Dear Caroline,

I'm Li Hua, head of English Drama Club in our school. I'm writing to invite you to be a judge of an English drama competition.

The competition is scheduled in the lecture hall from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. next Friday. Varieties of dramas adapted from English classics are expected to be shown. The judges will give scores based on the competitors' pronunciation, emotion and performance on the spot. Meanwhile, we hope you could share with us your professional comments on oral English, which will definitely benefit us a lot.

I would appreciate it if you could take my invitation into consideration.

Yours sincerely,

Li Hua

第二节 (满分 25 分)

Bauer jumped into the water. A moment later he was bouncing off the sandy bottom—unhurt! The little girl was less than 10 feet away. Bauer swam to her in a few quick strokes and lifted her out of the water: mouth half open, eyes nearly closed, not breathing. Standing up, he laid her against his shoulder and patted her at the back with his hand. After tense moments, she began coughing and her eyes opened. Tears of relief filled Bauer's eyes as he carried the girl to the shore.

As the ambulance left, Ava anxiously turned to her father. Bauer hugged his own daughter tightly, a moment they'd cherish forever. "That girl is going to live a whole life because of you. It's incredible," she said to her father. "Well, I just did what a man should do", responded the father. On that bright spring day, Jonathan Bauer's jump of faith became a symbol of courage and love. It was a reminder that ordinary people can perform extraordinary acts of heroism, forever changing the lives of others.
