Millions of students across China watched the live broadcast of the lecture giving by Shenzhou-13 crew members in last month. During the one-hour class, students learned about the working environment of the space station. Amazing, they observed experiments related to human body movement as well as amazingly cell growth in the weightless environment. They were so excited to attend such a wonderful live class in which they learned much about space than before. After they hear about the negative effects of the space environment on human body, they expressed their admiration for the astronaut. "They are really great people. They have devoted himself to the space exploration though facing high risks. There is no doubt whether their devotion deserves our respect."

Helping My Parents with Lunar New Year's Eve Dinner

With the Spring Festival approaching, every family is busy preparing the Lunar New Year's Eve dinner. As a member, I am excited to help my parents make full preparations.

The New Year's Eve dinner is a reunion time for people to say goodbye to the old and welcome the new year with full expectation. As scheduled, what I need to do first is to make a traditional and typical food list for the dinner. Together with my parents, I will buy the food materials in the early morning and help them with the cooking as well as setting the table in the late afternoon. After enjoying the meal, I can help set off the fireworks.

The big dinner promises a new start. I can't wait to offer my help.

Text 1

W: Peter, will you join us in the basketball match this Saturday morning?

M: I'd love to, but I've promised Tom to practice rock-climbing that morning and go swimming in the afternoon.

W: That's OK. Have fun.

Text 2

W: Andy, it's already 7:30. We'll be late for the lecture if we don't hurry up. I'll be ready in about 10 minutes.

M: I'll be OK in 20 minutes.

Text 3

W: You remind me of your uncle John. He has a great appetite and eats a lot.

M: You are saying I'm big? Well, I should do more sports. Let me join you in running.

Text 4

W: Daddy! Do you know where my backpack is? Did you put it in the washing machine?

M: Honey, your mother went to see your aunt. She couldn't find her bag, so she took yours with her.

Text 5

M: It blows me away that Chinese people find their language easy. Look at all the characters. They are just the same!

W: Take it easy. Any native will find their mother tongue quite easy. You're doing just fine.

Text 6

W: Your apartment is so large! I wish I had such a big one! You're so lucky to be living in Paris!

M: Is your apartment in New York really small?

W: Yeah, I don't even have a kitchen. You wouldn't believe how expensive it is! I pay $3,000 a month.

M: Unbelievable! I have a two-bedroom apartment close to the Seine River, and I just pay half as much as you. Maybe you should move here.

W: That would be nice. But my new job will be in London. Another expensive city!

Text 7

M: Hi, darling. When I was walking home from work, I saw a nice dress in a store window. It's dark blue. I'm sure you will like it.

W: Is it long or short?

M: It's your favorite style — mid-length. You could wear it on your sister's wedding.

W: Will a longer dress be better?

M: In winter, yes. But not in summer.

W: Well, isn't dark blue more of an autumn color?

M: I think it looks nice in any season. Come on! Let's go back to that store and you can see it for yourself. If you don't like it, there are other dresses you can try on.

W: All right. Will you excuse me for a few minutes to get ready?

Text 8

W: What are you reading, Matt?

M: An ancient Chinese book about army science. It's called The Art of War.

W: Are you reading it for study?

M: No, it's for my personal interest. The book is famous all over the world and many armies use it to help win battles. I am reading it to improve my chess playing.

W: How will that help you?

M: I have heard good things about it from some top players. It will help me make better game plans. You know, some managers use this book to better lead their companies.

W: To help company staff win competitions in workplaces?

M: Yes. Workplaces can sometimes be like battle fields, I think.

W: That is exactly how I would describe my working environment. May I borrow your book when you've finished it?

M: OK, Aunt Lucy. You can have it when we have family dinner next week.

Text 9

M: Where should we take our next trip?

W: To Wakanda. It seems so beautiful! That is my favorite country to visit.

M: Umm, that's not a real place, dear. It's an imaginary country in a movie.

W: Are you sure? I think I saw it on a map of Africa several years ago.

M: When was the last time you looked at a map?

W: Probably in my high school geography classes.

M: That was a long time ago. Look — here's an online map. According to the movie, Wakanda is somewhere in East Africa. Can you see it?

W: No, I can't.

M: Ha-ha! You watch too many movies, Sara. You should start reading more books and you'll learn more about the world.

W: You're right. I should read about our destinations before we start traveling.

M: Yeah, it will definitely give you a richer experience while you're there, Sara, since you're interested in East Africa. I know a beautiful island in the Indian Ocean. It belongs to Tanzania. That place has a long and rich history from many different cultures. We can learn a lot there together.

W: OK. Let's go there.

Text 10

Do you have any unforgettable experiences? Well, I do. It was like a dream. Last summer, I went to a lovely beach in India. I lay on the sand and enjoyed the sunshine. When I closed my eyes, I could hear the sound of birds. Then when I opened my eyes, I saw some native girls coming by, selling drinks. A boy was looking at me from the distance. I sat up and waved to him. He came over and chatted with me, looking at my water bottle and my watch, but what he seemed to like most was my book. We spent a wonderful day together. I felt like he was my friend and I thought he felt the same. He brought me some seashells and later some local snacks. As I was getting up to leave, he told me to wait for a while and went straight into some bushes. I watched as he ran towards me with a large pineapple. I also gave him the book that he might love to keep as a gift.
