第四部分 写作 (共两节, 满分 40 分)

第一节 应用文写作 (满分 15 分)

Dear David,

Knowing you're experiencing peer pressure at school and feel down. I'm writing to convey my concern and offer some suggestions.

Firstly, don't always compare yourself with others since everyone has his own strengths and weaknesses. Secondly, transform the pressure into your motivation to strive. It's the fighting process rather than the results that counts. Finally, get support from your parents and teachers if necessary, who will take some load off your mind.

Hope my suggestions can be helpful to you. (80 words)

Yours sincerely,
Li Hua

第二节 读后续写 (满分 25 分)

"I'm going to take one more look." my husband said. Again, he lowered himself back to the floor. "It may have rolled further away". He crawled from table to table moving his hand slowly one way and then the other. A moment later, he stood up with something clasped between his thumb and forefinger. "Is this it, Ma'am?" He extended it toward the woman. "Oh yes!" she exclaimed, clutching his arm and hugging him "Thank you so much," she said happily. (70 words)

Frank smiled and said, "You are welcome, I'm just glad to be of help." Her son came over and shook Frank's hand excitedly, not knowing what to say to express his gratitude but kept saying "thanks". Later, we exchanged goodbyes and they left full of gratitude and happiness. When we asked for the bill, the waiter explained, "That has already been taken care of. The woman said it is a thank-you gift". Such a memorable anniversary was it that it revealed that an act of kindness, coupled with a bit of perseverance, is never wasted. (80 words)

Text 1

W: Honey, what do you think of the beef?

M: Pretty good, but the beef you make at home is much better.

W: You're so sweet. By the way, can you get the waiter's attention for me?

(停顿 00'10" 叮咚铃声)

Text 2

M: Can you come in early tomorrow? Kelly is sick, and I don't have anyone else in the sales department that can cover for her on the schedule.

W: No problem, Mr. Anderson. I'll call off my doctor's appointment right now.

(停顿 00'10" 叮咚铃声)

Text 3

W: It's 9:30, Jim, and you'll be late for the conference.

M: Oh, my! I just have half an hour left. I can't believe I slept for 9 hours.

(停顿 00'10" 叮咚铃声)

Text 4

M: Your new apartment is not as convenient as the old one.

W: Exactly, but it's far more comfortable and above all, it's far away from the noisy surroundings.

(停顿 00'10" 叮咚铃声)

Text 5

W: I really like the music. It sounds so beautiful.

M: Can't agree more. I also love the romantic story.

W: Yes. And the lines are really funny. Anyway, I really enjoyed myself in the cinema.

Text 6

W: David, what's your plan for the summer vacation?

M: I'm planning to go to South Africa and join a volunteer program there. I'm really interested in it.

W: What does the program involve?

M: It mainly involves taking care of wildlife in South Africa.

W: What are the requirements of the program?

M: You need to be at least 18 years old and can speak English. You should also be healthy.

M: I had a good start on the research of Canadian studies. Mr. Green gave me lots of materials and a list of books needed for the research.

W: I sat in on his class the other day, and I was impressed by his sense of humor.

M: The professors from the Canadian Studies Section were very generous, and the valuable materials they gave to me will certainly do me good in the future studies.

W: Wonderful! I also have some books about education in Canada.

W: M: Which of the universities in Canada are the most famous?

W: That's a very difficult question to answer, Steve. Please come with me to my office, and I'll show you those books about education in Canada and you may keep them. These are good materials for you, The way, please.

M: That's very kind of you.

M: Mom, can we get a dog?

W: Dogs need a lot of attention, Jeffrey. Do you think you can take the responsibility? It's harder than you think.

M: Of course I can. I've been looking at some pictures on the Internet. What about this one with the long golden hair named Lion?

W: He's very cute, but we don't have enough room for it. I think we should get a smaller one.

M: OK. then what about this one?

W: That kind of dog always has health problems. Plus, they bark a lot. We don't want to annoy our neighbors.

M: So what do you suggest?

W: First, we aren't getting one from a pet store. They are too expensive. I know a place that saves dogs and gives them away for free. And second, you need to show me you have the sense of responsibility.

M: I promise!

M: Oh, hello. I'm Jack. This is the Law Students Association, right?

W: Yes, that's right. I'm Mary, President of the Association Are you interested in joining?

M: Maybe, but I'm in the first year. I'm not sure if I'll survive even into the second year.

W: I'm sure you'll make it just fine. It does seem a bit worrying at the beginning, but it gets easier. Trust me.

M: That's hard to imagine So, do I have to pay to join the association

W: Well, here's an annual membership fee of 10 pounds, or you can get four-year membership for 35 pounds.

M: Mm, what activities do you have?

W: We have guest speakers talking about various topics. There's a meeting on the first Tuesday of every month. We also offer some peer coaching.

M: What's that? Sounds like you're mixing study and sport.

W: Not in that way. Peer coaching is when other students help you if you're having problems with your study. Usually, we get the senior students to do it.

M: I see.

Text 10

W: Let's hear about Mr. Brown's comment on the movie.

M: Hello, everyone. I thought A Gore's An Inconvenient Truth was on the whole a good film — It is an excellent film for teachers to show their classes to explain global warming. It explains the facts very well, and is also pretty funny at times. The film basically consists of a tour of Al Gore's climate change speeches around the world. It starts off with a few diagrams that many of you have probably seen already. This film is really for the general public who do not know all of this, and it is also for those who might have heard something about global warming here and there, but want to see exactly how all of the facts fit together. I think it is a good film, but it is not perfect. The problems come in the short but noticeable periods when the film tries to be a biography of Al Gore at the same time. I was watching this to find out about global warming, not to find out what Al Gore thought about losing his election. I imagine that these are the bits that teachers will have to skip when they show this to their classes, since they don't really add anything to the film. The film would be better without the parts about Al Gore himself.
