The city of Richmond announced that Roscoe Burnems would become the city's first poet laureate (桂冠诗人), a poet recognized for achievements in poetry.

During his two-year term as a poet laureate, Burnems is responsible for being a poetry advocate by providing access to poetry throughout the city and offering opportunities to use the power of words to heal wounds, open hearts and minds, and bring people closer together.

He has the freedom to create and develop his own projects during his term and will receive a $4,000 annual bonus.

Burnems' love of poetry began at an early age when he was struggling against depression. His English teacher recommended him to read poetry, which later brought him a peaceful mental state and helped him recover from depression. He soon decided that poetry was something he would run after for his lifetime. "People gravitate to poetry because they can find themselves in the poems," he says. "It allows readers to feel the emotional part of our experiences."

He says poetry is a great platform to discuss mental health, depression and the emotional stresses that come with daily life. Relieving those stresses is central to some of the work he does with young people. Last year, Burnems started a youth poetry producing competition for local high school students.

Burnems says he loves and supports different types of art, and his next move is to explore poetry through cooperation across media. Richmond's paintings on the wall are a good example. He says, "Richmond is getting known for these beautiful paintings on display across the city, and I want to add a literary component to that."

24. What is Burnems' responsibility as a poet laureate?

- A. Creating more good poems.                      B. Developing his own projects.
C. Spreading the power of poetry.                D. Bringing poetry lovers together.

25. Why did Burnems develop a great passion for poetry?

- A. Poetry made him more confident.
B. Poetry helped him through a tough time.
C. He was influenced by his English teacher.
D. He viewed writing poems as a lifelong career.

26. What does the underlined phrase "gravitate to" in Paragraph 3 probably mean?

- A. Take pride in.            B. Be used to.            C. Break away from.    D. Be attracted by.

27. What is Burnems going to do in the near future?

- A. To shift his focus to paintings.                B. To combine poetry with other arts.
C. To hold more poetry competitions.            D. To help youth with mental problems.

The problem of robocalls has gotten so bad that many people now refuse to pick up calls from numbers they don't know. By next year, half of the calls we receive will be scams (欺诈). We are finally waking up to the severity of the problem by supporting and developing a group of tools, apps and approaches intended to prevent scammers from getting through. Unfortunately, it's too little, too late. By the time these "solutions" become widely available, scammers will have moved onto cleverer means. In the near future, it's not just going to be the number you see on your screen that will be in doubt. Soon you will also question whether the voice you're hearing is actually real.

That's because there are a number of powerful voice manipulation (处理) and automation technologies that are about to become widely available for anyone to use. At this year's I/O Conference, a company showed a new voice technology able to produce such a convincing human-sounding voice that it was able to speak to a receptionist and book a reservation without detection.

These developments are likely to make our current problems with robocalls much worse. The reason that robocalls are a headache has less to do with amount than precision. A decade of data breaches (侵入) of personal information has led to a situation where scammers can easily learn your mother's name, and far more. Armed with this knowledge, they're able to carry out individually targeted campaigns to cheat people.

We need to deal with the insecure nature of our telecom networks. Phone carriers and consumers need to work together to find ways of determining and communicating what is real. That might mean either developing a uniform way to mark videos and images, showing when and who they were made by or abandoning phone calls altogether and moving towards data-based communications—using apps like Face Time, which can be tied to your identity.

Credibility (信任) is hard to earn but easy to lose, and the problem is only going to get harder from here on out.

28. How does the author feel about the solutions to problem of robocalls?

A. Panicked      B. Confused      C. Disappointed      D. Embarrassed

29. By taking the advantage of the new technologies, scammers can _____.

A. aim at victims precisely.
B. damage databases easily.
C. start campaigns rapidly.
D. spread information widely.

30. What does the text imply?

试卷第6页，总11页

- A. Honesty is the best policy.
  - B. Technologies can be double-edged
  - C. There are more solutions than problems
  - D. Credibility holds the key to development
31. What would be the best title for the text?
- A. Where the Problem of Robocalls Is Rooted
  - B. Who Is to Blame for the Problem of Robocalls
  - C. Why Robocalls Are About to Get More Dangerous
  - D. How Robocalls Are Affecting the World of Technology.

When you walk on a sandy beach, it takes more energy than striding down a sidewalk — because the weight of your body pushes into the sand. Turns out, the same thing is true for vehicles driving on roads. The weight of the vehicles creates a very shallow indentation (凹痕) in the pavement (路面) — and it makes it such that it's continuously driving up a very shallow hill.

Jeremy Gregory, a sustainability scientist at MIT, and his team modeled how much energy could be saved — and green-house gases avoided — by simply stiffening (硬化) the nation's roads and highways. And they found that stiffening 10 percent of the nation's roads every year could prevent 440 megatons of carbon dioxide equivalent emissions over the next five decades — enough to offset half a percent of projected transportation sector emissions over that time period. To put those emissions savings into context — that amount is equivalent to how much CO<sub>2</sub> you'd spare the planet by keeping a billion barrels of oil in the ground — or by growing seven billion trees — for a decade.

