Adopt, don't shop

Come to our pet adoption drive and meet our adorable residents. Help us find these animals a home! If you would like to find out more about adopting our animals, please visit our website @www.adoptadog.org.sg.

Activities

Talk by SPCA (12pm to 1pm)

Find out if you have what it takes to adopt a pet and why adopting is better than buying a pet.

Dog Show by K9 Club (1pm to 2pm)

Be amazed at the tricks performed by dogs from the K9 Club.

The story of Kit Kat the dog

The first time the rescuers met Kit Kat, we recalled in shock and our hearts instantly went out to him. At his tender age, life had already dealt him so many harsh blows. Not only was he left to care for himself in the wild, but he also suffered pain with a horrific rash(皮疹).

Kit Kat was first brought to our attention by Anna, one of our volunteers. Kit Kat was said to be frightened of people and we eventually managed to put a leash (皮带) on Kit Kat and take him to the vet after a few days' effort of tricking him with treats. He was well padded and his coat, though matted(无光泽的), was in good condition. Kit Kat also had good oral health.

Now on the mend, Kit Kat boasts a coat of soft, glossy fur and shows no signs of the pain he suffered from. While we have managed to heal his body, we have not been able to do the same for his broken spirit. However, we believe that with the right family and the right environment, Kit Kat will be able to flourish and shake off his sad past.

21. Why were the rescuers shocked the first time they met Kit Kat? C.

- A. He was a very old dog. B. He refused to be put on a leash.
C. He had a terrible skin condition. D. He was a wild and aggressive dog.

22. The phrase "on the mend" tells us that Kit Kat _____ B.

- A. is now a cheerful dog B. has been cleared of his rash
C. is no longer scared of people D. has matured into an adult dog

23. The main purpose of the flyer (传单) is to _____ B.

- A. ask for volunteers and donations
B. help abandoned animals find new owners
C. teach dog owners how to be responsible pet owners
D. encourage the public to give up their pets for adoption

I was an only child in the baby boom of the 1960s. I was upset about this and always admired my friend—Jessica. One day I went on holiday with her family. I remember she slammed her bedroom door after a tearful quarrel over a packet of biscuits that had been unfairly distributed. I was supposed to see the misery of her life as the second child of four, but all I could see was drama and excitement.

Nowadays, many single children have more than one child themselves, while those people who have one child most came from big families. It indicates a basic truth about human nature: we often want what we don't have.

Of course, I have three children. To my annoyance, my children do a lot of grappling and noisily compete for attention. However, in the immediate aftermath(创伤) of inter-sibling(兄弟姐妹间的) slanging(谩骂) match, I often hear my daughter singing in her bedroom. Something has finished as soon as it gets started.

As for the disturbing situation, I turned to my workmate, who is married to an only, she told me, "My husband had no idea of the kids' arguments. I had five siblings, and everything was up for grabs when I was growing up. So when my son and daughter fight, it's water off a duck's back."

Parents who are only children think we have the power to fix the fight among children, and then find it unimaginably frustrating when we can't. We often make the situation worse by over-responding to arguments. The psychologist Linda Blair, author of Birth Order, argues that it can be "very tricky" in families where both parents are only children, and that it can sometimes lead to "very anxious households". If one parent has experience of sibling behavior, he or she can offer advice when irritation arises.

24. What did the writer think of Jessica's family? D
- A. It was more enjoyable to have siblings.
B. It was unlucky to be a child of a large family.
C. Jessica's family was so rich as to go on holiday.
D. It was unfair when Jessica's parents handed out biscuits.
25. How does the writer's colleague deal with her children's arguments? A
- A. By ignoring. B. By seeking help. C. By giving advice. D. By fixing the fight.
26. What can we learn from the text?
- A. People with siblings tend to have lots of kids.
B. In the 1960s people preferred to have only one child. C
C. The writer's daughter is always angry after the arguments.
D. The family relations may be tense if both parents are only children.
27. The text is especially helpful for D.
- A. only children B. children with siblings
C. married women D. parents with several kids

While the Mars and the moon are currently the hottest destinations for outer space exploration, Mercury (水星) might be another exciting choice. The inner planet Mercury is extremely difficult to see with the naked eye. It is "the innermost and smallest terrestrial planet in solar system," noted the BBC.

