Dear students,

I would like to invite you all to participate in a short video contest with the theme "Beautiful Campus."

The contest is a great chance to show the beauty of our campus and share your unique perspectives of our school. Please note that the short video should be related to our campus and school life. Besides, subtitles and music can be added to make it more colorful. All the short videos must be made within three minutes and in MP4 form, which should be uploaded to the campus website by December 30th. The top ten with the most likes will be rewarded afterwards.

Looking forward to your participation.

Yours sincerely,

Li Hua

第二节 (满分 25 分)

Slowly but surely, I found myself engaged in the game. Harvey's endless questions about the sport fueled my curiosity, making me more focused. Besides, the exciting atmosphere of the stadium became infectious, which inspired a genuine passion within me. Though some elements of the football culture were still unfamiliar to me, I found myself cheering and celebrating with fellow fans. I discussed with them, shared our thoughts on the players' performance, and even predicted the outcome of the match. When we walked out of the stadium, our discussion about the game continued, showing the unexpected joy football had brought into our lives.

With each visit to the stadium, our connection to football deepened. The following matches became more than mere routine outings; they were shared moments of excitement and connection with my son. The stadium, once an unfamiliar place, transformed into a comforting ground where families gathered to share the joy of the game. As we cheered for Boreham Wood, I discovered the beauty of sports extending beyond the field—connecting people, creating memories, and fostering a sense of community. Football became more than just a sport but an activity that not only changed my life but also strengthened the father-son relationship.

Text 1

M: I thought you had planned to practice the piano today, Lisa.

W: Well, I did nothing but write letters all day.

Text 2

M: Do you want to go with me to the gym tomorrow morning? My trainer said she would give you a free class.

W: I would love to. Just remind me to go to my dentist appointment in the afternoon.

Text 3

M: How long did it take you to finish your science project? I have been thinking about it all weekend, and I can't come up with anything worth making! I don't know what to do.

W: Don't worry, Billy. It took me a couple of months to get my science project worked out when I was your age. It'll come to you. Why don't you try going to the museum?

Text 4

W: It's so quiet up here. And look at all those stars!

M: I know. This is why I like coming up here. It's nice to get out of the city once in a while, and I must admit that I love sleeping outdoors like this.

Text 5

M: You have one more month here before you get transferred to the Chicago office.

W: Don't worry. I fully intend to use this time to clean up the office and organize all the files before I leave.

Text 6

W: Michael, your little brother was very rude to me last week. I was really surprised.

M: I'm sorry, Janice. He will be sixteen in three weeks, and he has changed a lot since he started high school.

W: I have two younger brothers myself, and they are not the easiest people to get along with, so I guess I can understand.

M: In all honesty, I know I was a pain in the neck when I was his age, too.

Text 7

M: Did you find your passport yet? The trip is in two days!

W: No, not yet, but I know it is somewhere around here!

M: Honey, you'd better find it! These tickets to France were not cheap.

W: I will, I will. You know me, always losing everything and then finding it at the last second...

M: Did you check the bathroom? Maybe it's in your makeup bag. You could fit a house in that thing.

W: Why would I put it in there, Tim? That's just silly. It probably fell under the desk.
M: If I check in the bathroom and it's there, you owe me a drink! That'll be the first thing we do when we get to the airport.
W: If you say so. I'm fairly certain I'm not that forgetful, though. Anyway, the drinks at the airport are usually pretty pricey.
M: Well, I guess you'd better start saving...
W: Why?
M: Guess what I found next to your lipstick?

Text 8

W: What a beautiful place this is!
M: Yeah. After the grayness of New York, the colors of Hawaii seem so bright.
W: Well, I've been to a lot of amazing beaches in Thailand and Mexico, but this is definitely one of the nicest ones I've been to. Why don't we go for a swim? I hear there are lots of tropical fish we can see.
W: Good idea. I can use my new video camera — it's waterproof.
W: Wow, where did you get that?
M: I got it in New York a week ago. It's made by a company called GoPro. They specialize in making HD video cameras for outdoor sports. The bodies of their cameras are designed to be extra strong. The camera can handle being dropped, and I can use it underwater up to 60 meters deep.
W: And it's so small and lightweight. How much did it cost?
M: Well, I could have gotten the older model for $200. But I bought the latest version for $300, because it's lighter and has better picture quality. I also spent an extra $50 for an extra battery pack.
W: Well, let's go so you can use it!

Text 9

M: I am going to need those files edited and completed by Monday, Sarah. I expect to see them on my desk first thing next week.
W: You got it, Mr. Bensen. Is there anything in particular you would like me to include?
M: Just make sure that you highlight all of our upcoming shows. I want our clients to be aware of our new events and clothes styles.
W: Of course, sir. Should I start sending out the invitations for next month's charity party?
M: Yes! That needs to be a huge success if we expect anything from our summer line to be ready anytime soon.
W: I'll call the models this weekend and remind them of the fitting next week. Hopefully, they can be helpful for the donations for the event.
M: I would like to think so. Isn't that what this business is all about — making people look good and being surrounded by the people that look the best?
W: I guess so, sir. I'd like to think that our market is more than just good-looking people, though.
M: What the media wants, Sarah, the media gets.

Text 10

Nothing in this world can be achieved without effort. Mozart wasn't born a composer. He practiced the piano from the age of three and began composing by the age of five. His father, who was also his teacher, was very strict with the boy.

Jimi Hendrix used to walk around his house with a guitar and play up to eight hours a day. As a child, Jimi used to listen to his father's blues records alone with a broom, pretending to play it like a guitar. Neither of them had their gift just given to them at birth. They had to work hard and discover that they had a gift. And they didn't just make do with what they had after that. They kept at it. Hendrix didn't even know how to read music, so everything he learned, he learned through listening.

Another example is Albert Einstein, the father of modern physics. He was told that he would never be a success at anything. No one wanted to hire him after he graduated from college. But he believed in himself, and he persevered with his studies on his own.

Now, I'm not trying to say that everyone can be a Mozart or an Einstein if they just put in a lot of time doing something. But, with effort and passion, one can achieve a great deal. Without those things, you're not going to achieve much. Luck comes to those who prepare for it. If you do something you love, don't let little bumps along the road stop you.
