(CNN)-Shoulder season is almost here, when travel transitions from peak crowds and prices to something-hopefully-a little more mellow. Join us for our roundup of weekly travel news as well as tips for where to travel in late 2022.

Seasons in the sun

American travelers have been unleashing their pent-up wanderlust (旅游热) by arriving in Europe this summer, making the most of the strong dollar and boosting local economies in the process. And while it's been a frustrating few months in terms of airport delays and cancellations, the travel outlook seems a little better as we head toward fall.

If you want to vacation like the Europeans do, skip the Riviera and the Amalfi Coast and check out our round-up of the continent's lesser-visited delights, such as Portugal's Alentejo region and Croatia's Zadar Archipelago. And if you've been saving your travel time till the summer rush is over, plan your trip now with our guide to the best places to go this autumn. Cape Town and Buenos Aires are among the hottest tickets.

Taste the world

The best bits of travel are sightseeing and eating — and munching on street snacks lets you enjoy both at the same time. Asia is the undisputed king of enticing, flavorful street foods, from Hong Kong egg waffles to Japanese takoyaki. Here's our round-up of 50 must-try delicacies.

In Africa, Ghana-based chef Fatmata Binta has been introducing Fulani nomadic food culture to people around the world through her traveling pop-up restaurant, while her charity foundation helps support rural women across West Africa. And down in Cape Town, a local creamery is experimenting with some rather bold flavors: Dare you try dried fish ice cream with Scotch bonnet chili?

Turkey drinks more tea than any other country, here's how new brews are stirring things up. And if you're after something a little stronger, a beer garden in North Carolina holds the world record for most beers on tap-watch here. Finally, in Ukraine, a company is selling wine rescued from a warehouse struck by a Russian missile. See how the team is fighting back after its $15 million loss.

21. Why does European tourism suffer for several months?

- A. Traveling is contained in Europe      B. Dollars fall in value

- C. Flights are delayed and cancelled.      D. Autumn sets in early.
22. Which is the best choice if you want to explore an unspoiled spot?
- A. The Amalfi Coast      B. Portugal's Alentejo region
- C. Cape Town.      D. North Carolina.
23. What can you experience in Turkey?
- A. Taste street foods.      B. Try strange ice cream.
- C. Enjoy a cup of tea.      D. Purchase strong wine.

B

Todd Bol, a retired businessman, could never have expected that a wooden container he built in his front yard one day would have the global impact it does today.

Bol built a dollhouse-size structure that looked like a schoolhouse on a post and he put it in his yard as a free community library to remember his mother, who was a book lover and school teacher. Bol's design gave birth to Little Free Library (LFL), a nonprofit organization that seeks to place small, accessible book exchange boxes in neighborhoods around the world. The concept is simple: Neighbors are invited to share a book, leave a book, or both. Today, there are over 50,000 of these libraries registered in 70 countries.

Almost everyone can register with LFL and start a library as long as the person keeps it in good shape and makes sure that book materials are appropriate for his/her neighborhood. Library owners can create their own library boxes; therefore, the libraries are usually unique in appearance, and there seems to be no limit to the possibilities. One library in California was built out of a used wine container, another in Texas had tiny stairs and bright colored walls. Once registered, libraries are assigned a number at LFL's website. The LFL Index lists the locations of all libraries with GPS coordinates (坐标) and other information. Owners receive a sign saying "Little Free Library".

People say they have been attracted to pick up a book when walking by a Little Free Library, out of curiosity and because it's convenient. Some sidewalk librarians say they have met more neighbors since having a little library in their front yard. Bol is also most proud of the way Little Free Library is bringing communities together. "It's started a neighborhood exchange. It gets people talking and more comfortable with their neighbors," he says. "This leads to them helping each other."

24. What does the underlined word "design" in Paragraph 2 refer to?
- A. A community center.      B. A book exchange box
- C. A dollhouse on a post.      D. A nonprofit organization.
25. What can we learn about the operation of a Little Free Library?

- A. There is no limit to the selection of books.
- B. The library can come in any shape and color.
- C. The library needs to hire many professional librarians.
- D. The owner must first be assigned a number from the LFL website.
26. What can be inferred about Little Free Library?
- A. It helps improve GPS functions.
- B. It connects libraries around the world.
- C. It makes reading accessible to the poor all over the world.
- D. It helps restore human connections.
27. Which of the following can be the best title for the text?
- A. LFL: A Booster to Shared Reading      B. LFL: The Best Place to Meet Neighbors
- C. Todd Bol: A Successful Book Businessman      D. Reading: An Approach to Improving Yourself

With lion dance, Chinese Kongfu, Chinese crosstalk, songs and dances, and award-winning speeches, students from across New Zealand showed their Chinese language skills in the annual "Chinese Bridge" event held on Saturday.

