应用文:

Dear committee members,

I'm over the moon to hear that you're organizing some activities aimed at alleviating the pressure of the upcoming final exam on students. Overflowing with brilliant ideas, I am writing to offer some suggestions.

As an old saying goes, all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. Therefore, it is necessary to alternate work with play. From my perspective, weekly outdoor activities, such as basketball games or mountain climbing, should be organized to strengthen students' bodies and build their characters, thus improving their physical and mental well-being. Additionally, it is highly suggested to arrange group study sessions where students can collaborate and support each other in preparation for exams, which not only fosters a sense of companionship but also eases the burden of academic pressure.

I hope that these activities can be integrated into our school's plans, which will ultimately contribute to creating a more supportive and conducive environment for students.

Yours,

Li Hua

读后续写:

I listened carefully but I couldn't understand her until the next spring. My father was struck by a severe illness and my mother stayed at the hospital to tend to him tirelessly for a whole month. After they returned home, my mother would keep my father company on slow strolls along the country road every morning to accelerate his recovery. Hand in hand they walked, with the golden sun rays shimmering through the leaves, painting the most beautiful picture in the world. It was at this moment that I noticed an extraordinary gentleness exhibited by my father, which seemed to mark their most harmonious moment. The doctor had said my father would recover in two months. But after two months he still couldn't walk by himself. I was worried about him. "Dad, how are you feeling now?" I asked him one day.

My father gently told me. "Don't worry about me. I've fully recovered. I just really enjoy the time spent walking with your mother." Father's words echoed in my mind as I watched them stroll along the blossoming path, their steps at the same pace, their hearts aligned yet nothing said at all! Not until then did it dawn on me that love isn't always accompanied by a big show; sometimes, it quietly weaves itself into the quilt of our lives, binding us together with threads of understanding, patience, and unwavering companionship. Witnessing their love unfold before me, I realized that true love is not always loud, but it is always present, nurturing, and enduring.
