Text 1

M: Lisa, there's something I have to tell you.

W: Hurry up. I have to catch a train. It's the last one.

M: There's a movie I'd like to take you to. Never mind, I'll tell you at the office tomorrow.

Text 2

W: How many people are there in your family, Tom?

M: Four. I have a younger sister.

W: Look at this picture. There are two girls in it. Is the other girl your sister's friend?

M: No. My cousin, Mary, was visiting us with her family that day.

Text 3

M: Jennifer, what about going to watch the new movie Mission: Impossible tonight?

W: I'd like to, but I'm going to a book club activity tomorrow morning and I have just read one third of the book yet.

W: What's wrong with your left eye?

M: I just need some rest. I put some cream on it, and that makes it worse than before.

W: You should go to the hospital. The doctor will give you something to stop it getting worse.

Text 5

W: Jonathan, would you like to give money to my campaign saving the plankton?

M: Um... sure.

W: Great. I'll put you down for $10. My goal is $1 million.

M: $1 million? My $10 is just a drop in the ocean.

Text 6

W: George, it's so lovely to see you again! It must be ages since we last met.

M: Yes, Eva. But weren't you at Michael's birthday party in August?

W: No, I wasn't. I had to work overtime at the last minute. I think the last time I saw you was two years ago in December, when we all had dinner together in that Indian restaurant.

M: I suppose it was. Wait a minute... We've met since then... It was at Peter's place, when he and Jenny got married last May.

W: Yes, of course it was. Wasn't it a fantastic wedding?

M: One of the best I've ever been to.

Text 7

W: Hi, Nigel. How's your course?

M: Hi, Elizabeth. I think it's harder than I expected but I've got some friends who are doing the same course. I'm glad because we help each other study.

W: Jenny does business too, doesn't she?

M: Yes. we're working on a project together. But it's only us and Pete at the moment. We need another person in our group.

W: What do you have to do in the project?

M: We have to start a company and make money! I'm interested in selling something students use, like pens, notebooks and bags. Jenny and Pete are talking about food or drinks, but I'm not interested.

W: Maybe you should think about it for a few days. You might have clearer ideas then. Students don't have much money, so you must sell something that they really want!

Text 8

W: Mike, what about visiting the California Academy of Sciences this Saturday?

M: That sounds good. But why do you want to visit it?

w: I read about a special fish there yesterday. Scientists brought it into the San Francisco Museum in 1938 from Australia, and it now lives there. I'm very curious about it.

M: What? It must be the oldest living aquarium fish in the world.

W: You can't be more right. Scientists believe that it's around 90 years old. And that's what makes this fish unusual.

M: What kind of fish is it?

W: It's a lungfish. It's 1.2 meters long and it weighs around 18 kilograms.

M: Can the species be easily seen in the wild?

W: No. The species is threatened with extinction, and it's no longer possible to get it from the waters in its original habitat, so biologists at the academy said it was unlikely that they'd get a replacement once it dies.

M: That's very sad!

W: Yes.

Text 9

W: Hi, Frank. I didn't expect to see you here. Are you buying some new furniture for your apartment?

M: No, Chloe. My friend and I are starting our own business. We've been busy decorating our office recently. I'm here to look for some office tables and chairs.

W: Starting your own business?

M: Yeah. We design clothing for our customers.

W: You quit your job, didn't you?

M: Yeah. I just couldn't imagine myself selling cars forever.

W: Do you know anything about clothing design? I remember you majored in English Literature back in college.

M: Well, my friend has been in that field for over a decade and he is willing to teach me everything.

W: Brave of you. I've wanted to write a book for a long time since my kid went to college. I even looked for information about how to write on the Internet. But I just don't know if I'm capable...

M: Have a little faith in yourself, Chloe.

Text 10

M: Zara Rutherford is a 19-year-old girl. She has recently completed a 32,000-mile flight around the global. She landed at Kortrijk Wevelgem Airport in western Belgium on Thursday. She became the youngest woman, and first Belgian to fly alone around the world. It took her 155 days. The previous youngest-ever woman to accomplish such a feat was American called Shaesta Waiz. Rutherford made the flight to inspire more women and girls into STEM fields. But obviously and particularly she wanted to encourage them to learn how to be a pilot. Only 5.1% of pilots are women. She's also supporting the non-profit Girls Who Code. It wasn't all smooth during her flight. Unexpected conditions and visa difficulties made her fly longer than she planned. For example, she had to stop in California because of the wildfires there. She originally planned to fly for just three months, but it lasted a lot more days instead. She had planned to fly over 52 countries, but because of visa difficulties. She flew just over 41 countries. Though she had met many difficulties, she managed to land safely in the end and became a new role model of many people.
