(Text 1)

M: Your new apartment is not as convenient as the old one.

W: Exactly, but it's far more comfortable and above all, it's far away from the noisy surroundings.

(Text 2)

W: Jack, have you seen my mobile? I'm sure I left it on the table.

M: You did. I picked it up and put it in your bag—the one hanging on the back of the chair. Have you looked?

W: No, I haven't. Yes, it's still here. Thanks.

(Text 3)

M: Have you heard from James? He must have arrived in Australia by now! He promised to send me a postcard.

W: He gave me a quick call yesterday. Didn't you get my email?

M: No. I haven't been at work for a few days.

(Text 4)

W: Honey, could you take Frank to the vet tomorrow? He should get there at 11:00 in the morning.

M: Weren't you told to bring him there around 10:00 am?

W: Mr. Brown called me later yesterday and changed the time.

(Text 5)

M: I need to get some social work experience. Can you help?

W: Sure. There's a teenager centre. They're looking for someone to teach table tennis on Thursday. Then there's the day centre for pre-school kids. They need a helper on Wednesday. Or there's a school for the disabled. They need someone on weekends.

M: Well, the best time for me is Wednesday.

(Text 6)

W: David, what's your plan for the summer vacation?

M: I'm planning to go to Namibia and join in a volunteer program there. There is a volunteer program that I show great interest in.

W: What does the program involve?

M: It mainly involves taking care of wildlife in Namibia.

W: What are the requirements of the program?

M: In order to join in the program, you need to be at least 18 years old on the program start date. You need to speak English. Volunteers should also come with at least a moderate level of fitness.

(Text 7)

M: Jane, could you review the results of the survey on sporting activities again? I'm planning out our proposal for today's business meeting. I think we should consider expanding our line of athletic shoes. Maybe we should consider developing a new market—targeting sports clothes or equipment.

W: Sure, Sam. I've summarized the results, broken down by consumer age groups and sporting activities. The survey was carried out among people between the ages of 18 and 55, and the results have been organized in terms of the following age groups: 18-to-26, 27-to-35, 36-to-45, and 46-to-55.

M: Okay.

W: People in the last two groups reported jogging as their favorite sport followed by skiing, tennis, swimming, and cycling.

(Text 8)

W: Dr Twain, I'm considering taking your course in tourism. Would you mind giving me some advice?

M: Absolutely not.

W: Well, I have been discussing it with my parents and they are concerned that I will not be able to get a well-paid job with a degree in tourism. But I think it's a great career in the future.

M: I agree with you. A large part of this course is dedicated to teaching students how to manage finances. I would also recommend that you take a course in time-management or note-taking, as these can be useful in planning your workload.

W: I'll remember that.

M: Now, are you interested in any of the other subjects?

W: Yes, I'm interested in Travel and Business.

M: That is really worth learning; however, be aware that it is challenging. What about Medical Care? It's tiring but useful.

W: I'm not sure that I would enjoy that course. How about Public Relations?

M: Yes, I would recommend that course. It would be related to entering the tourism industry.

W: OK. I'll take it. Thank you!

(Text 9)

W: Nick, we've got to decide on the best ways this university can do to reduce its waste. Did you do all the interviews as well?

M: Yes, I interviewed all the staff, who made some good observations, and I interviewed some of the students. The students said little that was interesting. It was the cleaners, surprisingly, who revealed most relevant facts.

W: What items were most commonly disposed of?

M: In the cafeteria, obviously paper cups were thrown away all over the place. However, across the university in general, it was paper copying that filled up most bins, far more than plastic, or other forms of waste.

W: Did people care about this?

M: I have interviewed about 30% of customers in the cafeteria, and the results were mixed. Out of all the people I interviewed, about 55% of them, told me that they had little concern. The rest, 45%, were more troubled.

W: I think we should paint a poster to be put somewhere where lots of people will see it.

M: How about holding an exhibition or giving some lectures? I'm sure most people like to work towards helping our environment.

W: Next month, students from the fashion department at Oak College will be holding an exciting event. They are putting on a fashion show on Saturday 25th June. The show will be held in the new drama studio. Students themselves will be modeling the clothes, which have been given to them by various well-known stores in the area. 70% clothes are from high street stores. Some are from designer stores and only a part are from personal studios. The show starts at 11:30 am and begins with a presentation of men's fashion, which will include sportswear. There will be a short break for lunch at 1 pm in the canteen, the cost of which is included in the price of the ticket. The show will continue at 2 pm with women's fashion, which will include both winter and summer wear. The show will end at 3 pm with a presentation of the students' own designs. It'll be a fun day out! You can buy tickets for the show on the college website, or over the phone. But I recommend you to get them at the college bookshop, because the price includes a drink. The bookshop is next to the admissions office. Full details of prices are available on the college website.

One possible version:

Dear Jack,

Glad to receive your email! The following are my views on how to express our opinions on online events.

Recently, more and more wrong comments have appeared on the Internet. I think we should comment on online events correctly. The recommendations are as follows:

First of all, we should have correct professional knowledge and use professional terms to ensure the truth of our views and the logic of our language. Secondly, before giving others our views on online events, we should know the real details to avoid giving others wrong opinions. But it is equally important that we should make comments objectively and actively without subjective emotions. Last but not last, we should obey the law and be polite when posting our ideas and mustn't resort to personal abuse.

Online comments have certain guidance, so starting from everyone, we ought to make correct and proper online comments.

Yours,

Li Hua

第二节

One possible version:

The boy soon recovered from the operation. Standing in front of the mirror, he touched his new ears gently for the first time after the recovery. He felt he was full of confidence and strength. More of his talents blossomed like flowers. He achieved a series of successes in his studies and other aspects. One day, he asked his father, "Who gave me the ears? I could never do enough for him or her." "I do not believe you could," said the father, "but the agreement is that you are not to know the secret. It's not the time yet." The years kept the secret, but the day did come.

To the father and son's sorrow, the boy's mother passed away due to an illness. He stood with his father over his mother's coffin. Slowly and tenderly, the father stretched forth a hand and raised the thick, reddish brown hair to show that the mother had no outer ears. "Your mother said she was glad she never let her hair be cut," his father whispered gently, "and nobody ever thought your mother less beautiful, did they?" The night wind outside blowing fiercely, a sense of extreme grief crept upon the boy. A sea of moments he spent with his mother flashed through his mind. He stared at his mum, tears crazily rolling down constantly. The boy said, "No matter who I am or can be, I owe everything to my angel mother."