The European-Japanese BepiColombo spacecraft was successfully launched on Oct 20, marking the start of its seven-year trip to Mercury, the Guardian reported.

The European Space Agency (ESA) has described the journey as one of the most complex interplanetary missions ever undertaken. Mercury is located just 58 million kilometers away from the sun. It follows a tight path to make one revolution (公转) around the sun, completing a full orbit every 88 days. Therefore, in order to get into Mercury's orbit, BepiColombo has to stand the extremely strong gravity of the sun. In order to solve the problem, BepiColombo will use special flybys (近天体探测飞行) to get into Mercury's orbit.

According to ESA, Mercury's temperature ranges from 450°C on the sunward side to minus 180°C on the dark side. In order to study the planet, the spacecraft "is going from one to the other over a few tens of minutes... our instruments have to operate around room temperature," according to Suzanne Imber of the University of Leicester, UK. BepiColombo has been coated with temperature-resistant layers to keep it safe.

If everything goes as planned, BepiColombo will travel through our solar system at 60 kilometers per second and reach Mercury in late December 2025. It will then split into two probes that will travel in different directions.

"What this lets you do is look at the space environment around Mercury from two different directions at exactly the same time," US planetary scientist Nancy Chabot told National Public Radio.

28. According to text, Mercury is C
 A. easily accessible B. well visible C. rarely explored D. extremely cold
29. What's the use of the special flybys? B
 A. To change the orbit. B. To escape the pull of the sun.
 C. To accelerate the spacecraft. D. To resist the high temperature.
30. What can we infer from Nancy's words? B
 A. Extreme temperatures will be a challenge.
 B. We can use gravitational forces to change direction.
 C. We may get clearer pictures of Mercury's revolution.
 D. BepiColombo is likely to land on Mercury in the near future.
31. What is the text mainly about? D
 A. The journey to Mercury. B. The mystery of Mercury.
 C. The environment around Mercury. D. The life on Mercury.

The Ig Nobel Prize(搞笑诺贝尔奖) hands out awards for "achievements that first make people laugh, then make them think." Sometimes the world of design can feel the same way: a pen that can detect cancer mid-surgery, for example. But a musical instrument engineered for zero gravity? Perhaps less so. Nevertheless, both are driven by the desire to improve lives.

The pen, musical instrument and more could be found at the Global Grad Show, which has rapidly become a regional networking opportunity with large commercial value, but that hasn't stopped grassroots innovation from pushing through.

The graduate show, organized by author and designer Brendan McGetrick, brought together 150 student projects from 100 universities including MIT and Harvard, and countries as diverse as Jordan, Chile and Pakistan. Schools, McGetrick told CNN, are "where one finds design in its purest and most potentially valuable form."

"Free from the commercial pressures of professional life, the next generation of designers is channeling their craft to improve the world," he added. "The next generations do not have the luxury to hope that the present issues will be solved. They anticipate the worst and see how they might channel their talents and training to invent tools that we will need before we urgently need them."

This year's winner of the Global Grad Show, Mirjam de Bruijn said: "I think we should stop thinking that we can do it on our own. I think designers, scientists, technologists and entrepreneurs should start working together. As a designer, I see too many great solutions that are not being used because their design is bad, and I am sure that scientists or technologists think the same with some designs that look better than they actually work."

