第二节:

As the sun rose higher, the water in the small shallow corner continued to disappear. Initial joy gradually turning into panic, the youngest fish realized the danger. The once abundant water had vanished, leaving him floundering in the drying mud. The two older fish, who had safely made it back to the sea, noticed their younger brother's distress from a distance. They knew they couldn't leave him behind. With determination and concern, they swam back towards the shallow water.

Upon their return, the two fish made a plan to rescue their younger brother. They approached him, urging him to swim with all his strength towards the lowest part of the boat. Despite his fear, the youngest fish followed their words and their lead. Together, the three fish used their remaining strength to jump and flip over the boat, miraculously reaching the other side. They were reunited, their bond stronger than ever. They swam back to the safety of the sea, grateful for their collective strength and perseverance.
