But it makes sense. When we eat healthy foods, we get good chemistry in our body and our brains can function normally, and we can have good feelings.

W: So you feel happier and healthier now that you've changed your diet.

M: That's true. And everyone also needs to get enough exercise every week. In fact, it's best if you can exercise 30 minutes every day.

W: Every day?

M: Well, of course you can take a day off. Two days off each week is okay.

W: What else do we need to do?

M: Enough sleep. Not sleeping enough is just like unplugging your phone before it's charged. So it's much better to have a healthy diet and get regular exercise, and most importantly, get enough sleep every night.

Hello, everyone. Today I'd like to share with you the celebration of Janice's birthday. Janice was turning 21 years old. Originally, she wanted to go to Las Vegas to celebrate. A lot of people go there for their 21st birthday because in the United States you can legally drink at 21. However, Janice decided not to go because she wanted to save money to buy a new car. Janice decided that she just wanted to go to a nice restaurant with her friends.

Janice's birthday was on a Tuesday. When she and her friend Austin met up at work, she thought he would wish her a happy birthday, but he didn't. Austin had known her for years and he would always remember her birthday. Janice tried to remind him indirectly. "I wonder what day today is," she said. "Just a Tuesday, nothing special." Janice was upset, ignoring him during work.

When Janice got home after work, her friend Liza called her and asked her to open the door. "I don't want to go out anymore," Janice said. "Can you just open the door? We're already here," Liza said. Janice opened the door. "Surprise!" her friends yelled. There was a lovely pet dog in Kate's arms.