32. A pen and a musical instrument are mentioned to show A
 A. some designs are ridiculous but meaningful.
 B. some achievements are serious but useless.
 C. some instruments are supernatural but handy.
 D. some surgeries are risky but reasonable.
33. How will the Global Grad Show benefit the graduates? C
 A. By teaching skills and knowledge.
 B. By offering scientific researches.
 C. By providing commercially valuable opportunities.
 D. By inspiring the invention of the urgently needed tools.
34. According to McGetrick, the next generation of designers D

- A. wants to work out the present issues eagerly
 - B. hates to make their designs on their own
 - C. feels angry for those solutions not being used
 - D. tends to find design in its purest form
35. Which of the following statements might Mirjam de Bruijn agree with?
- A. Where there is a will, there is a way.
 - B. Two heads are better than one.
 - C. Great minds think alike.
 - D. Birds of a feather flock together.

第二节 (共 5 小题; 每小题 2 分, 满分 10 分)

根据短文内容, 从短文后的选项中选出能填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

A nice bunch of flowers on the kitchen table can lighten up any cloudy day, don't you agree? Unfortunately, flowers are pretty expensive, especially when you consider you'll have to throw them in the bin after a couple of days already. G ³⁶

Everybody loves flowers

Flowers are beautiful and they provide your home with a cosy and welcoming atmosphere. B However, buying plants can be pretty pricey. So growing them yourself in your garden might be a good alternative. It doesn't just look pretty; it's also good for your mental health!

Green thumb(园艺达人)

C Luckily, we've got an amazing tip for you that will make sure you can have your own roses before you know it! No need for a green thumb at all and you'll never be without a bunch of flowers again. Everybody loves a good bunch of roses and this trick will make sure you can have a garden full of them. All you need is one rose, a potato, a plastic bottle, potting soil and a pot.

This is how you do it:

Pick a rose you like, remove all of the leaves and diagonally(斜对角的) cut off the head of the rose (approximately 3 centimeters from the flower). D ³⁹

Take the potato and drill in a hole the width of the stem. Make the stem steady within the hole. Cover the bottom of the pot with 5 centimeters of potting soil, and place the potato on top.

B Cut off the bottom of your plastic bottle and carefully place it over the stem sticking out of the soil. Occasionally water the rose (around the bottle) and watch how your roses grow like never before!

- A. Plus, they smell amazing!
- B. Fill the rest of the pot with potting soil.
- C. Turn one rose into an entire rose bush in no time at all!
- D. If the flower is still pretty, you can put it in a tiny vase.
- E. This trick is going to sound really strange, but it does work.
- F. Not all of us have enough of a green thumb to maintain an entire flower garden, though.
- G. But with this trick we've got for you today, you can grow your own beautiful bunch of roses!

Dear David,

I am Li Hua, Chairman of the Students' Union.

参考答案：

M: What was your biggest problem when you first came to China? Was it the spicy food?

W: No. I actually really liked Chinese food. When I first came here, I could hardly speak Chinese. That was the biggest problem. My roommates' encouragement was a great help to me.

Text 2

W: Jim, I was looking forward to seeing you at the party last night. I knew you were invited.

M: Well, I really wanted to go, but I've bills to pay. I'm the only bread-winner(养家糊口的人) of the family, you know.

Text 3

M: Have you finished reading the book borrowed from the library?

W: No. I've been working on my physics homework instead.

M: Oh, I'm done with mine. Now I'll go to the chemistry lab to prepare for an experiment.

Text 4

M: Excuse me, could you point me in the direction of Bridge Street, please? I'm meeting a friend there.

W: Certainly. Walk along this King Street until you reach Gray Street. Turn right and walk for three blocks. You'll see Bridge Street there.

M: Thanks a lot.

Text 5

W: Henry, do you know Hafthor Julius Bjornsson?

M: Certainly. He played the character called The Mountain in my favorite TV series Game of Thrones. He's very strong and big, so he's very impressive.

Text 6

M: Michelle, what about donating some money to Drexell & Honeybee's Donations Only Restaurant?

W: I haven't heard about this restaurant before. Why does this restaurant need donations?

M: Because it needs money to donate food to those who can't afford a hot meal.

W: So can people receive food there every day?

M: No. It's open four days a week for lunch, from Monday to Thursday, plus breakfast on Tuesdays and dinner on Wednesdays.

W: So how much do you want to donate?