The results are in the Transportation Research Record.

As for how to stiffen roads? Gregory says you could mix small amounts of synthetic fibers or carbon nanotubes into paving materials. Or you could pave with cement-based concrete, which is stiffer than asphalt (沥青).

This system could also be a way to shave carbon emissions without some of the usual hurdles. Usually, when it comes to reducing emissions in the transportation sector, you're talking about changing policies related to vehicles and also driver behavior, which involves millions and millions of people — as opposed to changing the way we design and maintain

Developing shortcuts in your writing is not a new idea, of course. The trick is to develop a good system and to do it well. 39. Try these tips:

★Develop a list of the most commonly used words and make shortcuts for them.

★Practice your course-specific shorthand at the beginning of the term when your text is still new and you're curious and excited about the information. Find a few interesting passages and practice writing them in shorthand.

★If possible, find a study partner to read the passages to you. 40.

★Time yourself for each passage you practice. Pretty soon you'll start to build up speed.

A. To do that, you have to practice.

B. Find the common terms for the passage.

C. We miss things when we take class notes.

D. Look through the textbooks for each course.

E. That sounds much more complicated than it really is.

F. You can get the real experience of taking notes during a lecture in this way.

G. Then, you discover that some of your classmates did record the information in their notes.

第二节：读后续写（满分 25 分）

阅读下面短文，根据所给情节进行续写，使之构成一个完整的故事。

阅读下面材料，根据其内容和所给段落开头语续写两段，使之构成一篇完整的短文。

My school had a tradition during the ninth-grade graduation: a beautiful gold and green jacket (the school colors), was awarded to the student who had maintained the highest grades for nine years.

I had been a straight A student since the first grade and had looked forwards very much to owning that jacket. My father was a farm laborer who couldn't earn enough money to feed five children. I was given to my grandparents to raise. There would never be a school sports jacket for us. This scholarship jacket was my only chance.

One day in May, I happened to overhear in the office. Mr. Schmidt, my history teacher, and Mr. Boone, my math teacher arguing about me. "I refuse to do it! I don't care who her father is; her grades can't match Martha's at all. I won't lie or falsify (伪造) records," said Mr. Schmidt angrily.

But Mr. Boone's voice sounded calm. "Joann's father is not only on the Board (董事会), he owns the only store in town. We could say it was a close tie and..."

Shaking and sad, I waited a few minutes and walked away.

The next day when the principal called me into his office. "Martha," he said, "There's a change in policy this year regarding the scholarship jacket. This year the Board has decided to charge fifteen dollars, which still won't cover the complete cost of the jacket. So if you are unable to pay the money for the jacket, it will be given to the next one in line."

Standing with all the dignity I could find, I said, "I'll speak to my grandfather about it, sir, and let you know tomorrow." I cried on the way home.

注意：1. 续写词数应为150左右；

2. 请按如下格式在答题卡的相应位置作答。

Paragraph 1:

By the time I got home, my eyes were red and swollen. I found my grandpa in the bean field.

第四部分 写作（共两节，满分 40 分）

提纲作文范文：

Possible version:

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am Li Hua, a student in our school. I am rather willing to offer you my suggestions for perfecting our library and increasing its popularity.

Firstly, it benefits a lot to diversify the categories of books and organize more reading-related lectures, thus enabling students to make proper choices and stimulate our reading interest. Secondly, more spacious room along with comfortable seats should be designed to provide better reading experience. Also, why not hold meaningful activities like donating second-hand books from students for the children in poverty-stricken areas, which can greatly reduce the degree to which resources are wasted.

Hopefully my ideas will be helpful.

Yours,

Li Hua

答案第 3 页，总 4 页

读后续写示例:

Paragraph 1:

By the time I got home, my eyes were red and swollen. I found my grandpa in the bean field. Sensing something wrong, he asked me what happened with great concern. I murmured the principal's words, a surge of regret gnawing at my heart. I really hated to see my gray-haired Grandpa's disappointment. Grandpa's eyes rounded in disbelief. Time ticking by, he heaved a long sigh. "My child, an award bought can't be called an award." I nodded understandingly. But who knew how reluctant and bitter I was?

Paragraph 2:

I dragged into the principal's office the next day, sad and disappointed. My head still lifted with dignity. I tried to fight back the tears, stammering, "I cannot... afford the jacket, sir." Staring into my eyes, the principal suddenly grinned. "I have good news for you." I looked at him in confusion. "The board decided that an award cannot be bought just for the sake of winners' dignity." His eyes brimmed with smiles. I pinched my hand only to find I was not dreaming. Only at that moment did I believe that Mr. Schmidt and my grandpa were right: never can awards be falsified or bought. (162 words)