Fifteen secondary school students and two primary school students participated in the event, which was organized by the Confucius Institute in Auckland.

Naisi, a New Zealand member of parliament, reflected on his own experience of learning Chinese. He came to New Zealand at five. He had very patient Chinese teachers and passed the Chinese language tests smoothly. The capability to speak Chinese grounded him well in his Chinese culture. He is looking forward to hearing from bilingual (双语) talents who will help New Zealand become more diverse and promote cross-cultural exchanges.

Elijah from the Lincoln High School started learning Chinese when he was eleven. It was his fifth time to participate in the "Chinese Bridge". He said that learning Chinese is of great help for him to know China better and he wished to visit the Great Wall in Beijing, the Oriental Pearl Tower in Shanghai and the Yellow Crane Tower in Wuhan.

Ryan from the Christchurch Boy's High School said that learning Chinese provides him with more opportunities for future career development. He said it was awesome that learning Chinese could allow him to make friends with 1.4 billion people.

Chinese Ambassador Trophy from ACG Parnell College said that learning Chinese had opened a new door for him. From learning Chinese, he started to understand the meaning of filial piety (孝顺), which made him closer to his parents. He learned Chinese very hard and wished the friendship between New Zealand and China makes further progress.

28. What can we learn about "Chinese Bridge" event from the first paragraph?

- A. It's a yearly event.                      B. It's held on weekdays.
C. It's a Chinese bridge.                      D. It's held for Chinese students.

29. Why could Naisi know Chinese culture well?

- A. He relied on his own experience.                      B. He had the ability to speak Chinese.
C. He began to learn Chinese at five.                      D. He attracted some bilingual talents.

30. What has Trophy benefited from learning Chinese?

- A. Organizing the cross-culture event.                      B. Securing him a job in China.
C. Visiting China with a scholarship.                      D. Having a better relationship with his parents.

31. What did the four men mentioned in the passage think of learning Chinese?

- A. Amusing.                      B. Meaningful.                      C. Efficient.                      D. Tough.

The first traffic lights in the United States were installed because of an increase in traveller on the road in the 1920s. Worried about accidents, towns and cities installed traffic towers to help the flow of cars. Officers manned the towers, using whistles and red, green and yellow lights to indicate to drivers when they should stop and go.

Due to the absence of effective traffic signal systems on some streets, it caused risks at intersections. Then, William Potts created the first tricolour, four-directional traffic signal. The very first four-directional traffic light was installed at Woodward Avenue and Fort. But throughout the country, there were still a lot of systems for traffic lights and patterns in place. Since this could end up causing more problems for drivers, the Federal Highway Administration set uniform standards in 1935 for all road signs, pavement markings and traffic signals, requiring them to all use red, yellow and green light indicators.

Red is the colour with the longest wavelength; that means that as it travels through air molecules, it gets diffused (扩散) less than other colour, so it can be seen from a greater distance. Yellow has a shorter wavelength than red but a longer wavelength than green. This means that red is visible the furthest away, yellow in the middle and green the least distance away—a helpful advanced warning for needing to slow or stop. But this could be a coincidence. Red meaning stop originated with train warning lights, and it's not clear whether that was chosen based on wavelength, contrast against green nature or natural association of red with things like blood. It could be a combination of all three!

Back in the 1900s, some stop signs were yellow because it was too hard to see a red sign in a poorly lit area. Eventually, highly reflective materials were developed, and red stop signs were born. Since yellow can be seen well at all times of the day, school zones, some traffic signs and school buses continue to be painted the colour.

32. What's the purpose of installing traffic lights in the 1920s?

- A. To increase the speed of cars. B. To obey the standards of the government.
C. To reduce traffic jams in towns and cities. D. To improve road safety and efficiency.

33. What does the underlined word "this" in Paragraph 2 refer to?

- A. The first tricolour, four-directional traffic signal.
B. The installation of the first traffic signal.
C. The existence of different traffic lights and patterns.
D. The absence of traffic signal systems.

34. What's the main idea of Paragraph 3?

- A. The differences among the three colour. B. The wavelength of the three colour.
C. The reasons for choosing red as the stop signal.
D. The relationship between red colour and its wavelength.

35. Which may be a disadvantage of red as a stop sign?

- A. It can't be seen in the distance. B. It is a kind of highly reflective colour.
C. It is not suitable to be used in school zones. D. It can not be clearly seen in certain surroundings.
