- (Text 1)
M: Oh hello. How much is the ticket for tonight's performance of the concert?
W: Full price is $35 or $25 for students.
M: I'll get two tickets. Here are the student cards.
- (Text 2)
M: Hi. I bought this clock here, but the alarm doesn't work. I need to get it fixed.
W: We can fix it for you. Hmm, looks like the timing part is broken. That'll run to 15 dollars.
M: Well, just do it.
- (Text 3)
W: Hello, will you please send someone up to my home? There's water running everywhere and I can't turn it off.
M: I'll send someone up as soon as possible.
- (Text 4)
M: Excuse me, could you tell me the way to the skateboard park, please?
W: Of course. Go straight down this road past the town hall, and you will see a hospital on the right. The skateboard park is next to it. There's a supermarket on the other side of the road.
- (Text 5)
M: Did you get the job you were interviewed for?
W: Yes, and I'm very excited about it. It pays much better than my old jobs, and I think I'll like the people better, too.
- (Text 6)
W: How long have you been retired now, Grandpa?
M: Let me see. It's four years. I suppose I'm used to it after all this time. But you know, I worked for Courtaulds for forty years.
W: Forty years? Really? Do you like being retired? Don't you get bored?
M: Well, I've got my health so I can do a lot. I've just taken up golf. It's a good excuse for a walk, and I need an excuse since Rover died. I miss good old Rover but I don't think I want another dog at my age. I go to the golf club twice a week. I've made some good friends there. Have you met Ted and Marjorie? They're a lovely couple.
- (Text 7)
W: Hello, Bill. Have you got something to share with us?
M: Yeah. I was so stressed out. I mean, the last few years were the worst. When you're making much money, you're spending a lot! The stress on trying to make the amount of money to support that lifestyle...it was too much. I was really having health problems as a result of the stress.
W: I'm sorry to hear that. Did you do something to deal with that?
M: Yes. I decided to reduce stress...to relax. I changed my big house into a small one and reduce my four cars to two. Then I took a stress-free job. Now I have much time to spend with my family and I'm happy.
W: How nice! OK, it's time for today's program. Thank you, Bill.
- (Text 8)
W: Hey, Chris, you sound a little sad. What are you doing?
M: I just wrote a long email to my friend, but when I pressed "send", I got a page Not Found error, and the mail lost. Sometimes the breakdown of the computer can cause you trouble.
W: You are right. My friend Jack lost 300 dollars when he shopped online.
M: 300 dollars? What's happened?
W: He bought a ring for his girlfriend online. But he didn't receive it at all.
M: What did he do when the ring didn't arrive?
W: He called the seller of course, but the answer he got was that it must have got lost in the mail and he should call the express company.
- (Text 9)
W: Hello, Max. What's up?
M: The town newspaper's got a great competition for us to enter.
W: What do we have to do?
M: Write a story. The competition will close at the end of February, so we've got January to think about it and four weeks to write. They'll choose the winning stories in March.
W: Are the prizes any good?
M: The top prize is a computer. There're two other prizes --- a phone and a camera. I'd like to come first.
W: Me too. Who will choose the winners?

M: They asked a famous writer but he was too busy. A reporter from the newspaper will decide which stories win, and a footballer is going to come and give the prizes.

W: And how do we send the stories?

M: You need to get a form from the Internet, and post it with your story. You can't take the story to their office.

W: OK, let's do it!

(Text 10)

M: Hello, everyone. Next let's move to China. By 1996, the Chinese government had listed 770 key cultural sites under state protection. The number of key cultural sites under state protection has reached over 5,000 up to now. In the 1990s, the Government spent a lot of money in protecting cultural sites. Special money by the Central Government for the protection of cultural sites reached some 700 million yuan for about 1,000 projects. And the Law on Cultural Relics Protection was reexamined in October 2002. So far, the Chinese government has listed more national famous cultural cities and provincial ones under key protection. The protection of these cities includes both the protection of the ancient buildings and the traditional cultures of the ancient cities as well. As a large traditional agricultural country, China has many ancient villages. The natural environments as well as folk culture and art are quite valuable. The cultural experts are planning a large protection project on ancient villages.

Dear John,

I'm glad to hear that you'll participate in the speech contest "Studying in China". Speaking of the topic, I think Chinese ancient wisdom is an ideal option.

With a long history and profound cultural connotations, China plays an essential role in the history of mankind. From Confucius' principle of teaching to literature, and from the four great inventions to the Great Wall, it's Chinese ancient wisdom that shines like a star throughout human civilization. This topic will surely attract the judges' attention. Besides, providing broad descriptions combined with details is the best way to go.

I do hope your speech goes smoothly.

Yours,
Li Hua

作文二: (字数 153)

The day before my mother's birthday, I paid the last two cents. As the lady wrapped the gift in brown paper, tied it with a piece of string, and carefully put it into a gift box, I attentively signed my name on the notebook, meaning that I had paid off all my debts. I thanked her and excitedly left the shop. "Be careful you don't lose it," she called after me. "I won't!" I responded. Carrying the gift, I skipped away, singing happily to myself.

The special day finally came. I placed the box on the table, hopping from one foot to the other, as my mom untied the knot and slowly peeled away the brown paper. My heart was racing. Then, as I bit into my bottom lip, the content was revealed. "Do you like it?" I asked excitedly. My mom didn't say a word, but I got the answer from her face on which the same delighted smile as mine was worn when I received Patsy from her.
