三、参考答案

Dear Michael,

Our school is going to have a cooking course this term. Knowing you are an enthusiast of Chinese food, I heartily recommend it to you.

The course is arranged on every Wednesday afternoon from 5:00 to 6:00. We can learn basic knife skills, food decorating and traditional cooking methods. Meanwhile, we will have fun exchanging cooking experience and sharing food cooked together. What's more, we can pick various organic vegetables grown on our school farm when preparing for a dish. I'm sure the course appeals to you.

Looking forward to your reply!

Yours,

Li Hua

参考答案

Kevin didn't realize this simple request of kindness would spread so widely. He got more than 17,000 likes and a whole heap of heartfelt birthday wishes. In fact, Daniel received thousands of heartfelt birthday wishes. Among the kind outpouring of birthday wishes, Kevin was surprised some celebrities even took a moment to say Happy Birthday. The majority of the birthday wishes came from other parents of children with autism. A dad posted a photo with his son and this caption, "Hey Daniel, this is my son Jacob, also autistic, on his birthday last month. I'm sure he would love to be your friend if you met. Hope you had a wonderful day."

Kevin reflected why there was such a positive response for such a simple request. As the comments, photos, and birthday wishes continued to pour in, he realized that people want to be loved and to be liked and that it's a universal feeling. He wanted to remind us all: "Don't ever feel like you're alone. Because I felt like that, and I hope other families will." People are created to love and be loved. This story proves we are never alone and it doesn't take much to show a little compassion and kindness to others. It goes to show no matter how uniquely different we are, we are never alone.
