Application and Essays

You can apply to Stanford by submitting online either the Coalition Application or the Common Application.

Both applications include essay prompts for your personal essay. In addition to the personal essay, you also need to reply to the Stanford Questions, which you can access in either application once you add Stanford University to your list of colleges.

When you apply to Stanford, we encourage you to indicate potential majors and career interests in the application, but please know you are not bound by these selections in any way.

Stanford Questions

We ask applicants to choose one of the three topics below and write a short essay.

※ Reflect on an idea or experience that makes you genuinely excited about learning in Stanford.

※ Write a note to your future roommate that reveals something about you or that will help your roommate know you better.

※ Tell us about something that is meaningful to you, and why?

How to Submit Required Materials

※ We suggest using Coalition or Common Application online forms whenever possible to submit documents, which is the speediest method.

※ If online submission is not possible, school personnel may send materials as an email attachment to personnel@stanford.edu.

※ When ordering college transcripts, please use credentials@stanford.edu as the contact email.

※ If your checklist is not complete by the deadline, simply continue to check your Application Status Portal until we have received all items.

21. What is necessarily included in an application?
 A. A personal essay. B. Career interests.
 C. Personal hobbies. D. The selected major.
22. What is suggested when you reply to Stanford Questions?
 A. Writing an essay to include the three topics.
 B. Writing a note about something that interests you.
 C. Writing an essay on what inspires your learning in Stanford.
 D. Writing a note to recommend something meaningful to your roommate.
23. Which online service or website is the quickest way to submit materials?
 A. personnel@stanford.edu B. credentials@stanford.edu
 C. Application Status Portal. D. Coalition or Common Application.

With paper flowers and music hanging around in the air, Lyu Jun was hosting a small farewell ceremony at an industrial zone in Shenzhen, Guangdong province. It was a funeral for a pet dog. Lyu came up with the idea of becoming a pet mortician (殡葬师) four years ago when he was preparing to start a business.

“At that time, there was only one brick-and-mortar (实体的) business that provided funeral services for pets in Shenzhen, but hundreds of pets die every day in this city,” he said. According to Lyu, many pet owners used to bury the remains of their beloved animals near their homes, which had a harmful impact on the environment and created the risk of spreading disease.

He saw a gap in the market for someone able to properly handle the death of pets. "A pet funeral service provides treatment of the bodies that is harm-free, and it is the greatest comfort to pet owners," Lyu said.

He takes good care of the remains of the pets and tidies up their appearance before the funeral. In addition, he prepares funeral addresses and selects suitable tombs for the pets. He also films funerals for owners who cannot attend the ceremonies, and provides paper and pens for those who want to write down their blessings and hang the notes on the wishing tree.

Over the past four years, Lyu has bid farewell to more than 2,000 dogs, cats and other kinds of animals. He also does volunteer work in his spare time to promote responsible dog raising. "The pet funeral service industry is still in its babyhood, and I hope there will be a set of strict standards for people who take on this job and a better environment for the industry," Lyu said.

24. Why did Lyu start the business on pet funeral service?
- A. Because he could earn a lot of money from it.
 - B. Because he thought it met the market requirement.
 - C. Because he thought it would be a unique and challenging business.
 - D. Because he could help owners bury their dead pets near their homes.
25. What does Lyu often do as a pet mortician?
- A. He delivers speeches to mourn the pets.
 - B. He gives best wishes to the pets' owners.
 - C. He makes films of the pets for their birth.
 - D. He nurses and cares for the pets carefully.
26. What can we infer from the last paragraph?
- A. Lyu volunteers to raise pets on his own.
 - B. The pet funeral service has got a big success.
 - C. More strict standards should be set for pets' owners.
 - D. There remains a potential in the pet funeral industry.
27. From which is the text probably taken?
- A. A research report.
 - B. An advertisement.
 - C. A novel.
 - D. A magazine.

According to a survey, the waste of food on the dining table occupies 10% of the total grain output. Last week Meituan co-published a proposal with a number of business organizations, calling on restaurants to stop food waste and help develop new eating habits for customers. "Restaurants should use official accounts on social media and live-streaming to promote and advocate food-saving actions," the proposal said.

Meituan and the organizations are advocating that merchants offer guidance for consumers, including reminding them during the ordering process about the taste of the ingredients, portion sizes and other information about the dishes, to help them avoid food waste due to misleading information.

Catering associations in more than 18 provinces have also joined the campaign to remove food waste. The Wuhan Catering Association proposed an "N-1" ordering code for restaurants in which a group of 10 diners would only order enough for nine people. More food is only brought to the table if required. It has inspired people to rethink their relationship with food and waste.

On Friday, the China Cuisine Association announced that it had teamed up with Ele.me, a food delivery platform, to launch a "half-dish plan", encouraging restaurants to provide customers with the option to order smaller portions. Besides, customers are

Recently, many arguments between anxious parents and children on the use of mobile phones have hit the headlines. According to a survey, children’s addiction to online games is closely related to parent-child relations; 36. To keep children away from smartphones, parents have to reflect on their own behavior and apply themselves to building harmonious parent-kid relationships.

First, parents should not be overly upset or annoyed when their kids play video games. Online games are one of the most popular pastimes for students. And it’s unfair for parents to blame smartphones for all the problems of their children, including poor performance, lack of ambition and inactive lifestyles. 37.

38. Research shows children treated as equals in the family are more aware of the negative effects of online games. Those parents who respect their children’s opinions and pay attention to their needs can set family rules with the help of their children. 39. And in such an atmosphere, children may be open about their thoughts and needs, and talk to their parents about what they really feel.

Last but not least, parents should spend time with their children. 40. So parents have to find time for their kids instead of saying they are too busy with work or ignoring their kids’ feelings.

In a word, developing good parent-kid relations is an effective way to keep or draw kids away from smartphones.

- A. There are some other problems that deserve parents’ attention.
B. Besides, some of the problems should be left for time to solve.
C. What’s more, it is advisable to adopt a friendly way of parenting.
D. Such problems existed even when smartphones and video games were not invented.
E. The better the relationship is, the less likely a kid is to be addicted to online games.
F. Family members can also smooth out their differences and reach consensus together.
G. Actually, the most valuable gift for their kids is time, not money or expensive presents.

第二节 书面表达

【参考范文】

The moment that moved me

Ladies and gentlemen,

I'm honored to stand here and present my speech. Everyone must have experienced a touching moment, and I'd like to share mine with you.

It was a rainy summer afternoon several months ago. I was going home by bus after school. It was the rush hour, so there was heavy traffic on the road. A great number of cars and buses were waiting in line. Suddenly our bus driver rushed out. He ran to an old lady who was struggling to cross the road slowly. All the passengers and cars were waiting patiently without any complaints while the driver was helping the old lady cross the road safely. What a touching moment!

If everyone cares for others, we will live in a harmonious world full of love, which benefits us all!

Thanks for your listening!
