My Winter Vacation Plan

Time flies and the winter vacation is just around the corner. In order to have a meaningful and rewarding holiday, I have made myself a plan.

I am a senior three student facing the pressure of the college entrance examination, so the most important part of my plan is about study. I plan to spend 4 hours reviewing my lessons on weekday, especially English and math because I am not really good at them. Of course, a healthy body is a must. I set aside one and half an hour every day to do exercise, playing basketball or going jogging.

Winter vacation is also a time for family reunion. My parents and I will visit my grandparents and spend the Spring Festival together, sharing with them what we have gained in the past year.

Text 1

W: What did you do in the summer holidays, Henry?

M: Oxford has millions of tourists in the summer, so it was easy for me to find a job there.

Text 2

W: You have an interesting accent. Are you from Scotland?

M: England, but my father was born in Ireland. I've picked up his accent over the years.

Text 3

M: I have finally arrived. That was the longest flight I've ever been on. It feels good to be back in the car again.

W: We just have one more stop before we get home.

Text 4

W: Have you seen the new survival show on TV?

M: Yes, it was so interesting. I learned how you can make rope from grass and tree bark.

W: I saw that, too. But I hope you never need to use those skills.

Text 5

M: It's gotten a lot darker since lunchtime. When I woke up, it looked like it was going to be a nice day.

W: My phone says it will get windy soon, and there will be rain tonight.

Text 6

M: Good afternoon. I'm calling because I really need some help. I was moving furniture the other day and I hurt my shoulder. I feel pain when I move my arm backwards. It has been like this for several days already. I took some medicine already, but that didn't help. I think I need to see a doctor.

W: That's too bad. You said it's a shoulder problem, right?

M: Yes, that's it. I also have a little back pain sometimes. I am not worried about that. OM-18

W: OK, would tomorrow morning or afternoon work better for you? We have openings at 9:00 a.m., 11:00 a.m., and 4:00 p.m.

M: The earlier, the better.

Text 7

M: It's raining again. Time to fix up the backyard garden. I need to pull the weeds out. And tonight, the temperature will be close to freezing. I'll have to cover the plants so they don't die.

W: That's a lot of work! My garden doesn't need so much care.

M: I didn't know you had one. Where is it?

W: In my kitchen. I put all my plants by the kitchen window. They get plenty of sunshine, and I remember to water them often. If they were out on the balcony, I would probably forget.

M: What do you grow?

W: I have some herbs and two different kinds of hot pepper plants. I use these in my cooking. I also have some plants with flowers, just for decoration.

M: Our gardens are very different. I have many vegetables and some small fruit trees.

Text 8

M: Mrs. Black, your study room has become one of the most popular meeting places for university students. How did this all start?

W: It all started four years ago when I was preparing for my final exams. I was looking for a place to study and write my papers. I couldn't stand the dark and unfriendly environment of the library. I wanted a comfortable and sunny study room, so I rented the top floor of an old house near the university and spent my afternoons there reading books and working on my papers.

M: What happened after that?

W: Then, word spread and my friends started turning up. It was a great place to relax, talk, and exchange ideas. They even started leaving their books behind and leaving some money for the things they used, like coffee and pens.

M: Is that what made you think of turning it into a book cafe?

W: Maybe. I'm trying to find a lifestyle that suits me. And I think there's a need for having relaxing places like this for people to eat, talk, and have fun without spending too much money.

M: It's really kind of you.

Text 9

W: Daniel, I haven't seen you in the office for almost one week. I heard you went on a vacation. Where did you go?

M: Yeah, I went to Fujian in China.

W: Oh, sounds interesting. What did you do there?

M: Well, I did a lot of things. It's a really interesting place. Culture is quite different there and I went to many beautiful places.

W: How was the food?

M: Well, the food in Fujian is amazing. You wouldn't believe how good it is. Everything tastes amazing. And the good thing about it is that it's really, really cheap.

W: I see. Who did you go with?

M: I went with a Chinese friend, which was really good because I cannot speak Chinese. And my friend helped me a lot with everything.

W: How long did you stay?

M: I left for Fujian on May 15th and came back one week later. And I think the time was more than enough to get a quick view of the whole province. I think I got a really good impression of what Fujian is.

W: Why did you go to Fujian?

M: Well, I'm really interested in Asia and Asian cultures, and since it's quite different from our American culture, I really want to get to know all those cultures better.

W: I see.

This weekend, there will be a special three-hour presentation called "The Perfect Cup of Tea". Ms. Wei, an international tea expert, will teach you the proper way to prepare some different kinds of tea. In her lecture, she will talk about Indian black tea, North African mint tea, Chinese jasmine tea, and English milk tea. During the first part of the presentation, Ms. Wei will describe the history of tea and how it spread to the different areas. In the second part, the audience will have a chance to make the four different kinds of teas. You will discover the perfect water temperature and cooking time for each one. You will learn how to recognize good tea leaves by how they look and smell. The last half hour of the presentation will be reserved for questions. This is the first lecture in a series. Next month, the head of a two-star restaurant in New York City will talk about his amazing journey from a dishwasher to a famous chef. The following month, in June, you will learn in four hours how to make one of the hardest dishes: Shanghai dumplings.