M: ⑦I've 200 dollars now and I want to donate half of it. What about you?

W: ⑦I want to donate as much as you do.

Text 7

W: Mark, why were there some penguins in the square?

M: They were the penguins from Kansas City Zoo. Now nobody visited the zoo because of the coronavirus lockdown(冠状病毒封锁). The penguins felt very sad. They missed having visitors at the zoo. ⑧So they were taken to the square so they'd cheer up there.

W: They look really cute. I haven't visited a zoo for a long time. I miss watching animals at the zoo.

M: Me, too. Luckily, the lockdown has ended and zoos are open now. What about visiting a zoo this weekend?

W: Good idea. But have you checked the weather yet?

M: Yes. Don't worry. ⑨There'll be no rain or wind this weekend. We'll have ideal weather for outdoor activities.

W: Great!

Text 8

M: What is the best part about being a teacher, Maggie?

W: I like young people. (10)but I suppose what I like most about teaching is that it gives me an opportunity to work with many different people.

M: What do you mean?

W: It's not just students who come through my door, but also parents, other teachers, and administrators at my school. Sometimes we get researchers, people from the school district, and government officials in here as well.

M: Wow, I had no idea that teaching would involve talking to so many different people. It must be tiring.

W: Sometimes. (11)but it's worth it. (12)Seeing my students make progress would be enough of a reward for me, but the fact that I meet and learn from so many other interesting adults is just the icing on the cake(锦上添花)!

Text 9

M: Did Oliver have a good time at the shopping mall today?

W: (13)He really enjoyed playing there at first, but then he stopped when he caught sight of an old lady dining alone at the nearby food court. He asked me if he could go and sit with her.

M: What did you say?

W: I asked him to ask the lady if he could do that. He immediately abandoned the play area. When asked, the lady smiled and said "yes". And then they began to talk.

M: Did they talk for long?

W: Yes. (14)They began to talk around 12:15 pm and didn't stop until forty-five minutes later. And we didn't eat until then.

M: That was a really long talk. Didn't the lady get annoyed?

W: I don't think so. (15)She was smiling all the time. It turned out the lady lived alone and hardly talked to children. She really loved such conversations.

M: So what is Oliver doing now?

W: He's sleeping in his room. After being out for a whole day, he fell asleep before we entered the house.

M: Should we wake him up to eat now?

W: No. I'll keep the food warm for him.

Text 10

M: Good evening, everyone. (20)Welcome to tonight's program. Do you like watching news on TV? If you're a youngster in Great Britain, it's very likely you don't. (17)According to Ofcom, young people in Great Britain are watching less and less news on television. This comes as no surprise as young people become increasingly addicted to their smartphones. Young British people are choosing online distractions like YouTube videos, Netflix, and Facebook videos rather than switch on a TV and watch a news programme. (18)They especially like watching YouTube videos. Britain's Guardian newspaper reported that the average 16-24-year-olds in Britain watch just two minutes' worth of live TV news per day. (19)Ofcom suggested presenting news stories in a less complicated, more accessible way to attract young people's attention. Well, no matter what kind of way you choose to learn about what is happening around you or in the world, I hope you'll continue to support our program. It's a good way for you to learn about the world and it's also a good way to entertain yourself.

(20)I'm Bob Smith. Thank you for your listening!

in the winter vacation.

All the best.

One possible version:

Dear David,

I am Li Hua, Chairman of the Students' Union. I'm writing to ask whether you are glad to participate in a reading activity entitled "Let's Read Aloud", which will be held on April 23th in the lecture hall. Every participant is required to prepare an essay of about 400 words for reading aloud.

Reflecting on our bad reading habits, we decide to host this event to arouse our passion for reading aloud. When reading aloud, we find ourselves so touched and immersed in the beauty of language and we can precisely convey our deepest feelings. Moreover, it is reading aloud that provides a wonderful chance to improve our language proficiency especially for us language learners.

If you are interested, could you please reply before April 20th? Looking forward to your early response.

Yours sincerely,
Li Hua
